MOMENTOUS GEMINI RENDEZVOUS COMPLETE SUCCESS

Spacemen Fly 'Nose-to-Nose'

BLASTOFF of Gemini 6 atop of a roaring Titan 2 rocket was filmed today from helicopter hovering over Cape Kennedy. Launch went off perfectly, enabling Gemini 6 to complete rendezvous with Gemini 7 over Pacific.

Six Feet Separates Two Craft

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Gemini 6 astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford met Gemini 7 in space today and closed to within 6 feet of it at the end of a 100,000-mile chase from liftoff. They flew nose to nose and watched each other.

The rendezvous was to last about five hours.

It was an historic triumph for the United States as radar "locked" in and the two 18-foot capsules came almost together at a speed of five miles per second.

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell aboard Gemini 7 stayed on course and Gemini 6 met them unerringly 185 miles above the Philippines. Rendezvous was 120 feet. Then the distance narrowed to 10 feet—less than an automobile length apart.

"We're flying nose to nose," came the report from Gemini 6.

The astronauts could see each other.

"Are you able to see in window of 6 and vice versa?" asked ground control.

"Roger, yes," Gemini 7 replied.

The rendezvous occurred at 2:27 p.m. EST. (11:27 p.m. PST), just 5 hours and 50 minutes after Gemini 6 blasted off the launch pad at 8:37 a.m. EST. They missed their timetable by an extra minute.

Just before they reached 120 feet, Stafford aboard Gemini 6 made ground contact by radio.

"In the calmest voice we've ever heard," mission control said, he reported "they are 120 feet apart and sitting."

The men manning the mission control consoles in the manned spacecraft centre at Houston broke out American flags at the moment word came in of the meeting.

Narrowing the gap with short rocket blasts and coming up fast on the inside, Gemini 6 made voice contact with record-setting Gemini 7 astronauts Borman and Lovell, who were egging them on to a nose-to-nose meeting.

"Have visual contact," Gemini 6 reported at 12:23 p.m., EST.

'Locked' With Radar Signals

Shortly afternoon, the two spacecraft, speeding at five miles a second, had "locked" onto each other with probing radar signals.

Six minutes after liftoff, Gemini 6 was in orbit and the word from all ground check points was: "Good."

The loop-the-loop pursuit kept Gemini 6 gaining on Gemini 7, entering its 12th day aloft.

First efforts at radio contact among the four astronauts failed. But they quickly zeroed in.

Gemini 7 entered its 164th orbit and Gemini 6 started its 3rd orbit at approximately 11:48 a.m. EST.

With "burns" of its manoeuvring rockets, Gemini 6 shifted its orbit toward the 185-mile loop being made by Gemini 7. A final "burn" at 12:25 p.m. EST made Gemini 6's orbit circular, like the orbit of Gemini, but inside it.

If everything goes as planned, Schirra and Stafford will return to earth at 10:06 a.m. EST Thursday. Otherwise, they will stay up a second day.

Borman and Lovell are to continue on their record-shattering flight until Saturday, dashing back to earth at 9 a.m.

It was an on-the-button blastoff today just as Gemini 7 space champions Borman and Lovell flashed over Florida on the 162nd orbit of their record-smashing 14-day voyage.

They were 270 miles downrange at the moment Gemini 6 blasted off, and 1,200 miles ahead when Schirra and Stafford soared into orbit on their third try after two heart-breaking failures.

Second Flight for Schirra

It was the second leap into space for the 42-year-old Schirra, and he had the most difficult job of any astronaut—flying his spaceship through a series of orbital changes and manoeuvres that would put him and rookie Stafford right in front of Borman and Lovell over the Pacific at 2:26 p.m. EST.

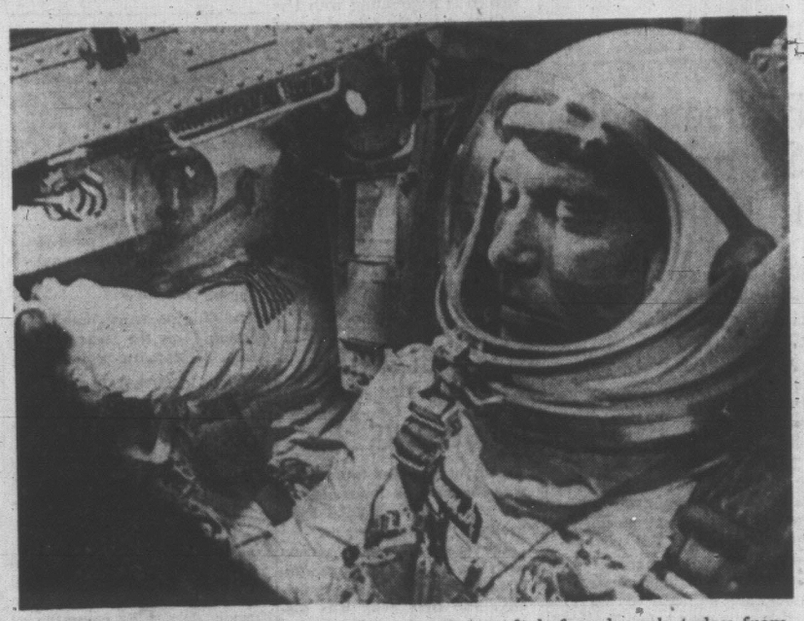

He had five and a half hours and four orbits to do it, and 100,000 miles to travel.

At liftoff, Gemini 7 was in a nearly circular orbit 185 miles above the earth. Gemini 6 shot into an orbit of roughly 100 by 166 miles.

It was like a racetrack—with Borman and Lovell streaking on the outside at 17,500 miles an hour, and Schirra and Stafford flashing on the inside at the same speed and closing in on every turn.

One hour and 34 minutes after launch, Schirra fired his manoeuvring rockets for less than a second, and brought his

Major N-Threat by China In 5 Years: McNamara

PARIS — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said today China may have a small stockpile of nuclear weapons in two years and hopes to have a ballistic missile to deliver them.

Reuters also quoted an informed source as saying that McNamara disclosed that the Chinese Communists now have a ballistic missile submarine that may be armed with missiles by 1967-68.

McNamara told ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the European members of the alliance should plan now to meet a Chinese threat to their own security within five years.

He said the Chinese were determined to become a major nuclear power. China exploded its first nuclear device in October, 1964.

By 1976, he predicted, the Chinese probably would not only have developed but also deployed intercontinental ballistic missiles. Such missiles presumably could reach targets all the way from San Francisco to Berlin and cities in between.

McNamara reported the Chinese have set their sights on building up a major nuclear force within the next two years.

LIKELY PLAN TESTS

He predicted the Chinese probably will produce enough fissionable material to maintain a test program and build up a small stockpile of efficient weapons.

McNamara said Peking is attempting to develop a medium-range ballistic missile which may be ready by 1967.

McNamara spoke on the second day of a NATO ministerial meeting. He spoke behind closed doors. His statements were relayed by an American spokesman.

McNamara said it was estimated that the Chinese probably could deploy several missile launchers by 1968-69 and there could be several dozen of them by 1976.

He was reported to have said it seemed likely that China already had started an intercontinental ballistic missiles program.

Only Two Announce Break With Britain

LONDON (AP)—The African nations' self-imposed deadline for a diplomatic break with Britain over Rhodesia passed quietly today with only a handful heeding it.

The first two to announce a break were the leftist government of Guinea and President Julius Nyerere's Tanzania, which has serious domestic political problems with leftist elements.

Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, said in London that he did not believe his country would break with Britain. Instead, he threw the weight of black Africa's most populous nation behind his proposal for a Commonwealth conference on Rhodesia.

Zambia, in a delicate political situation on Rhodesia's northern border, also has decided not to break with Britain. On the contrary, it is sending a mission to London to discuss the security of the Kariba dam which it shares with Rhodesia.

The appeal by the 36-nation Organization of African Unity was made after a meeting of its foreign ministers in Addis Ababa two weeks ago. They set a Dec. 15 deadline for Britain to bring down the white-minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith in Rhodesia. Otherwise, they warned, they would break with Britain.

STAY IN COMMONWEALTH

But the nine African members of the British Commonwealth were in general most careful to say that any break with London would not mean an automatic departure from the British Commonwealth membership which brings them considerable benefits in trade and aid.

Foreign Minister Felix Onama of Uganda had issued a threat of withdrawal at Addis Ababa. A Ugandan government official, commenting on this on the eve of the deadline, told a reporter: "I don't think you need take that very seriously."

At the same time, Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda accepted an invitation to attend the Commonwealth conference.

Nyere also will attend, Balewa told reporters at London airport before leaving for home after talks about the proposed conference with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

"We, as members of the Commonwealth could advise Britain," the Nigerian leader said. "We could produce a plan by which a solution could be found."

Britain has been lukewarm to the idea of a Commonwealth meeting.

CAN SAVE FACE

But now the Commonwealth conference provides the possibility of a face-saving way out for the African governments which—apparently are having second thoughts about breaking with Britain.

Several government spokesmen have also pointed out another diplomatic nicety that provides another escape hatch—the OAU appeal was a recommen-

Forestry Minister Defends His Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Forestry Minister Sauve replied today to charges of election irregularities in his Iles-de-la-Madeleine riding with a 32-page document in which he said his objections to two men being released from prison to vote involved only "the interest of peace and order."

"Any suggestion that the calls were made for any other purpose is false," he said.

Mr. Sauve, who returned from Rome Sunday night, issued the bulky statement to reporters at a press conference called to deal with a series of allegations made about the Nov. 8 general election. The minister's document covered each allegation individually.

The charges of irregularities arose when Judge Joseph Duguay of Grindstone, Que., told reporters that Mr. Sauve telephoned him on election day to protest the release of two men earlier charged with threatening a Liberal—from their jail cells to vote.

Mr. Sauve said he telephoned the judge at the suggestion of lawyer Pierre Pinard, "one of my legal advisers during the election campaign."

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Peace and Love Shine Through at Sun Ae

It's also the name of a children's home for Korean orphans, run by the Unitarian Service Committee.

The home has earned its name. The atmosphere within its walls is one of peace and harmony.

For many of the young Koreans who live at Sun Ae, it is the first taste of kindness and real love that they have ever known.

Many of them were found by USC workers wandering in the streets, cold, half-starved and homeless.

Others were turned in to the home by their parents, reluctant to lose their children but knowing this was the only way to assure them a decent future.

But the heartbreak of parting from them is often overcome by the terrifying vision of what their future will be otherwise.

For without USC help there would be thousands more Koreans today destitute, starving and without hope for the future.

Your contributions to the Times-sponsored Children of Asia fund help give meaning to the lives of less fortunate people in Korea, India and Hong Kong.

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques should be made payable to the Children of Asia fund.

Winters Resigns Industrial Post

ST. JOHN'S, Nfld. (CP)—The Telegram says Robert H. Winters has resigned as board chairman of the British Newfoundland Corp. "which obviously confirms his appointment to the federal cabinet."

The newspaper says it has learned Mr. Winters has been succeeded in the top executive position of Brinco by Henry Borden of Toronto, board chairman of Brazilian Traction Light and Power Co. Ltd.

Mr. Winters won the York West seat for the Liberals in the Nov. 8 federal election and there has been speculation he will be given a cabinet post.

Mr. Borden, a Halifax native, is a nephew of former prime minister Sir Robert Borden. He is a lawyer and writer and was a member of Brinco's board of directors before being appointed board chairman.

The Telegram says it has also learned the position of chairman of the executive committee, also held by Mr. Winters, has been given to John Norman Valette Duncan of London, an English industrialist who was a Brinco board member. Mr. Duncan is also managing director of Rio Tinto Co. Ltd., a subsidiary of Brinco.

Brinco is negotiating with Hydro Quebec for the sale of power from the proposed 6,000,000-horsepower hydro electric power development at Churchill Falls on the Churchill River in Labrador. The power would be resold by Hydro Quebec to New England utility companies.

Brinco is Newfoundland agent in the development of the project and also holds more than 60,000 square miles of mineral concessions in the province.

Premier Smallwood was not available for comment on the story.

Pearson Talks Sugar Trade In Caribbean

It was reported that the two men signed agreements dealing with two development loans by Canada to Trinidad and Tobago.

Mr. Pearson arrived in Port of Spain Tuesday as the first Canadian prime minister to visit the Caribbean country since it became independent.

An important economic subject here is the prospect for any immediate increase in the Canadian market for Trinidad sugar, in view of Canada's ban on Rhodesian sugar.

Ballet to Tour

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Royal Winnipeg Ballet announced Tuesday that it will perform in Caracas next March as part of celebrations marking the 400th anniversary of the Venezuelan capital. The company was invited by the Venezuelan government. Possibility of a week's performance in Lima, Peru, also is under discussion.

POUCE COUPE WATER CUT OFF

DAWSON CREEK, B.C. (CP) — The northern British Columbia village of Pouce Coupe, without gas and power earlier this week, lost its water supply for six hours overnight.

A six-inch water main burst about 10 p.m. and was not repaired until 4 a.m. today.

BOYS BLAMED IN DEATH OF SWANS

Body of a second tame swan was found this morning on the shore of Swan Lake by a group of Saanich citizens.

They said the birds "apparently" were shot by three unidentified teen-agers Saturday. The first body was discovered Tuesday afternoon.

Saanich parks superintendent A. R. Richman, who organized the search, said both birds were very tame and would let humans approach quite close.

One died last year and the other two were last seen alive Saturday when three boys went boating in Swan Lake. They were reported to be carrying .22 calibre rifles.

be as early as 1975, he said.

It was estimated that the supply of fissionable material would be adequate to support not only a ballistic missile program but also provide for delivery by aircraft.

McNamara also gave the NATO chiefs a detailed rundown on the conventional power of China.

PLANES OBSOLETE

He said its air force was considerable, although its striking power was reduced through obsolescence and vulnerability. It had more than 1,500 MiGs, all of which could be used for defensive and close ground support roles.

McNamara also reassured the NATO allies the U.S. will not lower its military guard in Europe, despite its commitment in South Viet Nam.

The United States did not plan to redeploy major combat units from Europe to Southeast Asia, he said.

NATO foreign ministers and military leaders were discussing a progressive buildup of NATO preparedness over the next five years.

own orbit higher. "Looks good," said mission control at Houston—"that's the first major milestone."

At 12:25 p.m. EST, Schirra "burned" the thrusters again and shot himself and Stafford into a circular orbit 15 miles below that of Gemini 7.

By this time Schirra and Stafford reported they could see their sistership above them. They also had radar contact.

'It's Going Right By the Book'

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft, head of the technicians and experts in the mission control building who had the fantastically complex task of handling two manned missions, said: "The manoeuvres are going well. It's going right by the book. Everything is right on schedule."

It was a tight, intricate schedule, and it had to be to get four human beings in space for the first time in history.

"It will be getting crowded up here," Gemini 7 command pilot Borman had radioed down to the ground as he and his cabinmate awaited Gemini 6's liftoff.

At Cape Kennedy, Schirra and Stafford went through the traditional pre-flight ritual for the third time—the first on Oct. 25, when their Agena target vehicle vanished, and the second last Sunday, when the mighty Titan's engines shut down 1.2 seconds after ignition because a plug carrying electronic information dropped out.

The countdown of the Titan and the Gemini spaceship was flawless. The only "hold" was a planned one that lasted 25 minutes at launch-time minus three minutes.

The blastoff had been set for 8:37 a.m. to enable the rendezvous to take place on the fourth orbit of Gemini 6. Each 100 second delay in liftoff would have postponed the rendezvous one orbit.

Right on the button, the Titan's engines burst into life. There was an agonizing three-second wait while they built up power—the point where Sunday's failure occurred—then there was a shout of "Liftoff"

Schirra was one happy astronaut. "The clock has started—that's real fine," he said.

A minute later there was this exchange:

"You're right down the line, Gemini 6."

"Very good."

"You got a big fat go from us. It looks great."

"Roger, Wally."

U.K., IRELAND

Free-Trade Agreement Ratified

LONDON (AP)—Britain and the Republic of Ireland agreed Tuesday night to sweep away all tariff barriers between the two countries in a move toward ending centuries of bitter hostility.

Prime Ministers Wilson of Britain and Lemass of Ireland signed a free-trade pact which Wilson called a "significant and satisfactory development" in relations between the two countries.

The agreement comes into force July 1 and provides for the gradual elimination of all import duties by 1975. It will open Ireland to British industrial products and further ease the import of Irish farm produce into Britain.

Announcing the pact to the Commons, Wilson said the accord "will not harm in any way or prejudice the position of our own farmers."

And he said he believes relations between Northern Ireland and the Irish Republic will "become even more close."

AWAIT WORD FROM WILSON

Wage Hike for CS

FIVE IN ROW FOR BENNETT

Premier Bennett made it five in a row Tuesday when he told an annual awards dinner for long-service government employees that his next budget will include wage increases for civil servants.

It will be the fourth consecutive general boost for all classifications—from janitors to deputy ministers. In 1961 he announced raises for many but not all civil servants.

As usual, Mr. Bennett did not reveal the size of the average increase and it won't be known until he delivers his budget speech to the legislature towards the end of February.

But each of the last three budgets provided approximately 5 per cent wage hikes for the 18,500 employees in government service. The 1965 budget provided $3.75 million to give an extra $207 per capita.

Mr. Bennett said the current year is the most prosperous in the province's history and predicted 1966 would be even better for B.C., including its civil servants—a hint that the coming raises may exceed 5 per cent.

Before making the announcement, he presented 25-year-service certificates to 44 government employees at the luncheon tendered by the provincial cabinet in the Empress Hotel

Mr. Bennett had a quip for most of the recipients, for instance, telling Liquor Control Board chief inspector W. A. Bruce to "keep them sober."

Later he praised them all for persevering through 25 years of working with deputy ministers and cabinet members.

"I don't know how you did it," he said.

"Next year I will celebrate 25 years as an MLA and I know how difficult it is."

Mr. Bennett said he had seen nothing but co-operation and good work by the civil service during the past 13½ years since his administration began.

He said he travelled all through Canada and many other countries and had no hesitation in declaring the B.C. civil service "the best anywhere."

The premier was to present similar certificates to 74 government employees Thursday in Vancouver.

Among those receiving certificates were A. H. Hall, registrar of companies; Mr. Bruce; C. R. Margison, assistant deputy minister of labor; Willard Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, and Dr. G. Clifford Carl, director of the Provincial Museum.

Others were R. M. Baker, Frances Porter, Mrs. Joyce McGowan, Mrs. Alice Wright, W. A. Bruce, R. M. Chandler, C. B. McIntosh, Robert Mason, G. C. Petticrew, Anne Adamson, M. J. Davis, W. R. D. Hill, Muriel Wright, R. B. Fields, Joan French, A. G. Jordan, W. A. West.

Balewa made this point, too. Wilson has made it clear that a break with Britain would not mean automatic withdrawal from the Commonwealth.

Officials said today that Britain would not cut off aid to Commonwealth members which broke relations, although they pointed out it would pose practical difficulties.

Although Guinea's announcement of a break with Britain was made by Conakry radio Tuesday night, the British foreign office in London had received no official notice of it by mid-day today.

At the Tanzanian high commission a spokesman said High Commissioner C. P. Ngaiza was not in his office. Under questioning, he said Ngaiza was "laid up" with a minor illness.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

With the exception of several Vancouver Island and north coastal locations temperatures throughout B.C. dropped below the freezing point Tuesday night. Vancouver airport recorded a chilly 26 degrees while Kimberley was the coldest spot in the province with a 1-below reading. Sunny weather returned to most coastal areas today as a large area of high pressure is expected to build eastward from the Pacific. However, the interior remained generally cloudy. Rain and strong southeasterly winds will spread to the north coast on Thursday morning in advance of the latest in a series of Pacific disturbances. Little change in the weather pattern is anticipated elsewhere in the province.

DOMINION PUBLIC WEATHER OFFICE 9 A.M. FORECASTS

TERROR ON BALI

1,000 Reds Die in Clashes

JAKARTA (Reuters) — More than 1,000 Communists have been killed in clashes with anti-Communist and religious groups on the Indonesian island of Bali, reports reaching here said today.

The reports said Communist buildings and properties were ransacked and burned in three Balinese cities — Singaradja, Denpasar and Negara.

Other reports from Medan, North Sumatra, said four Indonesians were killed during a violent demonstration outside the Chinese consulate there Friday.

Some reports of the same incident said the four were killed in a clash between Communist and anti-Communist groups elsewhere in the city.

Anti-Communist and anti-Peking feelings have run high in Indonesia since the Communist-inspired coup attempt of Oct. 1.

The coup failed and many Communist leaders fled from the capital. Branches of the once - powerful Communist party have been disolved or have dissolved themselves all over the country in an ensuing army-Moslem purge of coup elements.

KEEP STORES OPEN

Meanwhile, troops were called out in the capital to keep stores open after the government andnounced a drastic economy measure Tuesday—the 1,003-fold devaluation of federal currency.

Businessmen were ordered not to raise prices or to close down as crowds stormed the shopping centres and bought with abandon.

Crowds milled outside banks, waiting to change their money at a rate of one new rupiah for 1,000 old, with the bank retaining 10 per cent as the customer's "contribution to the Indonesian revolution."

President Sukarno issued a decree giving the government control of prices, supplies of goods and distribution of food and clothing. It said the government would place officials in countries and enterprises with full authority to decide on distribution.

The devaluation followed a long period of intensifying economic troubles marked by inflation, lagging production and distribution and dwindling foreign exchange reserves.

RUNOFF VOTE

Poll Gives De Gaulle 55 Per Cent

PARIS (Reuters) — President de Gaulle is favored to win Sunday's presidential election runoff with 55 per cent of the vote, says a public opinion poll today.

With the "don't knows" and "won't says" excluded, 55 per cent said theyw ould vote for de Gaulle and 45 per cent for his only remaining opponent, left winger Francois Mitterrand.

Polls taken in advance of the first round voting Dec. 4 proved highly accurate. The second round became necessary when none of the six candidates than standing won an over-all majority.

De Gaulle, 75, who got 44.6 per cent of the vote in the first round, and Mitterrand, who got 31.7 per cent, appeared on television in separate half - hour broadcasts Tuesday night for the third consecutive night.

At Rennes Tuesday former premier Michel Debre, campaigning for de Gaulle, was howled down at a public meeting after an hour-long struggle to make himself heard.

EXISTS SINGING

He finally marched out of the hall singing the Marseillaise.

He said he has been so labelled because he disagrees with U.S. policy in Asia. "But you see where the truth lies."

Mitterrand attacked the picture of the French domestic situation painted by de Gaulle the previous night. He said de Gaulle had maintained that "everything is all right because prices are not rising."

"I believe the housewife, or those living in difficult circumstances, know even better than I do how the prices in daily life are in fact rising," Mitterrand said.

INDUSTRIAL HEARTLAND

U.S. Jets Blast Big Power Plant

SAIGON (AP) — U.S. jets blasted a major power plant today 14 miles northeast of Haiphong, North Viet Nam's major port. It was the first American strike in the north's industrial heartland in the Red River delta.

A U.S. spokesman said the raid knocked out the plant, which he said supplies 15 per cent of North Viet Nam's electric power.

One plane was shot down but the pilot was rescued.

It was announced that U.S. combat dead climbed last week to 91, the second highest weekly toll of the Vietnamese fighting. Seven other Americans were reported missing or captured and 316 wounded.

The Viet Cong, meanwhile, carried the war to South Viet Nam's heartland with three hit-and-run attacks on police posts on Saigon's outskirts, killing two policemen and wounding seven. Police killed one Viet Cong.

N-Arms Use Backed In U.S. Opinion Poll

NEW YORK (AP)—More than half of Americans would not flatly rule out use of nuclear weapons in Viet Nam, according to a national opinion poll conducted for the Columbia Broadcasting System.

The survey also contended that 34 per cent would favor using nuclear weapons just to shorten the war, but 46 per cent would approve using them if the Chinese joined the fighting.

The poll was conducted by Opinion Research Corp. of Princeton, N.J., for a special hour-long CBS news broadcast Tuesday night.

When asked to agree or disagree with the statement, "nuclear weapons should not be used under any conditions," 32 per cent agreed, 58 per cent disagreed and 10 per cent had no opinion.

Concerning the U.S. military government in Viet Nam, 82 per cent favored keeping American troops there until any peace negotiations.

Judgment Granted

NEW YORK (AP) — Acting Supreme Court Justice Maurice Wahl Tuesday granted a $575,000 judgment against U.S. Representative Adam Clayton Powell (Dem.—N.Y.) for the fraudulent transfer of Puerto Rican property to avoid payment of a 1963 defamation award. Following a three-hour inquest, Wahl awarded Mrs. Esther James, 57, a Harlem widow, $500,000 in punitive and $75,000 in compensatory damages.

OTTAWA (CP) — The Elizabeth Fry Society of British Columbia has been given a federal loan of $14,000 to help establish a rehabilitation home for teen-aged girls in Vancouver, it was announced Tuesday.

Oil for Rhodesia

BEIRA, Mozambique (AP) — The tanker British Security arrived in this Portuguese East African port Tuesday and began unloading 9,400 tons of Persian Gulf oil for Rhodesia. Piping to Rhodesia began at midday.

Oil Talks Fail

VANCOUVER (CP) — British American Oil Co. Ltd. and the oil workers union failed again Tuesday in talks aimed at settling a three-month strike. The disagreement between the company and the Oil, Chemical and Atomic Workers Union (CLC) is on seniority provisions.

WHERE WAS THE SUN?

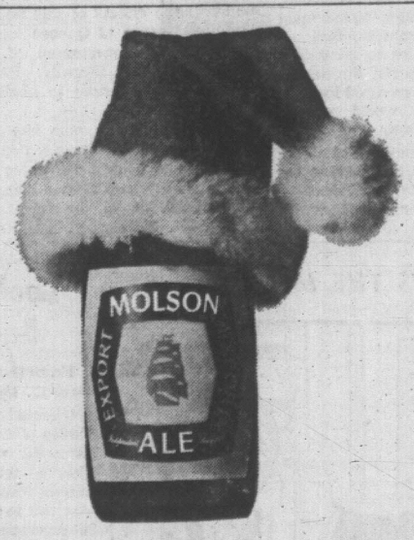

HONOLULU (AP) — Five inches of rain fell in eight hours in Honolulu Tuesday, one inch more than the city usually receives in the entire month of December.

Crisis in India

A SERIOUS CRISIS IS BUILDing up in India, where failure of the monsoon rains has caused a water shortage. This in turn has enforced a cut in hydro-power production and left some areas in need of drinking water. But most serious of all is the crop failure which threatens to create famine conditions over large areas unless outside help is forthcoming.

The Indian government has played down the situation for fear of a rush to buy up the existing grain stocks and precipitate an even worse problem. But in a country where large sections of the population exist on a subsistence diet at the best of times, a shortage of eight million tons below last year's fall grain harvest must spell disaster for thousands of people. That is the figure announced by the Indian minister of food, but other experts estimate that the country will be short of its needs by ten million tons.

Under present arrangements the United States is shipping about six million tons of grain a year to India, which means that the shortage can be met to that extent. This might avoid widespread loss of life—the Bengal famine of 1943 cost an estimated three million lives through starvation — but the condition of many Indian families will be hazardous for months to come. The problem will be intensified by an expected poor crop in the spring.

India's immediate problem is the season's crop failure. But the country's basic dilemma is the fact that the population is increasing more rapidly than is the annual production of food. The deficit has been made up in part through shipments of foreign grain, but this obviously is no real solution.

Recently the United States changed from a long-term program of wheat shipments to a short-term plan, in the hope that this would move India to speed up its efforts to become self-sufficient. But fertilizer and machinery are prime needs in India—Japanese farm production, for instance, far outstrips that of the sub-continent on a proportionate basis—and these in turn can only be obtained in adequate amounts through foreign purchase or gift.

There are two avenues of possible attack. First, the immediate crisis must be met through American and other grain shipments. Canada and the Commonwealth can and should give emergency assistance. Secondly, India's slow progress toward self-sufficiency must be speeded up. This will entail large-scale aid in the form of agricultural machinery, fertilizer and other modern aids to increased farm production. But there will be little point in everlastingly straining to make food production equal population increase, if the latter soars still higher with the improved economic conditions.

India must face the fact that population control and agricultural progress are both necessary in a country of some 480 millions of people who are never far from the brink of tragedy. The efforts already directed to birth control must be broadened and made more effective. Otherwise India will never escape from the grim Malthusian maelstrom in which it now whirls.

Effects of the War

PRESIDENT JOHNSON IS BACK in Washington after his long period of recuperation at his Texas ranch and the time has come when he must make a number of decisions which will be critical not only for the United States but for the world.

Chief among these is the next step in the undeclared war in Viet Nam. The United States now, according to official figures, has 180,000 troops in South Viet Nam and while military successes are more frequent than failures these days there is little indication that any meaningful victory is much closer than it was about a year ago when the heavy build-up of American forces got under way.

Strong pressure is being exerted on the president to escalate the war still further, to send additional tens of thousands of troops and to carry the war more strongly into North Viet Nam via bombing raids on ever more sensitive targets—including the capital, Hanoi, and the chief port of Haiphong, whose industrial outskirts were bombed yesterday. Proponents of this line claim that because the escalation steps so far have brought little sign that China will take a more active part in the war further steps could be taken safely. It's a dubious argument, however, because no one knows what is in the minds of the Peking leaders, whether they have decided "thus far and no farther."

At the same time, reports from Washington say that the president is also being urged to order another "pause" in the bombing of North Viet Nam — a more meaningful pause than the five-day period last May—in order to give the North Vietnamese one last chance to consider negotiating an honorable settlement of the war.

The experts on the Viet Nam War do not seem to hold out much hope that another pause in bombing will divert Hanoi from its course and recent statements from North Vietnamese leaders are not encouraging either. The consensus seems to be that with or without a bombing pause, the war is going to be much bloodier in the coming year and much more dangerous as pressure builds up in the United States for military results to match the mounting casualty rolls.

Tied in with the decisions on Viet Nam are economic questions which the president must resolve before Congress meets January 10.

Until recently the war has not produced too great a strain on the American economy; the classic problem of "guns or butter" has hardly figured in government decisions.

But the situation has changed and is continuing to change. With the expectation that something like 250,000 troops will be deployed in Viet Nam next year, the American economy can no longer be considered as on a peace-time footing. Defence budget demands are expected to increase by at least $10 billions during the coming fiscal year to a total of $62 or $63 billions. Orders have already gone out to the various departments of government to "cut to the bone" on estimates for the coming year.

The president's "Great Society" program, which calls for expenditure of heavy sums on education, slum clearance and economic aid to depressed areas, will inevitably suffer from the need to boost defence spending. This in turn could lead to the disillusioned cry that it is the poor and the dispossessed who are being made to pay for the war.

The present year is thus coming to a troubled close for the American people, and the year ahead shows threats of disillusionment and discontent.

The Flea Is Silent, As In Tivoli

THE MANAGER OF COPENhagen's Tivoli Gardens has announced closure of the entertainment centre's flea circus because of a shortage of "actors".

No explanation is given for the shortage, but there just aren't enough of the active little creatures to produce a show. Maybe pesticides are to blame. But then, hasn't the leap of a flea always been a "Silent Spring"?

FROM WASHINGTON

By RICHARD PURSER

Thin Velvet Glove for U.S. Business

THE U.S. balance of payments program resembles the quotas on Japanese exports to Canada. Both are "voluntary," both are reached under gentlemen's agreements. But there is full knowledge that any lapse of volition will bring about compulsion, and that any failure of agreement by the weaker party will cause the stronger to become ungentlemanly.

Purser

President Johnson last week announced acceptance of a cabinet committee's recommendations for strengthening in 1966 this year's program to combat the U.S. balance of payments deficit. For 1965, 500 leading U.S. corporations were called upon "voluntarily" to contribute $1.3 billion to the favorable side of the U.S. balance.

The corporations were graciously allowed to select their own methods. They could repatriate foreign deposits, depend more on foreign capital for expansion abroad, reduce foreign investment, repatriate more of the profits from foreign investment, or simply increase exports.

But for 1966, the administration has introduced a new target specifically asking corporations to limit direct investment overseas. The target in fact allows corporations to invest abroad during two years an annual average equal to 135 per cent of the annual average for the previous three years.

But such is the arithmetic of the growing economies of advanced nations — where, sadly, most of the investment takes place — that this increase will still result in an additional balance of payments saving of more than $1,000,000,000 in 1966. The target enables corporations to invest more abroad than before, but much less than they had hoped.

In effect, the administration's new "voluntary" program requires patriotic, co-operative American firms not to cash in as much as they could on burgeoning demand in West European and other advancing countries.

Tourist Campaign

There are other items in the 1966 program. Efforts to encourage foreign tourism in the U.S. are included. The government asks for expansion of the U.S. Travel Service, "which is currently operating at a marked competitive disadvantage in relation to its foreign counterparts." (Cabinet committee's quotations.)

It certainly is. One wonders whether the U.S. suffers from a lack of quantity or quality in the all-important effort to lure foreign tourists. What smaller countries lack in quantity, they make up in quality. The London travel office of little Austria can supply vastly more practical information to the potential British tourist than can the U.S. Travel Service.

The 1966 program also mentions exports. "Present efforts both by government and by private enterprise to expand U.S. export trade should be sharply stepped up." End of 1966 program on exports.

A few hopeful words about tourism, even fewer hopeful words about exports, but when the chaff is eliminated, the only concrete item of policy in the 1966 balance of payments program is the "voluntary cutback in planned foreign investment by major corporations. (This time, 900 rather than just 500 corporations will be requested to file detailed reports and forecasts — but "all corporations, of course, are expected to participate in the efforts called for under the program.")

Business the Victim

Business is the immediate victim in the balance of payments program. The government fears international political disaster if its foreign aid program is further cut back. Escalation in Viet Nam neutralizes defence department expenditure cutbacks elsewhere. So private foreign investment is left.

If this investment can be curtailed from an expected $3.4 billion to $2.4 billion next year, the U.S. may come close to wiping out its total balance of payments deficit. This year's program has cut the deficit from the $3 billion rate of the previous eight years to about $1.3 billion. Treasury Secretary Henry Fowler hopes next year for what he calls "equilibrium," or a balance of payments within a quarter of a billion dollars either way from zero.

Business has done its part in keeping the dollar "as good as gold," as President Johnson put it in his annual arm-twisting letter. Since 1960 the Pentagon has reduced the military balance of payments deficit 40 per cent and the civilian foreign aid impact on the imbalance has been cut 50 per cent. The government has done its best and the final push is up to business.

Business, not wishing to become subject to Congressionally imposed investment quotas, will co-operate once again.

But business doesn't have to like it. Businessmen feel that they invest abroad for the same reason they invest at home —to make profits which in time will cover the investment, and then some. In the long run, heavy foreign investment today means heavy foreign profits tomorrow. Cutbacks in the investments business is prepared to make abroad threaten the American competitive position in foreign markets. They threaten the huge $5 billion outflow of exports from American parent companies to service overseas subsidiaries and affiliates, which constitutes nearly a quarter of private U.S. exports. It threatens the growth in standard of living in countries needing heavy foreign capital inflows.

The Washington Post expresses the most fundamental worry of all about the administration's drastic efforts to maintain the strength of the dollar: "If this goal (of absolute balance) is attained there will be no increase in the supply of dollars that are available for use as monetary reserves by other countries and used as a vehicle currency in international trade."

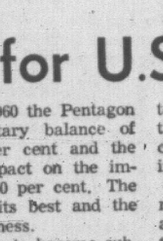

In other words, the government's moves reinforce the latent fear of recent years of a seize-up in world trade, unless expected talks on a new world reserve unit bear fruit quickly. But such negotiations take time. The Post thinks business should resist the requested "voluntary" controls. Business won't resist much next year, but it will resist if the government beeecomes permanently infatuated with "balance."

FROM OTTAWA

By MAURICE WESTERN

Who's Speaking What?

IT is reported from Paris that Mr. Georges Pompidou, the prime minister, is to be in charge of a campaign with the dual objectives of purifying the French language and restoring it to its former proud position in the affairs of the world. The cultural agreements being worked out between France and Quebec will, no doubt, be counted among the first fruits of the new policy. There would be little point to such a campaign if Mr. Pompidou and his associates had not convinced themselves that the two objectives are compatible. The theory presumably is that the purer the French, the greater will be its appeal. Owing to post-war American aggressions, popular speech is now cluttered up with such expressions as le drug store and le quick lunch, which are not only repellent in themselves but clearly ill-suited to diplomatic intercourse.

Western

Some Quebec critics, however, have made the valid point that this is no mere quick lunch matter. According to these writers the Americans are only the latest aggressor. The harsh fact is that the language still bears scars inflicted by the Normans and Plantagenets. Purification promises therefore to be a major undertaking worthy of the personal attention of the prime minister.

Superseded By English

There seems to be general agreement that, in the competition of languages, French has suffered in recent years. In much of Europe, for example, it has been replaced by English as the "second language," the favorite option of students in schools and universities. Yugoslavia is an interesting case. In Belgrade recently a number of people told me how much they admire Mr. de Gaulle. Mr. Pompidou's problem is that they admire him in English instead of in the French of a quarter of a century ago.

My own observations suggest that the trouble begins in the cradle. Most Yugoslav factories are equipped with prekindergartens in which children sleep and play to the soft music of nursery recordings. Perfidious Albion seems to have done a thorough job of cornering the nursery market.

The bewildering fact is that the English language, which has achieved this predominance, would scarcely be recognized by our Anglo-Saxon ancestors. For centuries it has been a huge sponge soaking up everything it touches. Among recent acquisitions, in every day use, are words like "apartheid," taken over from the Dutch, "ombudsman" from the Scandinavian, "sputnik" and "troika" from the Russians. We have so ransacked the French language that Mr. Pompidou would probably be justified in dragging us before the World Court.

Our Own Barbarisms

Not all of these acquisitions are attributable to private enterprise; government has also been a pioneer. Although the word "biculturalism" is not be found in such highly regarded works as The Concise Oxford Dictionary, it must be accounted one of our latest treasures because we have set up a royal commission to investigate whatever it describes. We are bound to live with it because we have been warned by some of the most thoughtful people in the country that we cannot live without it.

By the grace of the CBC and the Fowler committee we also have for our enjoyment the new words, "facilities" and "media." The government has been advised by the committee that the headquarters of the CBC should be moved to Montreal and "located in the new consolidated facilities there." Facilities, whether consolidated or otherwise, are not to be found in the Concise Oxford, which does, however, list such comparatively recent additions to our speech as "Molotov cocktail."

My own translation of the passage, based on this well-known reference book, is that the headquarters should be located in the "combined, unimpeded opportunities" which, presumably, exist in Montreal. For further details, the government will have to go back to the committee.

"The media," in the language of official Ottawa, means the newspapers, the radio and television stations. To the authors of the Concise Oxford, it meant "the middle membrane of an artery or vessel." They insist that the plural should be "mediae" but they will lose this struggle because they will never convince the CBC.

Something for Everyone

It seems to me that English may well be attractive to foreigners precisely because it contains so much foreign matter. A Russian embarking on English studies should be encouraged to learn, on the authority of the Fowler commission, that we have "troikas" in broadcasting. He is into English before he is out of Slav.

Mr. Pompidou might be heartened, however, by another theory, based upon studies of government reports, that, as English expands, it ceases to communicate. According to experts, French is a precise language and a purified French, being still more precise, would perhaps commend itself to diplomats.

This assumes, of course, that diplomats are concerned with clarity of expression. Much diplomatic intercourse suggests that they have an even greater interest in obfuscation.

Sweet and Sour

Why is it that some time ago the price of sugar was raised considerably on the excuse that there was a shortage and all commodities using it went up in price, but when it was discovered later that there was not a shortage the cost to the consumer lessened, but bakery goods and the various sugar-using products not only remained static but have since risen in selling value. —The Critic.

'Jests at Scars . . .'

In reply to Hippocrates Foreal, it is perhaps as well that the recent disaster exercise at St. Joseph's Hospital was only an "exercise." Such (surely) tongue-in-cheek observations might mislead the public generally as to the value of preparedness, and in fact, does disservice to those excellent young ladies and gentlemen who gave of their time to portray casualties.

In the event of a real disaster, Hippocrates Foreal might owe his life to the attention of this group of tough and hardened professionals.

Met in Moscow

We have just returned from a long trip through most of the Arab States, Europe, the U.S.S.R. and the Scandinavian countries. While in Moscow we had the pleasure of meeting Mr. Parkinson. We had caused quite a bit of interest as we were travelling in a big Mercedes panel truck converted into a camper and Mr. Parkinson had parked his scooter car right beside ours. This effect in Moscow of course was quite something.—Phyllis Hubner, 1163 View.

Hopeful, But . . .

Mr. Chatterton, on his return from P.C. caucus in Ottawa, states that there will be no further elections before 1968 (his own feeelings); also he favors the party intention of getting down to the business of legislating for the good of Canada.

This is all very nice, very commendable and very heartening, as a Liberal I can find no fault with that.

Now we are led to believe that Mr. Diefenbaker is going to be a good boy. It is to be hoped so, but it is hardly believable.

This writer is not against the P.C. Party itself. With proper leadership it could be a very strong and helpful factor in the governing of Canada.—Len Skelton, 4068 Grange.

"To Be a Tartan . . .

I have read, with interest, in the press and heard the announcement on television, that British Columbia is to have a new "tartan" in 1966. It has also been said that the "tartan" has been registered in Ottawa.

I would like to point out to interested parties that no material, however designed, can be considered a tartan in the true sense unless duly submitted through the proper channels, and approved by the Lord Lyon King of Arms in Edinburgh, Scotland. The fact that a design has been registered in Ottawa does not make it a tartan.

The 1957 B.C. "tartan" was generally referred to as the B.C. tartan, whereas it was nothing more than, at best, a district check.—Hugh Ross, 1443 Jamaica.

No "Cow College" Approach

As graduates in agriculture from UBC, we take great exception to the comments made by David Hunter (president-elect of the Canadian Nursery Trades Association) in the December 3, 1965, issue of the Victoria Daily Times. We consider that the University of British Columbia has done an exceptional job in the training of students, by avoiding the practical "cow college" approach.

The prime objective of a university is to train the minds of men, and such general and practical courses as suggested by Mr. Hunter have no place there, but instead should be offered by district vocational training schools.—Walter Carlson, BSA, and David Farell, BSA.

Death Penalty

A twice-paroled sex criminal who admitted strangling four young boys; a murderer who would also have killed victim's wife, had she not played dead; and a 67-year-old man who killed another over a land deal, all had their death sentences commuted last week.

Chief Mackey, Toronto police chief, and president of the Canadian Association of Chiefs of Police, said Canada will feel the effects of this policy, while Premier Lesage of Quebec has accused the dominion government of annulling the existing law illegally. He says he personally is opposed to abolishing the dealth penalty.

Why should one who has shown no mercy, and has arbitrarily denied life to another and a loved-one to his relatives, expect mercy, and after a comparatively short term in jail be released to kill again?—D. C. Hartley, 1284 Revercomb.

Looking Back

From the Times of Dec. 15, 1905:

Colwood is in the throes of excitement over the elopement that has set the community talking from one end to the other. The principals in the case are a daughter of a well-known and respected resident, William Wales, a Victoria blacksmith.

The elopement occurred under the most romantic conditions on Tuesday night, the bride escaping from under the parental roof through one of the windows of the house and fleeing to the city in company with her consort in a hack driven at full speed to a parsonage on Blanshard St. where the wedding was solemnized.

Economic Change Important In a 'Restructured' OAS

THE ECONOMIST, London

RIO DE JANEIRO — Partisanship has colored most reactions to the second special inter-American conference, held in Rio's Hotel Gloria November 17-30.

It may indeed seem pusillanimous that the Organization of American States (OAS) avoided, for safety's sake, open debate on explosive issues like the Dominican Republic and the American-Brazilian concept of a permanent inter-American peace force.

But it would be inaccurate to say that the conference failed to achieve anything at all.

It Survived

To begin with, by keeping its head down, the OAS survived when many had glumly or gleefully predicted that it would disintegrate. And if it did not reveal vitality, it at least gave encouraging evidence of genuine and unanimous desire for revitalization.

An "Act of Rio de Janeiro," one of the two major declarations approved, announced a series of proposed reforms which will be worked out by a preparatory committee at Panama in February. A third special inter-American conference will meet at Buenos Aires in July, 1966, to adopt the amendments to the charter.

They will give the OAS a structure resembling that of the United Nations. There are to be three councils each directly responsible to the inter-American conference (in future to meet every year). The existing council will be maintained as a political body; in addition there will be an economic and social council and a refurbished educational, scientific and cultural council.

Political Council

A discussion broke out in the plenary session about the functions of the political council, which might be called a shadow of the UN security council. The text of the act refers to powers "relative to the maintenance of peace and the peaceful settlement of disputes that may be assigned" to the council.

For Chile, Uruguay and Mexico these words seemed suddenly to evoke the repugnant ectoplasm of the inter-American peace force. Explaining his objections to a gathering bemused by the problem of voting positively on a negative issue (or vice versa) late on a Sunday night, the Chilean foreign minister said he wished to emphasize his disapproval of giving important new powers to the council through a clause approved at the drafting stage by a majority of one.

Mr. Dean Rusk played a subtle part. Unobtrusive as ever, the American secretary of state did the rounds of the dressing-rooms of the Latin tenors. From what could be gathered from whispering in the wings, it seems as if the United States had no intention of trying to force the OAS to create some form of effective, joint military machinery ready to take action against communist risings in the area.

At the same time Mr. Rusk obviously left no doubt about American vigilance. Both on and off the stage he recommended all the republics to beware of continuing subversion from Moscow, Hanava and Peking; especially the new Soviet emphasis on "popular fronts," an old-fashioned doctrine which, he said, the communists were now "dusting off" for use in Latin America.

Oddly enough, Senator Robert Kennedy was at the same time playing a sort of obbligato to Brazilian nationalism by criticizing some aspects of current American policy.

On a tour of five South American countries, Senator Kennedy may not have stayed long enough in Rio to learn that something of great potential significance was in fact going on at the Hotel Gloria: it was the second basic document passed by the conference, the "Economic-Social Act of Rio de Janerio."

Like so many international agreements, this is, of course, just a piece of paper. Nor, in its present general terms, can its implications be properly or fully estimated. On the surface, however, it looks as if Latin America has struck a unique bargain with the United States.

In exchange for political cooperation with Washington, Latin America will have a stronger voice in fixing the terms of economic assistance; and the American government binds itself to a far deeper and more truly inter-American alliance in the cause of progress and security:

Common Effort

"The principles of solidarity which inspire inter-American co-operation in the field of politics and mutual security ought necessarily also to be applied in the economic and social fields; thus the American republics (that is, including the United States) have resolved to join in a common effort to give their peoples the greater social justice, and accelerated and harmonious economic progress, indispensable to the security of the continent."

This second Act of Rio is perhaps the most modern document to have emerged from Latin America. In an area where nationalism is the strongest sentiment and is widely regarded as the highest virtue, its authors recognize that economic progress and healthy political development can be achieved only by reaching across frontiers, by mutual assistance, joint action and ultimately integration.

Europe Excluded

The act accepts the unity of the American continent and binds developing Latin America to developed North America more closely than ever before in the fluctuating history of Pan-Americanism. If—admittedly a very big "if"—this becomes reality, the door will be firmly shut for a long time to extraneous political influence from Europe and elsewhere.

There is a mention, naturally, that financial assistance will be welcome from countries outside the western hemisphere. But this is essentially an "American" program—even to the extent of United States acceptance of the constant plea of the raw material producers for more price stabilization agreements and a Prebisch-style revision of the terms of world trade in favor of the "have-nots."

Paragraph 25 of the act makes an astonishing leap forward: "Developed member countries" (the United States) which make tariff and other trade concessions to less developed countries (all of Latin America), "will not insist on reciprocity."

Is this the beginning of a revolution in international economic relations?

'Anti-Leadership Vaccine' Given to Best Students

WASHINGTON—A high proportion of the most gifted young Americans are being immunized against any tendencies toward leadership, says U.S. Welfare Secretary John W. Gardner.

Unless there is a change, Gardner wrote in an essay published this week, government will be making more and more of the decisions that should be made by private individuals.

Gardner's essay, The Anti-Leadership Vaccine, appears in the annual report of the Carnegie Corp. of New York. It was written before he left the educational foundation last August to join President Johnson's cabinet.

"The conditions of life in a modern, complex society are not conducive to the emergence of leaders," he wrote.

"The young person today is acutely aware of the fact that he is an anonymous member of a mass society, an individual lost among millions of others . . .

"This unfocused discouragement is of little consequence compared with the expert dissuasion the young person will encounter if he is sufficiently bright to attend college or university. In those institutions today, the best students are carefully schooled to avoid leadership responsibilities . . .

"Any question that cannot be dealt with by one of the special leadership groups . . . tends to end up being dealt with by government. Most Americans value the role played by non-governmental leadership in this country and wish it to continue."

Encouraging Literature In Prisons

By KARL E. MEYER
The Washington Post

LONDON—Universal causes no longer obsess Arthur Koestler, the laureate of political disillusion, who long ago lost faith in blueprints for total salvation of all mankind.

But at 60, the author of "Darkness at Noon" has taken up an eminently realizable cause that offers a modest hope for partial redemption of some outcasts everywhere. He hopes a similar movement will take root in America.

In 1962, Koestler established a writing award open to contestants who unwillingly qualified—the 34,000 inmates of Britain's prisons and Borstals. Total awards amount annually to $1,120 and the first prize is $70.

The response has been good, about 300 entries each year, but the publicity in one instance was embarrassing.

The first prize last year went to a Dartmoor prisoner named Don Robson for a novel that was subsequently published in London and praised by critics ("possessing a primitive drive, a crude, jagged sort of veracity").

Purloined Prose

But the prose was more crude than veracious; it had been largely purloined from an obscure American paperback, "Fires of Youth," by Charles Williams.

Koestler dismisses the episode with an indulgent shrug and turns the conversation to this year's third prize winner, a novel about the battle of Arnhem that Macmillan will publish this year.

The author of the "The Cauldron" is serving a life sentence at Wormwood Scrubs; he not only fought at Arnehm but was commissioned as a major in the field for his bravery.

The prisoner, Gerald T. LaMarque, was convicted in 1958 for the murder of a man who had been going with his mistress.

The concern with prisoners comes naturally to Koestler, who once remarked that he was qualified to write a Baedeker guide to European jails and concentration camps.

In France-controlled Seville during the Spanish Civil War, he was imprisoned for four months (three in solitary) before he was exchanged for a hostage. He had been under death sentence.

In 1939, he was interned again for four months in a French concentration camp as an "undesirable alien." Eventually he escaped via Portugal to Britain, where he served a final six weeks in Pentonville prison ("the most decent jail I have been in, though the plumbing leaves much to be desired.")

Senses Starve

"The worst part of prison is not simply confinement, it is the stimulus privation," Koestler says. "Every day is exactly alike, and the senses starve in a closed world.

"You can keep alive the spark of life only if there is something to look forward to, if there is some focus, some purpose, some task."

The aim of the Koestler award is to provide a stimulus. There is more than a cash incentive, all entrants have their work judged by the eminent in literature, art and music. Judges have included J. B. Priestly, V. S. Pritchett, Sir Kenneth Clark, Henry Green and Sir Arthur Bliss.

He concurs in feeling that a prize could be fittingly named for William Sydney Porter, who is 1898 was sentenced to five years on charges of embezzling bank funds. In prison, he turned seriously to short-story writing. He had fair success under the pen name O. Henry.

South Africa Today

A Nation Moves Towards Disaster

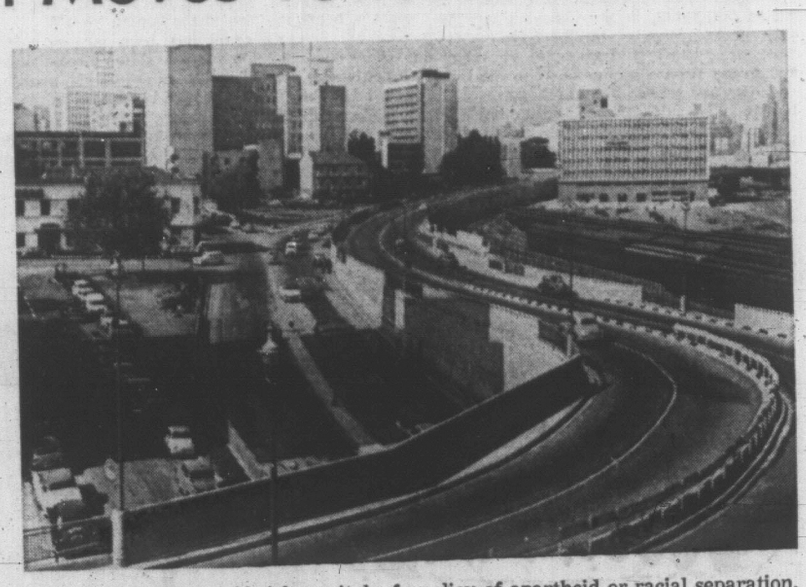

"Some people will say to you that there is no fear—that if you're a decent chap there's nothing to worry about here. But I know this fear goes very deep."

The speaker is Alan Paton, leader of South Africa's Liberal party and author of "Cry, the Beloved Country."

By JOSEPH MacSWEEN

Johannesburg, the gold-rich capital of South Africa, seems to have an air of tension to the first-time visitor. South Africa, the most highly industrialized nation of Africa, pursues an official policy of apartheid or racial separation. Many white South Africans are aware of the injustice and inconsistency of apartheid but can see no solution which would not wreck their own lives.

JOHANNESBURG — The white taxi driver, aware that his fare was a foreign visitor, volunteered replies to questions before they were asked.

"That's the railway station on your right—this side for the blacks, the other side for the whites," he said.

"It works fine. No fights, no arguments. It costs me £10 if I touch one of them. It's not worth it for £10. A few bob (shillings), maybe.

"We see them as children. You don't play with them. You're not too nice to them. They like it their way and we like it ours."

Deplored

Verwoerd and his lieutenants, however, would deplore the taxi driver's contemptuous terms—and perhaps also his conversational use of pounds and shillings, now displaced by Rand currency in South Africa.

It is the sort of anecdote that irritates many South Africans, who feel that foreign observers blacken the name of their country by relating only superficial and sensational aspects of apartheid.

The country's population of 17,473,000 is made up of 11 national groups—eight Bantu, or African, divisions totalling 11,915,000, a Colored (mixed blood) group of 1,703,000; 520,000 Asians and 3,335,000 whites

The official line is:

"Each group has a distinct identity of its own and a way of life determined by its language, culture, heritage, outlook and environment. Each group has evolved in its own way, according to its stage of development and particular way of life.

'Free Society'

"South Africa's answer to the problem of the peaceful co-existence of these different people is seen in the policy of separate development which makes it possible for the various groups to enjoy the full privileges of a free society each in their own area, unhampered by the strains imposed by a multi-racial society."

The Nationalist government's view is that the early Dutch settlers advanced into virtually empty country, eventually colliding with tribes migrating southward from Central Africa. The term Bantu derives from the related languages spoken by the tribes.

"The pattern of settlement in separate homelands, established in the early years, has been perpetuated up to the present day," says the government, noting that as far back as 1913 "traditional homelands" were reserved for the Bantu by statute.

White men made their own "homelands" the most highly-industrialized country in Africa but the Bantu preferred a subsistence economy, so that ultimately, as Verwoerd has said, the black man came to his pale-skinned countrymen for "employment, food and the good things of life." In such circumstances, the whites became "guardians" of the blacks

"Insofar as separate development involves continued control by the guardian over the wards, it is of a transitional nature only," says the government. Control would fall away as the Bantu advanced.

The grand strategy is the development of eight Bantu "homelands" and the first of these, the Transkei, opened for business at the end of 1963 with some internal self-government. The plan is that eventually the 7,500,000 Bantu now living in white areas will be drawn off to the homelands which would enjoy a measure of equality with the white fatherland.

A Fantasy

Critics describe the whole thing as a sham or a fantasy, stating that the Bantustans, often fragmented, comprise less than 14 per cent of the country's territory. Black population in white areas, deprived of rights, is increasing, not decreasing, because means of livelihood are lacking in the homelands.

Why was the policy adopted? The government quotes from a book by a former prime minister, the late Field Marshal Jan Christian Smuts, who said only separate development could ensure black order and save the "natives" from being swamped. Also, "the mixing of two such alien elements as white and black leads to unhappy social results—racial miscegenation, moral deterioration of both, racial antipathy and clashes, and to many other forms of social evil."

The program is accompanied by the growth of what has become known as "petty apartheid," notably in Johannesburg, the biggest city, where there are 711,600 Bantu out of a total population of 1,233,000.

Even Laundry

At one end of the apartheid scale is the Group Areas Act, which segregates whites and blacks in different residential districts, and at the other end the law stipulating that the whites' clothing must be laundered separately from those of the blacks.

As one resident put it, there are countless reminders for the black man that so long as he remains in the white man's territory, he will be a hewer of wood and a drawer of water."

The first-time visitor, having read about the killing of 67 Africans at nearby Sharpeville in 1960 and other brutalities may expect to find jack-booted police with rifles patrolling the streets.

This gold-rich city did not seem to have a tense air to one visitor arriving from black-African countries. However, the symbols of apartheid were not seen in tough cops but in numerous black-and-white signs stating in both official languages: whites—blankes, non-whites — nie blankes, and occasionally—on elevators — "non-Europeans and goods." Many white South Africans wince when they are asked about these restrictions.

Most Rev. Denis E. Hurley, Roman Catholic archbishop of Durban, said in his presidential address to the Institute of Race Relations that for 90 per cent of the whites the choice is simple: White domination or black domination.

An opponent of apartheid, the prelate mentioned how South Africans bitterly resent foreign criticism which they feel rises from "abysmal ignorance of the consequences of a change of policy." He vividly described the mood of his countrymen today.

Not Cruelty

The white South African didn't want to be cruel or unjust but merely to go on living "the way he likes in the country he loves."

"So day by day the rift grows deeper, the situation becomes more and more irremediable, anger grows in the hearts of non-whites, only to be matched by the stubborn determination of the whites not to yield an inch.

"Every warning that can be given has been given over and over again. There is nothing new to be said. The situation seems beyond human control, beyond human hope. By all the rules of human behavior, by every lesson drawn from human history, a situation so full of bitterness can only end in tragedy."

The Sauve Allegations Further Weaken Liberals

By DOUGLAS FISHER
Former NDP MP for Port Arthur

Allegations of election irregularities against Maurice Sauve, the minister of forestry, will certainly be the most explosive issue in the first weeks of the new Parliament.

Fisher

There are three possibilities that such ructions may be avoided;

Mr. Sauve may resign or be asked to resign from the cabinet;

The various allegations may become sub-judice through an action in the courts to unseat Mr. Sauve and to declare the contest in his home riding null and void, or Mr. Sauve may resign his seat at once, choosing either to withdraw from politics or to run again when the by-election is called.

The crucial point is that the Liberals cannot stand more embarrassment in Quebec, particularly involving one who was self-proclaimed as the "New Guard" leader.

The likely significance of the episode may take weeks to appear. Before I speculate on some of the probabilities, a summary of the impression the minister has made upon me and what electioneering is like in his riding may interest you.

The stock criticisms of Maurice Sauve are that he is too ruthless and too ambitious. Certainly, he is ruthless and brave, if one considers blunt, brutal, unconcealed talk about what he wants and what his opinions are on his colleagues.

I find the Sauve candor about his own worth attractive because it is so unscreened.

Immediately, on his first election in 1962, he knew what he wanted. Even when he became minister of forestry he did not try to hide the fact that he felt it a minor position, and one from which he must move on to a vital portfolio.

He hasn't really bothered to make the Commons a forum for his ambitions. Either he does not consider it necessary that he improve himself there or else he sees it as rather unimportant.

Mr. Sauve is not a native of his small, isolated riding. The Magdalene Islands have usually had MPs from the mainland. Much as in Nova Scotian seats, the contests are close, with 500 votes out of a total of around 5,000 being a large majority.

Obviously, so few voters in such a small, sequestered area present a situation where everyone knows everyone else, their foibles, intentions and prejudices. There are local ground rules for the political game which heighten the intensity of the rivalry.

It is not unnatural if less than honorable methods become the norm.

This Sauve situation makes the French leadership in the government more complicated. Most of the Quebec MPs are likely to be delighted at his discomfiture. The kingmakers like Dupuis and Rouleau are gone, ruined politically even before their creations for the leadership, Favreau and Lamontagne, have left the scene.

Jean Marchand is too green to become the leader immediately. Mr. Pearson must either keep Guy Favreau on as his Quebec deputy, do away with the post or take a flyer on someone like Jean-Luc Pepin (minister without portfolio).

Sauve's predicament is most dismaying to the left-wingers in the Liberal Party, whether English or French. Make no mistake about it: the government party is dispirited and demoralized. It is, in my opinion, even lower in morale than the Conservatives in the weeks before their House collapse of 1963.

The one rallying point seems to be a radical or progressive program. This is what the majority of MPs in the government are likely to want, but Walter Gordon is gone from the cabinet and Sauve seems in jeopardy.

Gordon was their natural leader. Already pressures are developing for him to play a major role in the Liberal caucus, even as a backbencher. The demand for this comes from those who see no one or anticipate no one in the present or a re-shuffled cabinet who believes in a leftish bent for the party, other than Sauve and perhaps Marchand.

The Liberal dilemma is real and the vacation of the PM has intensified it. Already the post-election inaction has exhilarated the opposition parties.

The sobriety of election night responsibility, dedicated to making this Parliament work, is giving way to a feeling that this government could be toppled. Mr. Sauve's problems tend to confirm such opposition anticipation.

THE GALLUP POLL

Few Can Define Inflation But Most Agree It's Bad

By The Canadian Institute of Public Opinion

Although a big majority of Canadians believe that inflation is dangerous, very few can explain exactly what it is. This is not surprising as even the Encyclopaedia Britannica claims "there is no single generally accepted definition of inflation."

Gallup Poll interviewers asked a scientific sample of the population to give their interpretation of the word inflation. Even among those who said inflation was dangerous, about a third would not try to define the word. (Depreciation of money is usually considered the most important single aspect of this economic disease.)

Only a small number associated inflation with a devalued dollar. They gave such answers as . . . "dollar devalued; dollar not worth as much; more dollars chasing too few goods; cost of goods greater than dollar value; too much money in circulation."

A majority of those who answered the question said . . . "too high prices; too high wages; cost of living too high; lack of purchasing power." The answers are considered inadequate because these things in themselves are not the cause of inflation.

But there is nothing hazy about the public's reaction to inflation. Nearly nine in ten adults say it is dangerous. The second question asked was: "Do you, yourself, think inflation is a dangerous thing or not?"

Chain Reaction . . . From Bombay to Medicine Hat

By RAM SUNDAR
Canadian Press Correspondent

BOMBAY (CP)—A chain reaction originating in the Canadian prairie town of Medicine Hat, Alta., has helped save an Indian boy from a serious heart condition and restore him to full health.

Canadians, Britons and Americans joined efforts to pave the way for 16-year-old Anil Kumar Rao of Secunderabad in south India to fly to New York for surgery to correct a heart defect.

The boy now is recuperating in the United States, where doctors say he should be able to return to India soon and take up the life of a completely normal boy.

Anil had been stricken with the heart condition almost since birth. It retarded his growth. At 16, he resembled a nine-year-old boy.

Someone told his father, Narayan Rao, a gasoline distributor, a trip to New York and consultation with doctors there might help. Rao had enough money, but only in rupees, not dollars. He applied to the Indian government for dollars but was told that the country was desperately short of foreign exchange.

Meanwhile, a member of the Lions Club of Medicine Hat heard about Anil and things really started moving. Medicine Hat collected $3,000 and arranged to fly Anil and his father to New York for the treatment.

On their way to New York, Anil and his father stopped over in London where they were met by a delegation of the British Lions Club. When they reached New York, the Bronx Lions Club took them into their fold. Club members visited Anil in hospital daily with flowers and gifts.

PGE CREWS RETURN

NORTH VANCOUVER (CP)—A 10-day walkout by Pacific Great Eastern Railway trainmen appeared to be ending Tuesday as crews booked back for work.

PGE officials said 20 men reported for work Tuesday in Prince George and 21 in North Vancouver.

At one time 123 men had reported sick, but a few came back during the walkout.

Labor Resolution Backs Johnson on Viet Nam War

SAN FRANCISCO (AP) — AFL-CIO leaders said today North Viet Nam is waging war as part of a Communist drive to destroy the United States and dominate the world.

The statement comes in a resolution pledging support for President Johnson in all measures he deems necessary to halt the Communists and win a lasting peace.

The resolution was presented for approval today by the nearly 1,000 delegates at the AFL-CIO convention.

Backed by AFL-CIO President George Meany, the resolution drew some reservations from the auto workers president, Walter Reuther, second most powerful man in the 13,000,000 - member federation. Reuther is reported to want greater emphasis on efforts toward peace negotiations in Viet Nam.

The resolution mentions U.S. efforts to bring about peace negotiations but places far greater emphasis on the Communist threat to world peace.

Prime mover in drafting the resolution was Jay Lovestone, the AFL-CIO's international affairs director who was a member of the Communist party until 1928.

'REBEL' GOT RESULTS

Village Lamplighter Honored by Kiwanis

Victoria Kiwanians honored a "rebel" Tuesday.

Ed Mallek, who one of his eulogizers said "fought opposition at all levels even within his club," was made a lifetime honorary member of the Kiwanis Club of Victoria.

Mr. Mallek was the prime mover behind the Kiwanis Village for senior citizens and the children's safety patrol.

30-YEAR MEMBER

Mr. Mallek, a member of the Victoria club for 30 years and owner of a Douglas Street clothing store, will be joining a Kiwanis club in Vancouver or Honolulu where he spends the greater part of his time.

Since a Kiwanian cannot belong to more than one club at once, he is resigning.

"He has been a great friend to me, to Kiwanis and to this city," he said.

A citation presented by Hugh Curtis, reeve of Saanich, proclaimed that "the entrance drive to Kiwanis Villa be dedicated and henceforth named Mallek's Drive."

PERSONAL TRIBUTE

"The recent completion of the million dollar village is a personal tribute to you."

(Kiwanis Village provides housing for 163 old people at a low cost. It was financed in half by Kiwanis.)

Another speaker said that Mallek "spent more time on the Kiwanis Village job than the foreman.

LAMPLIGHTER

"You can follow him by the lamps he has lighted."

In thanking his fellow Kiwanians, Mr. Mallek said he hoped there will always be "young rebels" in the club.

"This is not so much a tribute to me," he said, "but one to men who liked my ideas, who had the same ideas at the same time."

Mr. Mallek has held nearly all the offices in the Kiwanis organization from club director to district governor.

Disturbance Trial Adjourned

The trial of two men charged with causing a disturbance was adjourned Tuesday to Dec. 21.

Ralph and Robert Roy, 1543 Morley, were charged after police attended at that address early on the morning of Nov. 27.

Police gave evidence that they were shouting and abusive. But defence witnesses, members of the Roy family, testified that the only swearing was done by a policeman.

The two brothers, together with a third brother, Kenneth, are also charged with assaulting police. Trial on this charge will be held later.

AWE AIMS

Educate, Inform, Encourage

By ELIZABETH FORBES

In the days before the recent civic elections, the name of the Association of Women Electors was much in the news.

It was the A.W.E. that sponsored or co-sponsored several of the all-candidate meetings; that prepared questionnaires for candidates in each municipality and then had those questions and the answers mimeographed and distributed to the voting public.

It was also the A.W.E. that wrote the provincial minister of municipal affairs (with no success, however) requesting that the hospital referendum be delayed for several months until the public was better informed on this important matter.

Forbes

★ ★ ★

New Saanich councillor Edith Gunning, was first president of the association. Frances Elford, returned for a second term in Oak Bay, is a charter member. Lily Wilson, returned as a Victoria City alderman, is an A.W.E. member.

Mrs. H. L. MacKenzie, who ran for a one-year term in Victoria city, is also a charter member of the association.

This does not mean that the A.W.E. is a militant association solely dedicated to placing women on councils and school boards.

Its objects and policy are to educate and inform citizens concerning civic affairs; to encourage citizens to realize their responsibilities as voters and to arouse among women an active interest in municipal government.

It is strictly non-partisan, non-sectarian and non-money making. It receives no gifts of money or services to the association if acceptance of such gifts or services can in any manner be construed as tending to influence its activities or policies.

Each municipality has its own group with a chairman, working within the framework of the Greater Victoria body, with elected officers.

These groups meet once a month to discuss phases of civic government particularly affecting their own municipalities. Study circles are formed, knowledgeable speakers are invited to give their views and informed decisions are reached.

Where it is deemed sensible, civic and provincial leaders are approached with suggestions and constructive ideas.

Each group has an official observer who attends council meetings in her own district. These women are accredited and they receive council minutes and other pertinent material for study.

They report to the monthly meetings on matters that have been discussed by councils and they describe how decisions have been made.

Through this pattern of continuity, A.W.E. members keep in touch with various problems affecting their own districts and with the differetn ways in which elected council members approach and handle such matters. They also learn to talk intelligently on civic affairs.

Several times a year the association sponsors a public meeting on a subject vital to the Greater Victoria area.

These meetings have included amalgamation, air pollution, the library question, pornographic literature, parklands and recreation. Scheduled for the new year is discussion on schools and the powers of the school board.

The A.W.E. has only been functioning here for three years. Prior to its organization, a group of interested women from church, business and professional clubs and circles met regularly for many months to familiarize themselves with the Municipal Act and to decide on the proper functions and objects of such an association.

At present the group has a hard core of 166 dedicated members. To function properly, however, and to increase the prestige it has already won, it needs ten times this number of members, active or sustaining.

Any woman who is in sympathy with the objects and policy of the group is eligible to join. There is a small fee, simply to cover mimeographing of monthly bulletins and other printed material.

Strong Growth Trend Maintained

"This has been a challenging year for the Canadian banking system", said William M. Currie, President, addressing the 99th Annual Meeting of the Canadian Imperial Bank of Commerce.

PRESIDENT'S ADDRESS

This has been another good year for the Canadian economy. The strong growth trend to which we returned in 1961 has been maintained despite some initial concern as to its continuation for another year, and every region of the country has participated in full measure.

Momentum within the economy itself has had a great deal to do with this excellent performance as indicated by the sharp increase in capital investment, the continuing rise in output of the manufacturing industries and the high level of retail sales. We have had a bumper crop of wheat and markets are assured for virtually the entire harvest of about 700 million bushels. Of importance also has been the fact that economic conditions in our principal markets abroad turned out to be more favourable than had been anticipated so that demand for our exports continued to be strong. The United States enjoyed another impressive increase in output; Britain with international help weathered two serious financial crises, and growth rates picked up in most countries of continental Europe and in Japan.

Developments within Canada

On the domestic scene, our Gross National Product for the year as a whole is expected to exceed $51 billion. This would represent an increase over last year of some nine per cent in terms of current dollars and six per cent in terms of volume. Employment has continued to rise strongly, allowing for the usual seasonal fluctuations: total employment in October was over the seven million mark, the year-over-year increase being approximately 290,000. In October the margin of unemployment was estimated at 2.4 per cent of the labour force.

The personal sector of the economy which accounts for roughly two-thirds of the Gross National Product has been buoyant throughout the year. Rising personal incomes and the continuing increase in the use of consumer credit have been reflected in the demand for goods and services. Notably, sales of new automobiles in 1965 are expected to reach about 700,000 units, a striking advance from the 440,000 units sold in 1961.

The new wave of accelerated capital investment continues. In 1965, business investment in machinery and equipment and non-residential construction within the range of $7.5 billion will be 15 to 20 per cent higher than in 1964 and plans already announced suggest there may be a further increase next year. The expansion in capacity financed by this investment covers a broad range of activity from the resource-based industries to many types of secondary manufacturing and some of the plants will produce products which are either new in Canada or were produced previously on a limited scale. The 1965 estimate for total outlays of $2.8 billion in social capital projects also represents a sharp increase, over 20 per cent higher than last year. The investment in housing, amounting to approximately $2.3 billion, will be nearly 15 per cent above last year although the number of starts will show only a modest increase over the 1964 record of 166,000 starts.

Capital investment on this scale creates strong demands for resources. The flow of materials and equipment for the programme has been reasonably well maintained but there are warnings which suggest that shortages of engineering skills and skilled labour, in particular, may prevent the completion of the full programme planned for this year.

Turning to the government sector, both current and capital expenditures continue to increase with total outlays for goods and services by the three levels of government estimated to exceed $9 billion this year. Tax revenues and other forms of government collections are considerably higher because of the high level of economic activity. At the federal level, the administrative budget should be close to balance and in fact may show a small surplus.

International Trade

Looking abroad, our exports of merchandise, exclusive of wheat, were up about seven per cent through the first nine months of the year but the contraction in wheat shipments which followed completion of the deliveries to Russia under the 1963-1964 contract brought the overall increase in merchandise exports down to about 1.5 per cent. However, following the latest contracts with Russia and China, shipments of wheat are again on the advance and total merchandise exports for 1965 are expected to show an increase of about five per cent over the 1964 total of $8.3 billion. It is encouraging to see the continuing penetration of Canadian manufactured goods into foreign markets but this trend will have to be maintained in the years to come if the Canadian economy is to continue to support a high level of imports.

The rate at which we import persists as one of our most difficult and fundamental economic problems. This year our imports have risen at a faster rate than our exports with imports of merchandise for the first nine months of the year up 12 per cent over the corresponding period in 1964. The list of major increases in imports runs all the way from fabricated materials, machinery and equipment to a broad range of consumer goods, reflecting the acceleration in the pace of activity in manufacturing, the rise in capital investment and the high level of consumer demand. Of special note is the expansion in trade in automobiles and parts between Canada and the United States resulting from the recent agreement on conditional free trade in motor vehicles and original equipment parts. Comparing the first six months of this year with the same period in 1964, we find that our exports of automotive products to the United States increased from $37 million to $76 million while our imports of the same categories of goods from the United States increased from $387 million to $470 million. At the same time, our exports of automotive products to overseas countries increased by $45 million.

Balance of Payments

During this year a good deal of attention has been focused on the steps taken to bring about a sustained reduction in the overall deficit in the balance of payments of the United States. In February the Interest Equalization Tax, applicable since July 1963 to most transactions in longer-term foreign securities by United States citizens, was extended to apply to commercial bank loans, with maturities of one year or more, advanced to foreign borrowers in developed countries. In addition, all commercial banks doing business in the United States were requested to co-operate in a voluntary programme to cut back their lending abroad and business corporations were enlisted in a national campaign to limit their direct foreign investments, their deposits in foreign banks and their holdings of other foreign financial assets. These measures, designed primarily as a means of limiting the mounting outflow of dollars to Western Europe, have been reasonably effective in the short run but it is too soon yet to evaluate their longer-run effects on domestic and foreign business. Because of the increasingly integrated world environment in which we live, there have also been repercussions in countries outside Western Europe.

Canada has been recognized as meriting special consideration in the application of the United States balance of payments measures because the capital markets of the two countries are so closely interconnected and because exports of United States capital to Canada are normally required to finance a substantial proportion of the annual Canadian current account deficit with the United States. For this reason, the Interest Equalization Tax has not been applied so far to new issues of Canadian securities. In return for this exemption, it was understood between the two countries that our official holdings of gold and United States dollars would not be permitted to rise appreciably above their July 1963 level while the Interest Equalization Tax remained in effect. However, any undertaking to maintain a ceiling on official reserves has the effect of tying the Canadian interest rate structure more closely to that of the United States, thus restricting to some extent the flexibility of Canadian monetary policy. Otherwise we would probably have seen a somewhat stronger rise in interest rates before the 6th December increases in the United States Federal Reserve rediscount rate and the Canadian Bank Rate. This would have been rather more characteristic of a period of high activity when pressures on capacity, materials and labour are increasing within the economy and the deficit in the current account of our balance of payments is higher.

It is clear from an analysis of the full range of transactions between Canada and the United States that Canada has made a substantial contribution to the improvement in the United States balance of payments position. Traditionally, the value of Canadian imports of goods and services from the United States has exceeded the value of Canadian exports to that country and in recent years the margin in favour of the United States has increased. In 1963 total current payments by Canada to the United States for merchandise imports and all other current account payments amounted to over $6.5 billion. This exceeded the value of current receipts from the United States by $1.2 billion. The margin in favour of the United States increased in 1964 to over $1.6 billion and there has been a further increase in 1965. Trade with Canada in goods and services has thus been an important factor in increasing the surplus in the current account of the United States balance of payments and reducing that country's overall deficit.

Stated in the simplest terms, the United States dollars required by Canada to cover our current account deficit with the United States have come from two main sources: the surplus earned in our current transactions with other countries and substantial net inflows of short-term and long-term capital from the United States. This capital is either invested directly by United States citizens and corporations in Canada or borrowed by Canadians in United States financial markets. In 1965 the intake of long-term capital from the United States continued without interruption from the proceeds of new security issues marketed in the United States and from direct investment, there being no official directives or restrictions pertaining to the outflow in 1965 of such capital from the United States to Canada. The situation respecting the supply of short-term capital, however, has undergone a marked change since February when United States citizens and corporations, in response to the President's measures to improve the United States balance of payments, began to draw down United States dollar balances carried in the Canadian chartered banks and to realize on funds invested in the Canadian short-term money market. In the result, the net outflow of short-term capital from Canada to the United States during the first half of 1965 amounted to $339 million, largely offsetting the net inflow of long-term capital from the United States which amounted to $367 million during the same period.

It was therefore necessary to finance a very large part of Canada's current account deficit with the United States, which amounted to over $1 billion during the first half of this year, by employing substantial and unusual net inflows of short-term capital from overseas countries. Some $715 million in United States dollars were obtained in this way.

Operations of the Chartered Banks

This movement of short-term funds to meet obligations with the United States was accomplished primarily through the foreign currency operations of the Canadian chartered banks. A substantial volume of United States funds became available through the banking system to help meet the current account deficit with the United States and to finance the sharp reduction in the deposits of United States residents in Canadian banks. In the latter connection, it is significant that there has been very little net liquidation of assets held by the Canadian banks in the United States in order to meet the withdrawal of these deposits. Otherwise, the improvement in the United States balance of payments from this source would have been illusory.

This has been a challenging year for the Canadian banking system at home. Requirements for credit to finance the high level of business activity have shown steady increases while at the same time the supply of short-term funds normally available in the United States has been curtailed. In addition, the understanding with the United States as to the ceiling on Canada's official reserves has imposed certain limitations on the use of interest rates in situations calling for restraint.

In part the demand for funds to finance the higher level of consumer expenditures and capital investment has been met from the stronger flow of personal income and from Canadian corporate earnings. There has also been a comparatively substantial increase in the Canadian money supply amounting to about 13 per cent over the year. The volume of credit outstanding is considerably higher than a year ago, and credit facilities generally are under more pressure. At the end of October the general loans of the Canadian chartered banks were up about 17 per cent and exceeded $9.5 billion while the more liquid assets of the banks remained at about the same level as they were a year ago. Thus, for the banking system as a whole, the ratio of more liquid assets to total Canadian dollar deposit liabilities has declined. In these terms, the liquidity ratio of the chartered banks was about 30.5 per cent at the end of October this year compared with 33 per cent a year earlier.

Outlook for Next Year

As we approach 1966 the favourable aspects of 1965 are still clearly in evidence on every hand. The rise in output has been accomplished in an orderly way and the benefits are well spread out across the country. There are, however, signs of increasing pressures which are chiefly associated with the extent of this comparatively long period of prosperity. These pressures are showing up in higher prices for services, shortages of skilled manpower, lengthening delivery dates for certain types of materials and equipment, and tightness in the money market. Costs of production are creeping up, with labour costs per unit of output running about three per cent higher than a year ago. While the outlook remains encouraging, we shall be well advised to give heed to the mounting pressures on costs and prices if we are to retain the advantages gained in four consecutive years of impressive growth.

The balance of the increase in total assets was centred chiefly in loans, which rose by $550,000,000 from $2,400,000,000 to $2,950,000,000. This increase of 23% in total loans was distributed through practically all categories of borrowers, both large and small, and reflected the active pace of the economy throughout the year.

Bank Premises at $73,000,000 showed a modest increase after depreciation. During the year there was a net increase of 41 banking offices, including 7 new offices outside Canada. At the year-end there were 1,375 offices in all, of which 40 were located in countries other than Canada.

Total deposits rose by $667,000,000 to $5,637,000,000, an increase of 13.4%. Of this increase, $175,000,000 occurred in personal savings deposits and there was also a gratifying increase in the numbers of savings bank depositors. In the category of Other Deposits, which includes other Canadian deposits payable after notice, Canadian demand deposits and other deposits in foreign currencies, an increase of $193,000,000 was recorded. Deposits by other banks, by the Government of Canada and by Canadian Provincial Governments rose by a total of $298,000,000.

Rest Account increased by $35,000,000 over the preceding year-end and now stands at $240,000,000. Further reference to this increase will be made later in this report.

Turning now to the Statement of Revenue, Expenses and Undivided Profits, it will be observed that this year the Statement has been drawn up to show in some detail the principal categories of earnings and expenses.

Total revenue was $287,706,839, an increase of over $32,000,000, or 12.6%. From the breakdown of revenues shown on this statement, it will be seen that income from loans accounted for the largest proportion of this increase and this, of course, reflected the substantial rise in the total of advances during the past year.

As noted at the foot of the Statement of Revenue, Expenses and Undivided Profits, the amounts of income from loans and securities are stated after making transfers to inner reserves, that is, provisions for bad debts and/or other losses, out of which full provision has been made for diminution in value of loans and investments.

Total expenses were $241,802,981, an increase of $29,000,000, or 13.6%. Of this increase, approximately $21,000,000 was accounted for by higher interest costs reflecting both the substantial increase in total deposits during the past year and also the upward trend in rates of interest on certain categories of deposits.

A further $5,300,000 of the increase was in salaries, pension fund and other personnel benefits.

Property Expenses and Other Operating Expenses increased by approximately $1,400,000 and $1,000,000 respectively.

Balance of Revenue totalled $45,900,000 and after deduction of income taxes in the amount of $22,600,000, there remained a balance of profits for the year of $23,303,858, an increase of $1,901,256 over 1964. Earnings per share were $3.34 as compared with $3.07 for the previous year.

Dividends paid were at the rate of $2.45 per share as compared with $2.25 in 1964 and dividend payments totalled $17,071,600, an increase of $1,393,600 over last year.

After deduction of dividends paid there remained an amount to be carried forward of $6,232,258 to which has been added $3,088,867 being the balance of Undivided Profits at the beginning of the year, and $28,000,000 transferred from inner reserves. This latter sum arises mainly from gains on the investment over a period of years of shareholders' funds in the shares of other companies and does not derive from normal banking earnings; hence it should be regarded as non-recurrent.

The sum of $35,000,000 has been transferred to Rest Account leaving a balance of Undivided Profits at the end of the year of $2,321,125.

The Statement of Rest Account shows a balance at the end of the year of $240,000,000.

This completes the review of the Bank's 99th Annual Statement. It remains to be said, however, that the progress reported was made possible only by the combined efforts of all the men and women who are our personnel and who, at every level, have demonstrated qualities of ability, devotion to duty and pride in the institution which augur well for the future. To these people General Management extends congratulations on their accomplishments during the past year and best wishes in their efforts to achieve high goals in the year that lies ahead.

CANADA URGES

'Go to UN at Last Resort'

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada urged the United Nations Tuesday to explore use of regional organizations for the peaceful settlement of disputes.

Paul Beaulieu, Canada's ambassador to Brazil and a delegate to the UN, said it should not be forgotten the UN charter specifically enjoins member states to seek a solution of their disputes "first of all" by various means, including "resort to reasonable agencies or arrangements."

Addressing the General Assembly's special committee during a debate on the peaceful settlement of disputes, Beaulieu said "sometimes in our anxiety to bring disputes before the United Nations we may overlook this wise porvision of the charter."

But, the ambassador stressed, the UN cannot be indifferent to disputes between member states, whether or not they are taken in hand by resort to machinery outside the UN framework.

The special political committee was considering a British draft resolution on the peaceful settlement of disputes, co-sponsored by 15 countries, including Canada and the United States.

The draft would have the 117-nation General Asembly establish a committee to study the question.

BUSINESS VIEWS

Drumbeater Draws Empty Hand

By JIM HUME
Business Editor

Joe McKinnon, chief B.C. drumbeater for Expo 67, was hardly a raving success when he made a lunch-break whistle-stop in Victoria earlier this week.

It was Mr. McKinnon's intention to convince a small gaggle of capital city businessmen that it would be a wise thing to buy a minimum of $1,000 worth of Expo 67 tickets — in the form of passports— and re-sell them as part of a store promotion.

Hume

Only four people turned up for the slide-talk presentation. Maybe they were acting coy, but no members of the quartet leaped to sign contracts.

By buying tickets in bulk now the storekeeper, service club, women's organizations or what have you can get $2.50 a day passes for $1.80, week-long passes that will sell for $12 come opening day for $5, and $35 season passes for $16.

The savings on opening day prices are to be passed on to early purchasers of Expo tickets.

Saving of $15

For example, the season pass that costs $35 at the gate opening day will sell for $20 retail, if purchased between Jan. 12 and July 31, 1966. The seller buying at $16 makes $4 profit. From Aug. 1 to Dec. 31, 1966, the $35 season pass sells for $22.50 retail, $19.50 wholesale—a $3 profit.

So the sooner you buy the bigger the profit.

While wishing Mr. McKinnon and Expo luck, the picture doesn't look too rosy in Victoria.

The only thing I couldn't understand on the Expo advance ticket pitch was the section of the contract which holds all wholesale purchasers to a fixed retail price — but permits the purchaser, if he so desires, to give the tickets away as a promotion gimmick.

For example a seven day pass sold between Jan. 12 and July 31, 1966, has a fixed retail price of $6.50. The store pushing the tickets can give the tickets away—"buy two tom turkeys and get a week's pass to Expo 67 free"—but the same store is forbidden to reduce the $6.50 price.

Move to Edmonton

More than 100 Empress employees took time out this week to wave fond farewells to assistant manager Norman Kennedy who is heading for colder climes but, we hope, better things in Edmonton.

Mr. Kennedy, with the Empress for eight years, is moving to the new CPR hotel the Chateau Lacombe a 24-storey air-conditioned establishment built in the round.

Mr. Kennedy's new post is that of executive assistant to the manager.

As such he may find himself running into cool reception from the staff of the Edmonton Journal. The Chateau Lacombe is built on the side of Bellamy Hill directly across from the newspaper building. Prior to construction the publisher had a fine view of the North Saskatchewan River valley. Now he's just about level with the seventh storey of the Chateau.

Times change and ivory towers crumble.

$40 Million Industrial Complex

MONTREAL, Quebec — Plans to develop a $40,000,000 industrial park complex in Lachine, Quebec, were revealed today with the formation of Summerlea Industrial Park Ltd. by three major Canadian companies—Canadian Pacific, Standard Life and Taylor Woodrow of Canada.

Summerlea Industrial Park Ltd. is a joint venture of Marathon Realty Company Ltd. a wholly-owned subsidiary of Canadian Pacific Investments and Canadian S.T.W. Developments Ltd., jointly owned by Standard Life Assurance Company, one of Canada's oldest insurance companies, and Taylor Woodrow of Canada Ltd., a member of a worldwide group of construction companies.

The area involved in this projected industrial development is considered one of the finest in the Montreal area. Comprising in excess of 150 acres of fully serviced land including power, water, sewers, roads and rail lines, it extends from Cote de Liesse north to Routes 2 and 17 on the south along 55th Avenue. Both railway and truck services are adjacent to the area with direct connection to major traffic arteries. It is also within minutes of Montreal's international airport at Dorval.

COMPLETE PACKAGE

"Through the combined operations of our companies, Summerlea industrial park can provide prospective tenants in this area with a complete "package" including site, engineering design, construction and financing for any project they require," James P. Lockett, president of the new company, commented.

"We are actively negotiating at the present time with several firms, through Roy S. Jones, manager of Summerlea, and expect to be able to announce our first tenant very shortly," Lockett added.

"The potential of this area for industry has long been recognized and, through the formation of this new company, we believe it can be developed most efficiently from the standpoint of any firm seeking new facilities, expanded operations or planning to relocate," F. V. Stone, president of Marathon Realty Company Limited stated.

Home Oil Buys Power Shares

CALGARY (CP) — Home Oil Co. Ltd. has acquired about 500,000 shares in Calgary Power Ltd., R. A. Brown Jr., Home Oil president, said last week.

The purchase makes Home Oil owner of the biggest single blod of shares in Calgary Power. It was carried out over the last few months, Mr. Brown said. He did not reveal the purchase price.

Calgary power stock has risen from about $24 early in September to more than $27 currently. A total of 5,250,000 shares have been issued.

Another Calgary company is reported to have bought more than 100,000 shares in recent trading.

Car Production In November Up

OTTAWA (CP) — Production of motor vehicles in November was 53 per cent higher than in November of last year, jumping to 92,393 units from 60,407.

A Dominion Bureau of Statistics report said this put January - November production at 764,566 units, a gain of 23 per cent from the 622,592 units produced in the same period of 1964.

Promoter Released On Parole

VANCOUVER (CP) — George Caldough, "boy promoter" sentenced to six years in 1962 for his part in a giant stock promotion fraud, has been released on parole.

B. Kyle Stevenson, representative of the National Parole Board, announced Tuesday that Caldough, a roly-poly little man who liked bowler hats, gloves and a cane and who had a way of attracting publicity, was released from William Head Prison Dec. 9.

Caldough's bid for parole was rejected recently. But two days later, affer a review by the parole board, it was approved.

Caldough, then 34, was sentenced for his part in an operation in which investors from Florida to California were bilked of about $400,000.

"You have been found guilty of taking part in a gigantic swindle, of common cheating, which is one of the lowest forms of human behavior," Mr. Justice H. A. McLean said in passing sentence.

Caldough bounced into the headlines in 1959 as a beaming financier. He had a $70,000 home in plush British Properties. He was dickering to buy the $100,000 yacht of Errol Flynn when the actor died here.

DEFENDED SELF

To bring Caldough to trial the B.C. government had to extradite him from Britain. He defended himself in his two trials and managed to promote newspaper space by his infectious humor inside and outside court.

Even from jail he attracted attention. From Oakalla prison he once wrote to a friend: "I enjoy the life I am stuck with."

"I am still firmly convinced that there are more people on the outside living in prisons of their own making — dead-end jobs, dreary lives, etc."

He complained he had no mail from his former society friends.

"It was apparently very hip, a year ago, to receive notes from Brixton Jail (in London) signed George Caldough. This was an 'in' symbol. Oakalla, however, is 'out'."

The letter was published.

It is reported Caldough has gone to join his family in Eastern Canada.

30-Day Term For Assault Of Officers

PRINCE GEORGE (CP) Walter James Walters, a professional boxer, was sentenced to 30 days Tuesday after being convicted of assaulting two RCMP officers, breaking one of the constable's arms.

Magistrate G. O. Stewart said he hesitated to impose a lesser penalty, such as a fine, because some person might think it was a small price to assault another.

"There are lots of people in Prince George who might think it worth $25 to break a policeman's arm."

Walters was stopped for speeding Oct. 31. He testified he "got a little mad" when one of the constables charged that he stole the car.

He said Constable Gary Sisterson, who had made the stolen car charge, told him to get into the police car and grabbed him by the shoulder.

"I hit him. Then (Const. Dennis) Ratcliffe jumped on my back.

"I threw him down and said 'Okay, that's enough, I'll go down to the police station.'"

Civil Service Holidays Clarified

Provincial civil servants will have Friday off before New Yeear but will work the following Monday.

An erroneous report in The Times said they would work Friday and have Monday off.

Only the provincial museum, in the east wing of the Parliament Buildings, will be excepted. It will be open to the public between 1 and 5 p.m. Sunday, Jan. 2.

The museum will be closed during the four-day Christmas holiday including Friday, Dec 24 and Monday, Dec. 27.

Judge Reserves Decision In B.C. Vote Hearing

MERRITT, B.C. (CP) — Mr. Justice J. G. Ruttan Tuesday reserved decision on a petition to upset a 1963 British Columbia election result in Yale constituency.

Irvine Corbett, Social Credit member of the legislature from 1952 until he was defeated in 1963, seeks to set aside the election of William Hartley of the New Democratic Party.

He alleged in two days of hearings irregularities in the voting that saw him elected with a four-vote majority after preliminary counting election night.

Mr. Hartley was declared elected by a majority of six after a judicial recount.

The petition was signed by four registered voters of the constituency. It cited instances of irregularities such as uncounted votes and unregistered voters.

All parties including the Supreme Court justice emphasized the hearing concerned the conduct of returning officers and not the parties or candidates involved.

If Mr. Justice Ruttan finds that there were voting irregularities and they were sufficient to influence the outcome of the election, a new election will be ordered. It must be held within six months of his decision.

Youth Committed To Riverview

A 17-year-old youth charged in connection with the axe-slaying of five members of a Vancouver family was committed to Riverview mental hospital by a provincial cabinet order Tuesday.

Attorney-General Robert Bonner later explained the action was based on a psychiatric report that the youth was mentally unfit to stand trial at the present time.

Psychiatric examination showed he was not competent to instruct a lawyer for his defence.

He will be detained at Riverview until further cabinet order but the charges still stand.

The youth was charged with "committing a delinquency, to wit, five counts of capital murder."

Osborne Kosbert, his wife Dorothy and children, Barry, 15; Gayle, 11, and Vincent, 2, were hacked to death Dec. 10 in their Vancouver home. All were believed asleep at the time.

Another daughter, Marianne, 13, was severely injured and required surgery. A six-months-old baby was not injured.

The boy was described from those associated with him in the past as a "nice kid" with a history of mental disturbance.

Delegates Toast Season

Greater Victoria delegates to intermunicipal committee Tuesday toasted the season and each other with glasses of sherry in what has become an annual tradition.

It is customary to brighten the regular routine—the last meeting of the year—with a glass of wine and piece of Christmas cake.

The practice was introduced by Oak Bay and was carried on this year by Saanich where the committee met in the new municipal hall for the first time.

The committee said goodbye to two retiring members, Esquimalt Reeve A. C. Wurtele, who leaves the municipal field, and Victoria Ald. M. H. Mooney, whose council term expires and who lost his bid to be mayor.

A third delegate who will appear no more is Mayor R. B. Wilson, who also retires, and who was prevented from being at the meeting by the sudden recurrence of a chronic back ailment.

2,000 B.C. SCHOOL DESKS FOR PANAMA

VANCOUVER (CP) — Two thousand elementary school desks retired from active service here will befurbished and shipped to Panama.

Ray Sheward, a district councillor for the Lions International Service Club, said Tuesday the desks will be purchased from the Vancouver School Board for Panamanian schools that cannot afford desks.

He said the project is being financed by Lions Club members from British Columbia, Washington and Idaho.

Mr. Sheward said the desks will cost $2 each, and shipping costs to Panama will be about $3 a desk.

OIL RIG

Survivor Battered By Waves

MANILA (UPI)—A 25-year-old Canadian told today how he survived 16 harrowing hours in the South China Sea, battered by 20-foot waves and scorched by the sun, after an oil drilling platform sank in a storm.

Ernest J. McKeever, of Calgary, was the sole survivor of the Dec. 1 tragedy which took the lives of 13 companions.

McKeever said he was playing cards with three others in the cabin of the $8 million Shell Oil Co. barge when "suddenly there was a loud noise and everything went topsy-turvy."

"Everyone was running in different directions. I ran into the galley. In the matter of a few seconds everything seemed to be falling apart . . .

"I crawled out of the galley door and the next thing I knew I was in the water."

McKeever said he took off his clothes so he could swim more easily.

Gale winds of 40 to 50 miles an hour and high seas battered him throughout the night, but he managed to keep afloat by using a four-foot piece of wreckage as a raft.

During the night he caught sight of the lights of a tug which had been pulling the barge, but lost them in the murk.

"On at least two occasions a fish of some variety took several small bites at me," McKeever said. "It was terrifying."

McKeever was rescued by the tug about noon the following day.

"I could see the top section of the boat but I still could not believe my eyes," he said. "I thought I was seeing things, that it was just an illusion.

"Then I saw the tug pull alongside. I remember the whole crew was leaning over and I could see all their hands stretched out."

U.K. Pay TV System Starts Jan. 7

LONDON (AP) — Britain's first pay-television system will begin Jan. 7, showing mainly feature films and sports events.

An Evening with the Royal Ballet, starring Margot Fonteyn and Rudolf Nureyev, also is scheduled.

Pay-television will start initially in the London boroughs of Westminster and Southwark with 2,000 to 3,000 subscribers. By late summer Pay-TV Ltd. hopes to have 10,000.

Its chairman, Lord Brabourne, said there is a sound basis for a pay-television system in Britain since it has the biggest television relay system by wire outside Russia. More than 1,000,00 British homes receive television by relay services.

Subscribers will insert two-shilling (30-cent) coins into a box attached to their TV set. A feature film will cost six shillings.

"We will be very happy if the average subscriber spends about 10 shillings ($1.50) a week," said Lord Brabourne. "We shall be putting out 50 hours of programs a week but we expect our subscribers to be selective viewers."

'MOOR MURDERS'

Dead Girl's Pictures In Suitcase

HYDE, England (Reuters)—A police chief said today he found nine pictures of a naked little girl in a suitcase containing envelopes addressed to the man accused of her murder.

Supt. Robert Talbot was testifying at the hearing of murder charges against Ian Brady, 27, and his blonde girl friend, Myra Hindley, 23.

Both are accused of murdering Lesley Ann Downey, 10, whose body was found buried on the moors near here, and Edward Evans, 17. Brady also is charged with murdering another child found buried on the moors, 12-year-old John Kilbride.

For eight days the court here has been hearing evidence on whether they should face trial.

TOLD OF WINE-DRINKING

Witnesses have told of wine-drinking parties held by Brady, said to have been a student of books by the Marquis de Sade, from whose name the word sadism is derived.

Talbot said two suitcases were left at the railway station in nearby Manchester in October. They contained the envelopes, an album of photographs, 170 prints, 149 negatives, and a number of tape recordings.

The photographs included nine pictures of the little girl, clad only in socks and shoes and with a scarf around her mouth, in various poses. Other pictures were of the moors, some of them with Brady or Hindley in the foreground.

The court went into closed session to hear the tape recordings.

Proud but Unsympathetic Leafs Overwhelm Blades

Los Angeles 1, Maple Leafs 5

By ERNIE FEDORUK

That seems to be one of the proud points Victoria Maple Leafs hammered out at Memorial Arena Tuesday night as they engineered a 5-1 Western Hockey League triumph over the Los Angeles Blades.

More often than not, the fan's praise of a goal scored is restricted to manouevres only in the attacking zone. But the player, begging your pardon, may prefer to applaud a move at the extreme end of the ice.

The player and the fan may also have further differences about the importance of each game.

Take Tuesday's, for instance.

It would not be out of line to suggest that many of Victoria's fans didn't really expect to see their Leafs high-ball it to an easy victory. After all, the Leafs' defensive muscle was reduced to three regulars and, in addition, last-place Los Angeles needed Tuesday's two points more than the first-place Victorians.

The Leafs, proud but very unsympathetic about Los Angeles' fortunes, were not prepared to give anything away.

Millie, Lou Had Hot Sticks

All circumstances considered, it was a standout defensive showing. That's why it may take a little time today before it will be mentioned that two players—Lou Jankowski (3) and Milan Marcetta (2)—looked after all the goal-scoring for Victoria.

Normally, a three-goal effort in professional hockey automatically would draw all the important superlatives.

Sorry, it isn't automatic today.

Missing the services of Aut Erickson and Claude Labrosse, and with winger Mike Labadie on the limp, the Leafs mixed pride and determination with excellent play to produce a victory that nudged Victoria eight points ahead of second-place Portland.

The fact that Ray LaRose scored Blades' only goal on a freak long shot is ample evidence of Victoria's staunch two-way efforts.

Crazy Bounce Cost Al Shutout

LaRose's shot, fired from centre ice, was a lazy lob that Victoria's Al Millar lost momentarily. When Scoop did pick it up again, the puck took a change-of-direction bounce into the Victoria goal.

LOU JANKOWSKI

The Blades, realizing where there may be a weakness, started with a rush. But for friendly pipes behind Millar, the game might have had a different ending.

Norm Johnson fired a sharp-angled shot at the Victoria goal only two minutes after the opening whistle. Millar was beaten on the play, but the puck bounced off the piping.

A minute later Blades' Cliff Pennington had a glorious chance with Millar flat on his back during a wild scramble in front of the Victoria goal. Pennington's quick shot bounced off the other post.

Bill Shvetz Had 'Em Cringing

Then succeding minutes after Pennington' near-miss belonged to Bill Shvetz. He tendered crunching body-checks on Leo Labine, Howie Young and Bob Wilson. For good measure, Sandy Hucul caught Johnson looking the wrong way during that same period and the complexion of the game promptly changed.

The Leafs gradually but forcefully took over.

TORONTO (UPI) — Defenceman Larry Hillman and Darryl Sly have been recalled from Rochester of the American Hockey League by the Toronto Maple Leafs.

Both newcomers will dress for tonight's game against the Detroit Red Wings.

KANSAS CITY PLAYER DIES AFTER SURGERY

He was injured Sunday when tackled in the American Football League game between the Chiefs and Buffalo Bills in Buffalo.

"He went into convulsions following the operation," a hospital spokesman said. Hill died 1½ hours after the operation.

After an autopsy Tuesday, doctors said Hill suffered "a sudden and massive embolism blood clot after surgery."

Hill was the third professional football player—all in the American League—to die of game-related injuries in recent years.

In September, 1963, Stone Johnson, 23, of Dallas, Tex., a rookie back with the Chiefs, died 10 days after he suffered a broken neck in an exhibition game. Howard Glenn, a guard for the old New York Titans, died in October, 1960, of a broken neck suffered in a game against Houston Oilers.

Christmas Spirit? Phooey, Says Sid

If Toronto Maple Leafs want to wish their fans the best of the season, they should put it in an envelope and not mess up the ice.

He has protested to National Hockey League president Clarence Campbell, the four-foot high lettering SEASON'S GREETINGS the Leafs painted across centre ice at the Gardens.

Abel believes the puck will be obscured when it is played across the dark green letters. The Leafs say they had Campbell's permission. He plans to check the matter when the teams meet tonight.

Junior Puckmen Flirt With Upset, Just Miss

TORONTO (CP)—A team of all stars from the Ontario Hockey Association Junior A series, bolstered by a senior goaltender from Fort William, stole a page from Russia's hockey book and came close to pulling an upset Tuesday night.

The all-stars lost 4-3 to the touring Russian national team, but not before throwing a scare into their opponents by skating and passing their way to a 3-1 lead in the first period.

The victory was Russia's third in its eight-game tour of Canada. The Russians defeated Canada's national team 4-0 and 8-6 in their first two games and play Montreal Junior Canadiens of the OHA Junior A series tonight in Montreal.

The Junior Habs will be bolstered by some of their graduates, among them goaltender Jacques Plante who retired last season after a National Hockey League career with Montreal Canadiens and New York Rangers.

Before Tuesday night's game OHA coach Gus Bodnar, another former NHL star, said his team would use a favorite European tactic by controlling the puck and carrying it into Russia's zone to set up chances close in.

Sparked by defenceman Bobby Orr of Oshawa Generals and forwards Andre Lacroix and Danny Grant of Peterborough Petes, the OHA team did exactly that and had the Russians befuddled through the first period.

OUT OF STEAM

But the Canadians ran out of steam in the second period and the Russians broke loose in a strong display of skating and passing that turned the tide before a crowd of 14,886.

The line of Boris Maiorov, Anatole Firsov and Vyacheslav Starshinov accounted for three of the Russian goals, each player scoring once and assisting twice.

But the winning goal was scored by Konstantin Loktev at 7:59 of the third period from a goalmouth scramble. After that the Russians went into a defensive shell that the OHA team was unable to penetrate with any success.

Maiorov opened the scoring early in the first period, but the all-stars bounced back with goals by Ted Snell of Niagara Falls Flyers, Grant and Lacroix, the top scorer in the Junior A OHA with 16 goals and 37 assists. The Russians, caught flat-footed by the Canadian team's hard skating, were forced into several mistakes during the period.

But the touring team recovered in the second and held a wide edge despite picking up four penalties to one for the OHA squad. Goaltender Joey Bamford, picked up by the all-stars from Fort William Beavers of the Thunder Bay League, was brilliant in the second, allowing just one goal as Russia fired 19 shots his way. Bamford held Russia to a 3-3 tie in Fort William during their tour last season.

TIED IT UP

Firsov scored the only goal of the second to make it 3-2 and the Russians, displaying their usual precision passing, tied it early in the third, when Starshinov scored on a rebound.

That set the stage for Loktev's winning effort which came after Russian goalie Victor Konovalenko made a series of point-blank stops against Lacroix.

Orr, who set up the first goal, said after the game that he never saw passing as accurate as that of the Russians. He said the passing plays were "just fantastic."

Russian coach Arkady Tchernishov lauded the Canadian team's speed and stick handling, but said the juniors were tired in the third period.

He had no complaints about the refereeing. Russia picked up seven of the 12 minor penalties and outshot the all-stars 35-30.

LEAFS ARE READY

Finger of Suspicion Pointing at Ahearne

TORONTO (CP) — John Bassett, chairman of the board of Maple Leaf Gardens, says Toronto Maple Leafs of the National Hockey League are ready to play the Russian national team "any time, any place."

Bassett, in an interview here, said it is not the NHL which is holding up such a game.

"It is Bunny Ahearne, president of the International Amateur Ice Hockey Federation. He will not allow the Russians or any other amateur teams to play a professional club. He wouldn't allow NHL players to conduct a clinic in European countries."

"The Leafs don't care where the game is played," Bassett said. "If they want to play it in Russia, the Maple Leafs will go, providing they pay our expenses. Of course we would like to play in Maple Leaf Gardens, especially now since the Russian team is on tour in Canada. But Mr. Ahearne, it seems, will not allow it."

Alexander Ragulin, a giant Russian defenceman said to be of NHL calibre, says he would like to play a team from the NHL.

"Our team would learn a great deal from playing against these top teams."

Quebec Snipers Erupt

QUEBEC (CP)—Quebec Aces crushed Providence Reds 11-4 before 3,425 fans Tuesday night to take a firmer grip on the American Hockey League Eastern Division leadership.

The game was a rout from the opening whistle as Aces outshot the visitors 41-19 and scored four goals in the first period, five in the second and two more in the third.

Only six minor penalties were handed out, four of them to Quebec.

BOWLER OF WEEK

Third appearance in Times Bowler-of-Week competition has been made by Jane Humber, 24, City all-events champion this year. Miss Humber topped women's tenpin division with 588 series on games of 188-175-225 in Ladies' Classic League at Mayfair.

Hershey Reaps A Tasty Total

VANCOUVER (CP)—Hershey Bears poked in two goals just 22 seconds apart early in the second period and went on to score a 6-3 interlocking hockey victory over Vancouver Canucks Tuesday night.

Gil Gilbert led the American Hockey League club's attack with two goals. Gary Dornhoefer, Mike Mahoney, Ed Leiter and Gene Ubriaco added singles. Ray Brunel, Bruce Carmichael and Billy McNeill scored for the Western League's Canucks.

Hershey jumped to a 3-2 lead by the end of the second period following a scoreless first period, expanded the lead to 4-2 early in the final stanza and added two more goals in the last two minutes.

The win ended a successful western tour for Hershey, which won three and lost one for the best record of any AHL team which has toured the west so far this season. Victory gave the AHL a 14-18-2 won-lost-tied record in its interlocking schedule with the WHL.

The loss didn't affect Vancouver's third-place position in WHL standings, seven points behind second-place Portland.

BODYCHECKS, SAYS PILOUS . . . . . . WOULD END 'PRETTY PASSING'

Hockey's Experts Size Up Russians

TORONTO (CP)—Some of the world's top hockey authorities had little praise for Russia's national hockey team after their 4-3 victory here Tuesday night over an Ontario Junior Hockey League all-star club.

Rudy Pilous, former coach of Chicago Black Hawks of the National Hockey League and now coach of Hamilton Red Wings, applauded the Russians' passing and skating.

"But if they played our rules, they'd get knocked down in the attacking zone. One good bodycheck would break up all that pretty passing. If we played their rules, with a team of NHL all-stars, I can see guys like Henri Richard running the score up into adding-machine figures."

Under international rules, bodychecking is forbidden in the opposition's half of the ice, and a penalized team may not ice the puck.

Sid Abel, coach of Detroit Red Wings, said:

"The Russians move the puck around but there is a lot of wasted motion. Playing our way, they wouldn't be able to look around and pick their spots.

"I'd like to see a little more of them to see how much guts they have."

Gordie Howe of Detroit, the man who in 20 NHL seasons has scored more than 600 goals, said: "They make mistakes, just like we do."

He felt the international rules would help Canadian forwards, who are the targets for abuse under Canadian rules.

Frank Mahovlich of Toronto Maple Leafs approved of the international rules.

"Boy, how good a guy could look, skating in with his head down, making all those moves without being hit," he said.

But the Big M didn't feel the Russians had advanced to the level of the lowest member of the NHL.

"I don't think they've improved in the five years since I saw Whitby beat them. They could pass and skate then, and they're doing the same things now."

Arrested Clay 'Dares' Officer to Punch Him

CHICAGO (AP) — Heavyweight boxing champion Cassius Clay has been charged with disorderly conduct following an argument with police about whether his car should be curbed.

Clay, 22, was in the car with three other men when police stopped it Tuesday. Police said the vehicle did not have licence plates or a city tax sticker.

As the car was curbed, Omar Bey, 22, of Miami, Fla. shouted: "You can't stop this car. Cassius Clay is in here."

When the four got out of the car, Clay said: "You can't arrest me. I represent another government."

"What government?" asked policeman Thomas Faragoi.

"The Negro government," Clay replied. "I'm a $50,000,000 a year man and you're nothing but a policeman. The only reason you arrested us is because we are Negro."

WANT SEPARATE STATE

Clay is a member of the Black Muslim sect which advocates a separate state for American Negroes in the United States, completely segregated from the whites.

When the officers tried to search Clay, they said he told them: "Lay a hand on me and I'll place a brutality charge on you."

Faragoi said Clay dared him to throw a punch so Clay could sue the government.

Clay, Bey and the other two were taken to the police station in a police car. On the way, Clay was quoted as shouting:

"You want a white champion. You'll never get one. Nobody is ever going to beat me."

'CLAY WAS ARROGANT'

At the station, Clay and Bey were charged with disorderly conduct and released on $25 bond each.

HOWE'S HOCKEY

By GORDIE HOWE

Harry Howell, now in his 14th season with the New York Rangers, is one of several veteran defencemen around the National Hockey League particularly skilled at killing off penalties.

One of the worst mistakes an offensive player can make on the power play is to stand stationary. Yet you'll see quite a few guilty of this mistake. They try to park a few feet in front of the crease, waiting for a pass, a chance to deflect a shot or pounce on a rebound.

Howell is a past master in a situation like this. He reaches out and puts a hand on one player. Then he extends his stick with the other hand and puts it on another player.

This way he can watch the play, yet know where both players he is guarding are going, because he knows as soon as they move.

Of course, if the offensive players keep moving, he has to concentrate on one player, instead, whichever he thinks is in the most vulnerable position. He has to take his eyes off the puck.

If you can get two or three real good shots on net in the two minutes you have when an opposing player is sitting in the penalty box, this is considered a real good power play.

Many times when a power play isn't working properly, it is because it started off haphazardly with everybody going in different directions.

A bad pass can kill a power play right off the bat. If somebody fails to lead properly with a pass, instead, throws it behind his teammate, he has to stop, to pick it up.

Then the whole unit has to stop. Nobody's skating. That's the big secret of success on a power play, having somebody moving as you pass the puck around to get a clear shot, and keep talking to one another.

School Supplies A Golfing Shortcut

NEW YORK (AP) — Jack Nicklaus, has to go back to school if he hopes to make the 1967 Ryder Cup team, and even that may not be enough.

This has been dictated by the Professional Golfers Association which runs the multi - million-dollar professional tournament circuit.

Under the PGA's complicated member ship requirements, a player can't become a bona fide member until he has served a five-year apprenticeship.

But the rules provide that a player will be considered to have served one full year of tournament service for each week of attendance at one of the PGA's professional business schools.

Only official PGA members may play on the Ryder Cup team which meets Britain's best golfers every two years. Nicklaus hasn't qualified yet, although he's won virtually every major tournament and been leading money winner for the past two years.

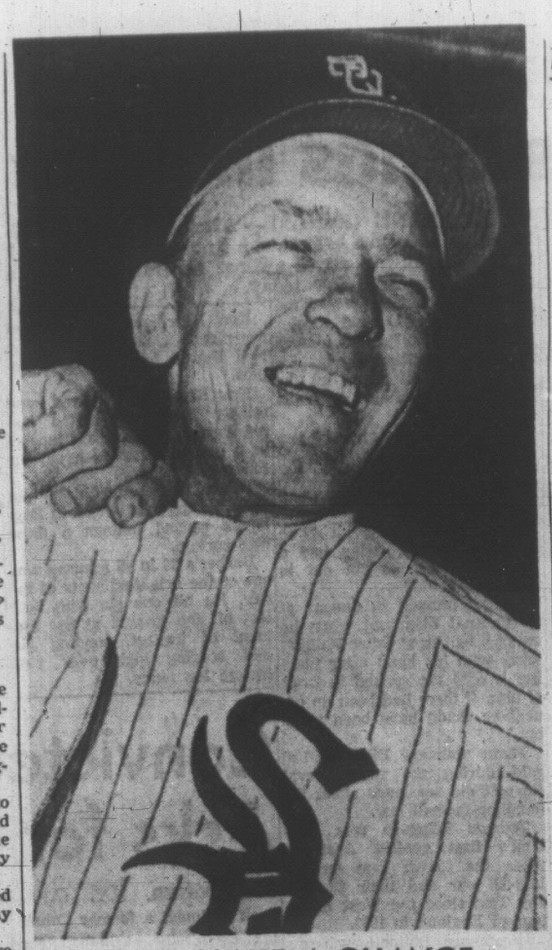

Nicklaus was given official tournament status Dec. 28, 1961, six weeks after he turned professional.

On Dec. 28, Nicklaus thus will have completed four years of tournament service—one less than the five years required for official PGA membership.

Senior Golf Buttons Change Hands

Uplands' challengers Ed Lovell and Dick Egan picked up the lapel pins by defeating Pete McIntyre and John Sturdy in a match that wasn't decided until the final putt on the 18th green.

The new holders will make their first button defence at Gorge Vale against Victoria Club's Bob Peers and Glen Coffey.

HABS' TRAINER:

'Bruins Short On Patience'

By The Canadian Press

"What's wrong with the Bruins?" is the $64 question in Boston these days.

At the bottom of the National Hockey League standings with only 13 points, the Bruins haven't come up with a victory in eight straight games.

Tonight Boston meets the second-place Black Hawks in Chicago. Third-place Detroit Red Wings play the fourth-place Maple Leafs in Toronto in tonight's only other NHL contest.

"They've shown themselves to be impatient and short on understanding of their own problems," he said in an interview Tuesday.

PREFER VETERANS

"They don't give their young players the time or the chance to develop. They would rather use veteran players who can still turn in a good game. They also hunt among the lists of players in opposing clubs and take the players the clubs themselves don't want anymore.

"The Boston administration doesn't give the impression of efficiency and know-how that we have here at the Canadiens. They never seem to achieve anything. . . ."

"They must just love hockey," he said.

English XI Follows On And Test Ends in Draw

BRISBANE (Reuters) — After England had followed on 163 runs behind, the first test cricket match in the best-of-five series against Australia ended in a draw on the final day today.

Despite a valiant 60 by Fred Titmus, England could muster only 280 runs in its first innings in reply to Australia's 443 for six declared—14 short of the 294 needed to make Australia bat again.

But there was never any danger of Australia bowling out its opponents a second time, and England was 186 for three at the close.

Geoff Boycott, who hit 45 in the first innings, today had a second innings' 63 not out in three hours.

He put himself in danger of an unusual dismissal when he swept a ball from Peter Philpott away with his hand after playing it onto the ground in front of him. If there had been an appeal he would have been given out.

Team manager Billy Griffith said during the tea interval Boycott did not know about the handling-the-ball law.

Today's follow-on was England's first against Australia since the fourth Test on the 1958-59 tour and their first in any Test since the West Indies tour of England in 1963.

He struck the final blow by dismissing Titmus, last man out, when the English all-rounder was in full flight, and seemed certain to rescue his team.

Titmus hit six fours in his 60, scored in 160 minutes.

When Boycott and Barber put on 46 for the first wicket in England's second innings a draw was certain.

Barber's 34 in 45 minutes was one of the brightest spots of the day. He hit one six with both feet off the ground at the moment of impact, sending the ball soaring high over the square leg fence.

CINCINNATI BIDDING FOR NFL BERTH

CINCINNATI, Ohio (AP)—Football coach Paul Brown said Tuesday he is working to bring a National Football League team to Cincinnati, and if successful, he would be its coach.

Brown made his announcement at a luncheon of 125 civic and business leaders called by Governor James A. Rhodes to boost plans for a new stadium.

Brown has not had an active football job since Jan. 9, 1963, when he was fired as general manager and coach of Cleveland Browns by Art Modell, who took over the NFL club.

Brown, however, remained under contract with the Browns as a vice-president. He still draws a salary and the contract has a little over three years to run.

Convicted Briber Asks for Release

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP)—Jack Molinas, a former Columbia University basketball star convicted in 1963 of trying to fix a basketball game, applied this week in federal court for his release from prison.

Molinas is serving a 7½-to-10-year term.

He contended in a brief filed at U.S. district court that his constitutional rights had been violated by the introduction of a tape-recorded telephone conversation at his trial.

He also contended he was denied a fair trial because the trial was interrupted for five weeks due to the illness of the trial judge.

Molinas was convicted by a New York city jury of charges of conspiracy, three counts of bribery and subornation of perjury for trying to fix the outcome of a basketball game between North Carolina State and Wake Forest in 1959.

Soccer Proposal Stirring a Storm

LONDON (AP) — The English Football Association has proposed scrapping the traditional British international soccer championship next season in order to compete in the European Cup of Nations.

The idea has upset Scotland, Wales and Northern Ireland. Their games with England have been highlights of British soccer for generations.

The European Cup of Nations is being reorganized and will involve more games. The EFA said England will not be able to fit in the additional program unless it sacrifices the home internationals.

Smooth talk will never make a whisky mellow.

Extra charcoal filtering will. That's why every drop of Gooderham's Brown Jug is filtered through layer after layer of hard maple charcoal. It's a slow process, but we're in no hurry. In fact when it's finished, we take the time to do it all over again. Just to make sure Brown Jug is perfectly polished. Remember that when someone tries to smooth-talk you into buying another brand of whisky. The charcoal filtering story is printed on the back of every bottle of Gooderham's Brown Jug. Why don't you pick one up and read it sometime?

Gooderham's have been distilling fine whiskies since 1832.

JOHNSON-KHAN TALKS

Medical Team Offered Pakistan

COED Amy Lowenstein, 21, a University of Pennsylvania senior, accused of attacking a campus guard has been "sentenced" by the university's committee on discipline to work five hours a week next term for the guards she attacked. Miss Lowenstein is treasurer of the senior class and a member of the University Committee to End the War in Viet Nam.

WASHINGTON (AP) — President Johnson, winding up talks today with Pakistan's President Mohammad Ayub Khan, has offered to send a team of medical teachers and scientists to Pakistan.

The mission of the medical team, Johnson said, "would be to work with your own medical authorities in instituting a broad improvement in medical training—and in working with your people in improving rural health and public health."

He said the team would be led by Dr. Donald F. Hornig, White House science adviser.

Johnson proclaimed a need to find peace in the world. He called for efforts to conquer "the curses of poverty, hunger, disease, illiteracy, the human and physical problems."

'RELATIONS SORE'

Ayub acknowledged that "our relations have to a certain extent been sore." He attributed this to "misunderstanding" and said friendship between the United States and Pakistan "can be—must be maintained."

Earlier Tuesday, the two presidents had what Ayub described as a frank but friendly private talk about Viet Nam and the 22-day Pakistan-India war over Kashmir.

The White House made known that the Ayub-Johnson talks were closely connected with the forthcoming Tashkent meeting between Ayub and India's Prime Minister Shastri on Soviet soil and the Shastri-Johnson meeting to be held here Feb. 1-2.

Pakistan sources said the Tashkent meeting was not likely to bring any abiding decisions. It would emphasize, however, that the Soviet Union has a role it would like to play in Asian affairs.

Pending a communique to be issued before Ayub's departure Wednesday for Paris, authorities would make no prediction of any resumption of U.S. economic assistance to Pakistan. Military aid has been halted to both Pakistan and India.

WITHDRAW ALL FOREIGN TROOPS

UNITED NATIONS (Reuters)—The Soviet Union Tuesday demanded withdrawal of all foreign troops from Cyprus and the closure of British bases on the island.

Nikolai T. Fedorenko, the Soviet delegate, said the forces of colonialism had not given up their policy of liquidating Cyprus as a sovereign state.

For the island to obtain genuine independence, all foreign troops must be pulled out he told the United Nations General Assembly's main political committee.

More than 900 Canadians are included in the 5,000-member UN peacekeeping force in Cyprus.

Multi-Million Art Fraud Charged

BONN (AP)—West German authorities are preparing to prosecute in an alleged multi-million dollar fraud case involving an art collection that vanished during the Second World War.

Held as chief suspect is Dr. Hans Deutsch, an Israeli lawyer, publisher and philanthropist. His bail of $3,000,000 was the highest ever demanded in West Germany.

The state prosecutor's office says Deutsch, 59, is under suspicion of having fraudulently obtained $4,400,000 in claiming restitution from the Bonn government.

Deutsch is alleged to have submitted false evidence that the Nazis in 1944 stole 200 French Impressionist paintings and 650 prints collected by Baron Ferenez Hatvany, prewar "sugar king" of Hungary.

On behalf of the Baron's heirs, Deutsch presented a $105,000,000 bill, based on estimates by two art experts.

Prosecution investigators, who so far have questioned 115 witnesses in many countries, seek to prove that the paintings were hauled off by Soviet troops when they captured Budapest toward the end of the war.

They contend the Hatvany collection was far less valuable than Deutsch claimed.

By the time of his arrest, Deutsch had collected slightly more than half of the $8,750,000 settlement on the Hatvany claim on which he and the government agreed in 1962.

He has denied all accusations.

Powerful Tug Completes Coast Trials

VANCOUVER (CP) — A tug that started operating on the British Columbia coast in 1926 has been converted into a powerful salvage vessel.

The Polari, former Canadian National No. 2 and before that the British Admiralty tug St. Catherine, has completed trials for her owners, North Pacific Towing and Salvage Ltd., a subsidiary of Texada Towing Co., Ltd.

She has a speed of 14 knots and a cruising range of 9,900 miles for 29 days without refuelling.

The vessel was built in England in 1919.

U.K. SHEEP TO IMPROVE CHINA FLOCKS

LONDON (AP)—Two hundred pedigreed sheep are sailing for Shanghai to improve the flocks of China.

Colin Mace, 19, who usually tends sheep of his own in northern England, is in charge of the flock. Earlier he made three trips with flocks to Romania and one trip to Bulgaria.

The consignment of Romney Marsh-Lincoln long wool sheep is worth $14,000. F. G. B. Barling, a director of the company, said the sheep are going for breeding purposes. Another consignment of nearly 200 ram and ewe lambs will leave in January.

Victoria Daily Times

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1965—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Last week in this corner, I suggested that courtesy between drivers would result in fewer mashed fenders. Today, always remembering to keep our tempers firmly in check, suppose we consider the pedestrian.

We'd better, in fact, because on these busy pre-Christmas days and evenings, he's all over the place. In a couple of hours, I'll be a pedestrian myself, scurrying about downtown with worried, scowl and illegible shopping list.

So may you be, too . . . and I hope we all make it back safe to our cars or buses. If we don't, the chances are that we've placed ourselves in a traffic predicament from which not even St. Christopher could rescue us.

For the pedestrian, a category which includes anyone on the streets who isn't wheel-borne, causes or contributes to most of the mishaps in which he's involved.

A traffic safety expert I know once defined him in a cynical moment as "an accident looking for a place to happen." And all too frequently, he or she finds that place.

The wise driver knows that where children and dogs are concerned, he dare not expect responsible behavior, and must do their thinking for them.

But I'm not talking about children here. Right now I'm squinting down the foolkiller's bony finger at Grandma, a well-ripened matron sound in mind, limb and wind, who has just finished mailing out a batch of parcels at the main post office.

"Well, did he?" replies Grandma indulgently, her thoughts already zeroed in on a store counter several blocks distant. "Isn't that nice?"

At Broad, she plows into the crosswalk without so much as a glance in either direction, while more brakes squeal, and a driver hollers through his rolled down window.

"My, my," mutters Grandma, "Victoria is so much noisier than when I was a girl. Why, I remember . . ."

She's still remembering at Douglas, when she steps off the curb against the "Don't Walk," and all in a trice becomes a statistic.

Since our culture tends to make pedestrian pranging an expensive error, the driver who condemned the old lady to eat her Christmas dinner in traction can only hope his insurance will cover the loser's end of a damage suit.

The law does a pretty good job of protecting the pedestrian against the heedless driver, in spite of occasional squawks to the contrary. It is quite unable, however, to guard him from his own rashness, heedlessness and stupidity.

For a 120-pound woman or 165-pound man to dare a briskly moving two tons or thereabouts of rubber, glass and metal is stupid, arrogant, and frequently suicidal. Yet it is done, deliberately, every day.

These casual saunters across the traffic lanes may, I suppose, indicate complete faith in a driver's ability to stop on the proverbial dime. The crabby adult with a scunner against the world shares this form of Russian roulette with the adolscent of a certain stamp.

But . . . hold it . . . here comes Grandpa, a good old man who, although he wouldn't dream of tempting Providence, happens to be wearing dark hat, topcoat, suit, socks and shoes.

He starts to cross a dim-lit suburban street on a rainy night, his mind occupied with his memories. He doesn't see the car, and until the headlight glare reveals the dazed white face, he is about as invisible to the driver as a man can make himself.

A flashlight would have saved him, or a white handkerchief knotted around his arm.

So might a safety campaign which recognized that driver and pedestrian responsibility are inseparable, and placed adequate emphasis upon the need for safe walking.

Winter Layoffs Hit High Level In Construction

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

The worst winter unemployment in several years is hitting construction industry unions.

Several hundred men in Greater Victoria are without work, much more than normal for this time of year.

20% IDLE

Nearly 20 per cent of the 750 union carpenters are not working, said John Schibli, president of Local 1598.

This is the highest since February, 1961, he said. The union had expected between 80 and 90 men to be without work, but this morning it was 135.

TWO FACTORS

He attributed the unemployment to two factors:

- The need for an additional $1.7 million to complete school building projects has resulted in delays in the work starting;
- Some people held off new work during the federal election last month because the Conservatives promised to eliminate the 11 per cent tax on building materials.

Mr. Schibli said although carpenters earn $3.49 an hour, carpenters throughout B.C. work only an average nine months in a year, based on experience in the last few years.

This can be shown from the contributions to the health and welfare plan, into which employers pay 10 cents per hour for each hour of employment.

The Construction and General Labourers Union reports 50 of its 300 Greater Victoria members out of work—"the worst for a number of years," said business agent John Gallow.

JOBS FINISHING

"Quite a few jobs are finishing," he added.

The plumbers union has 42 men without work, more than half of them from the shipyards where "there is not too much mechanical work," said business agent Tom Wheatley.

The Machinists, Engine Fitters and Helpers Union has 30 shipyard members out of work —about 15 per cent of the union's membership.

Spokesmen for the Brotherhood of Painters and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers were not available this morning.

City Newsman Killed In Beacon Hill Crash

Reporters Injured; Car Hits Tree, Rock

One news reporter was killed and two others injured in a car accident in Beacon Hill Park just before midnight Tuesday.

Dead is Vernon Ellis Lacey, 23, of Moose Jaw, Sask., who for the past year was employed by Canadian Press in Victoria.

Injured were Miss Candide Temple, 20, of 2585 Selwyn, and Robert Donahue, 22, of 24 Garden Park Court, both reporters with the Victoria Daily Times.

Two other newsmen in the back seat of the car, Glen Allen, 23, of 2533 Quadra, of the Times, and R. G. Thody, 24, of 360 Douglas, of the Colonist, were uninjured.

Police said the accident occurred when the car, driven by Mr. Donahue, turned off Dallas Road into Lover's Lane in Beacon Hill Park.

The car, owned by Mr. Donahue, apparently went out of control as soon as it entered the lane and travelled for about 220 feet on the grass verge on the left side.

ACROSS LANE

The car then swerved across the lane and glanced off a tree. It continued on and hit an 800-pound boulder, knocking it 26 feet into the bush.

The car came to a stop when it crashed into another boulder. Police said the three persons in the front seat (the deceased and the two injured) were apparently thrown out at this point.

They were found on the ground on the right side of the car. The right-hand front passenger door was torn off the car and found some distance away. Police said it is not clear when the door was ripped off.

An off-duty city police sergeant on his way home spotted the accident and called immediately for ambulances. Two members of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, who were passing through the park, rendered first aid on the spot.

Mr. Lacey was pronounced dead at 12:35 a.m. today at St. Joseph's Hospital. He suffered extensive injuries to his body and limbs.

SHOCK, BRUISES

The two back-seat passengers were thrown to the floor by the impact. They suffered shock and bruises but were otherwise uninjured.

Police said the accident might have been a lot worse except that the Donahue vehicle was a heavy European model that stood up well to the crash.

Mr. Lacey joined Canadian Press in November, 1964. He previously worked for the Prince George Citizen, Moose Jaw Times-Herald and Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

He was raised in Kindersley, Sask., and is survived by his mother and stepfather in Moose Jaw. The body is being returned to Kindersley for burial.

He's Walking On Ice In the Sun

Weather for the birds?

Not exactly, and with all this sunshine, who can complain?

She hangs pieces of fat in the trees of her garden and appeals to other householders to do the same.

"I hang pieces of fat in the branches of our trees and it disappears very quickly. Most butchers are glad to give it away.

Temperatures overnight will dip to a feather-freezing 22 degrees and Thursday's forecast high is 42. Winds will be light.

WALLACE DENIES B.C. OVERSHADOWING NATIONAL CENTENARY

Provincial centennial co-ordinator L. J. Wallace today denied suggestions the 1966 provincial centennial will overshadow the national celebrations in 1967.

He was replying to criticism raised Tuesday by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee that the B.C. centennial was being given more emphasis in planning.

"They're absolutely wrong," Mr. Wallace said.

"We regard 1966 as a springboard into the 1967 Confederation centennial celebration.

"Both will be large years but 1967 will be bigger naturally because it is a national celebration and that has been the attitude of our committee all along."

Mr. Wallace said no other municipal group had made such a charge "because most people see from the program we have prepared that the provincial centennial events will lead us right into the national celebration with a full head of steam."

The 1966 celebrations will mark the union of the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

"If the province wants to celebrate 1966, that's just fine with me," said Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox at the intermunicipal meeting.

He felt the 1967 centennial has far more significance and that efforts should be directed that way.

"It looks like every time I open my mouth I'm shooting at the provincial government," he said.

MORE EMPHASIS

"But greater emphasis has been placed on 1966 than when it started. Now, everything, including the (reading of)-proclamation puts the emphasis on 1966."

He referred to suggested events such as baseball and golf tournaments for receipts of local grants.

"I really think of these things as tourist promotions. I don't see why the municipalities should be underwriting something of particular benefit to them."

40c PER CAPITA

To cover the local share of celebration expenses, the committee recommended councils earmark 40 cents per capita over the two years and that emphasis be placed by Greater Victoria centennial committee on events in 1967.

This would not exclude 1966 celebrations of a particularly high quality, the committee felt.

Per capita donations will be based on 1963 census figures, which are used by the provincial government in calculating its contributions toward centennial funds. The province will match the 40 cents per capita.

Earlier, Reeve Cox had said he felt council would have no argument over putting up $1 per capita to cover celebrations.

Reeve Hugh Curtis of Saanich pointed out the municipalities already are committed to an extra $100,000 maximum if the permanent project requires it.

'TOO MUCH'

"We want to celebrate these two years. We don't want to suffer such a crushing financial blow that we'll never forget the centennial."

The suggested $100,000 was to provide for grants to organizations planning special centennial events.

MANY EVENTS

Provisional arrangements have been made, for example, to have Canadian junior men's basketball finals, Feb. 28-March 6, 1966, at a cost of $3,100; Canadian Little League championships, spring 1966, $2,500; Dominion Drama Festival, May 1966, $4,000; National Association of Left-handed Golfers, July 1966, $3,500; International-Centennial Bonspiel, March 1967, $3,500; Oak Bay Secondary

BASEMENTS FLOODED

Tremors Blamed For Water Break

Water, water everywhere and not a drop in the faucet in dozens of homes in the Belmont-Begbie district late Tuesday night.

City engineer James Garnett today blamed earthquake vibrations for initiating a 12-inch water main break that sent a geyser cascading into Belmont Avenue, over gutters, boulevards, lawns, driveways and into basements.

Workmen stemmed the flood about an hour after the break was first reported at 11 p.m., restoring service to all but about four homes by mid-morning.

Full service was expected to be provided later today.

PUMPED DRY

The engineer said only a half-dozen homes had flooded basements, and the fire department assisted in pumping them dry.

There was confusion at first about which main had burst, Mr. Garnett said.

This was because the five-point intersection of Belmont, Begbie and Grant Streets contains a 20-inch and a 12-inch water main, the former serving the high Rockland area.

UNDER PAVEMENT

The rupture occurred at the northeast corner of the intersection, but the water carried on underneath the pavement and did not come to the surface until it undermined about 25 feet of Belmont, breaking through just where the 20-inch main is laid.

Waterworks men assumed the 20-inch main had gone and immediately set about shutting it off.

Mr. Garnett said this is a lengthy process involving 200 turns on a geared valve. Then it had to be turned on again when it was deduced the 12-inch main was the broken one.

The engineer said there would be 70-80 pounds per square in pressure in the main at that time of day.

The fractured pipe was bedded in solid rock and was found to have a three to four-foot break about seven inches wide.

"There is every indication of an earthquake factor," he said.

Earth shocks, not necessarily strong enough to be generally felt, could crack the cast iron pipe, Mr. Garnett said.

'MERRY CHRISTMAS'

Vigorous Session Ahead

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today wished every British Columbian a Merry Christmas and promised a busy new year for every member of the legislature.

The premier delivered his usual Christmas message expressing gratitude for a good year and looking forward to more happiness and prosperity for citizens.

He also told reporters that the legislative session starting Jan. 27 will be "vigorous."

The premier said he had no thoughts of election on his mind at present but the coming session would determine whether there is a provincial election in 1966.

POLLS TO DECIDE?

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan laughed at the reported statements and said it "will be the public opinion polls, not the session, that determine when the next election will be."

Mr. Strachan said the polls show Mr. Bennett's prestige is declining and this is an indication that there will be an election next year.

He also indicated he expected a long and hard session.

Former Manager Guilty of Theft

Peter Kozak of Prince George was found guilty Tuesday of the theft of $1,109 from A&W Drive-In while he was manager of the company's Douglas Street store earlier this year.

Magistrate J. A. Byers remanded Kozak to Jan. 6 for sentence.

Magistrate Byers said in his judgment that no one else in the store could have committed the theft without the connivance of the manager. Kozak was convicted mainly on evidence by another employee that he withheld vouchers on instructions from Kozak.

View Royal Meeting Divided On Benefits of Town Status

Town status would ensure proper planning and improved services for the unorganized district of View Royal, ratepayers were told at a lively public meeting at Strawberry Vale Tuesday.

It was called to discuss the pros and cons of View Royal becoming a town. A plebiscite will be held Saturday.

The meeting was chaired by Garnett Bulmer, president of the View Royal Ratepayers' Association which supports the town proposal. About 45 residents attended.

LOSE CONTROL

R. M. McLeod, a director of the association, warned that unless residents ran their own civic affairs they will have little or no control over residential zoning in the district.

"If we want planning and improved services, we must shoulder our responsibilities," he said.

Ratepayers appeared equally divided on incorporation.

Both sides were armed with copies of the Municipal Act, newspaper clippings, pamphlets and letters from government officials, to debate the question.

They accused the association of misleading residents by implying unless they voted for the town proposal the B.C. government would force incorporation.

"I didn't know until Saturday that View Royal could remain as it is," said one ratepayer. "I have attended all the public meetings on this issue and was given the impression that we must incorporate or else."

Mr. McLeod denied the association has claimed incorporation is being forced on the district.

"We concede that View Royal can remain a district," he added. "But we say circumstances will eventually force us to incorporate."

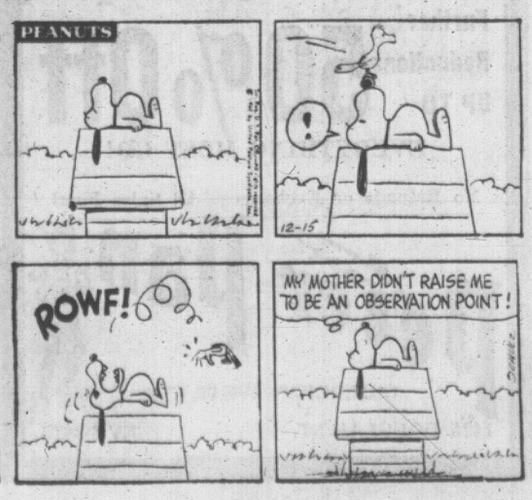

One resident pointed out that View Royal would not have the money to equip a public works department.

"What would happen if we had a snowfall," he said. "We just wouldn't have enough revenue to pay for snow removal."

CONTRACTED

Mr. Bulmer said the work would be contracted out.

Old Transportation New Fitness Method

By Penny Saver

A sport rapidly gaining popularity is cycling. It has always been popular with the younger set, but today, more and more adults are beginning to realize what fun a bicycle can be. Cycling is a very healthy activity, which keeps the legs trim, and keeps you feeling fit.

Because of this popularity, there are many luxury items and gadgets on the market to make your cycling more enjoyable. Safety gadgets are a "must" these days, with the increase in cyclists and drivers.

The latest safety device is an import from France. It is a light that can be strapped on the leg or arm, so that night-cyclists can be seen by drivers. Made of sturdy plastic, it is operated by two batteries. It consists of two lights, a red one which should be placed at the back so that cars advancing from the rear know that you are there, and a white light, so that you are seen by oncoming cars.

Night-walkers would find these very helpful when crossing intersections. Selling for $2.75 complete with batteries, these would make a very wise gift for a trooper or bicycle fiend.

Speedometers, specially made for bikes, sell in this store at $4.95 for a plastic model, or $5.95 for one with a sheet-metal casing. The gauge records speeds up to 60 miles per hour. (In a case such as mine, this is definitely wishful thinking!) Mileage up to 9,999 miles can also be recorded.

One very useful gadget is an elasticized strap, with hooks at each end. This holds books or parcels on the back carrier of the bike, without having to be tied on. These sell for 45 cents each.

The cyclist with a flare for music will go for another item which sells for 98 cents. It's a metal transistor radio carrier, which screws onto the handle bar. A spring holds almost any size of transistor in place. These can be hooked onto the window of a car or outboard motor boat, too.

WHY GROW OLD?

Think About Breathing; Are You Doing It Right?

Most folks take their breathing for granted much as they do sunrise and sunset. Since we do not have to think about it and it continues day after day without any effort on our part, we may do a poor job of it and fail to recognize its importance. Our breathing continues when we are asleep and even when we are unconscious. The WAY we breathe can have a happy influence on our health and appearance.

Lowman

Because of poor posture and shallow breathing many humans are oxygen-poor. Most people use only a small portion of their lungs in their regular breathing, and receive far too little oxygen for best health and most beauty. Deep breathing exercises have been used with success in the treatment of insomnia. Tense and nervous persons also benefit by these.

Of course breath control and deep breathing have always been an important part of Yoga. The things the Hindus learned about posture and breathing and relaxation are the result of centuries of experimentation and self-discipline. The Yogas believe that deep breathing can give an actual glow to the body. They also think that youth emits a greater glow than age and that deep breathing plays an important part in beauty.

Many Yoga exercises require years of practice, but others can be used by the woman and man who are amateurs. Deep breathing can have almost magical effects on the body.

Try these. All nature is rhythmic and so is this exercise. Inhale deeply for five counts. Retain the air in your lungs for five counts and exhale for five counts. Give equal time to each and be sure that your spine is straight and your chest elevated throughout. At first you may have to inhale, hold and exhale for three counts only. Later you may work up to eight or 10 counts. When doing this exercise try to clear your mind of all thoughts and close your eyes. You will find it refreshing.

Some of the simpler Hindu postures will give you a wonderful sense of relaxation, right from the first. The following one is called "The Dragon." Kneel on both knees. Place your hands flat on your thighs, one hand on each thigh. Straighten your spine and hold your head up.

If you would like to have my deep breathing exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "The Fountain of Youth." Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Presentations

Mr. G. L. Landon, who is retiring after 40 years with the provincial department of agriculture, and Mrs. Landon were honored when the department held its Christmas party at the Uplands Golf Club. Master of ceremonies, Mr. W. H. Pope presented Mr. Landon with a typewriter and gift of money. Mrs. Marjorie Kidd presented Mrs. Landon with a handbag. Mr. Pope also read telegrams and letters from Mr. Landon's associates in Canada and the United States. Deputy minister, Mr. A. H. Turner was chairman, introducing Hon. Frank Richter, Mr. S. G. Preston, Prince George, and Mr. Charles Walls, manager of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, who all made short speeches. A buffet supper was served, followed by an evening of dancing.

Make now, play later! Be a smart Mom and whip up a batch of this versatile clay. You'll be rewarded with smiles from youngsters, enthused over your latest "cooking."

FOR 'MOM-APPROVED' TOY THAT'S CLEAN, SAFE

Santa's Helper Can Use Kitchen

There's no need to brave the bedlam of your local toy store to get a last-minute Christmas gift for Janie's little friend up the street or some unexpected young guest. Just step into your nice quiet kitchen and cook up a batch of "play-clay." Children of all ages love to model and this particular clay will be "mother-approved" for the two ingredients are baking soda and cornstarch . . . both foods . . . which means it's safe even in the hands of those in the taste-everything stage. Since both products are also recommended bath additives for sensitive skin it's gentle to small tender hands. And it won't spot or stain clothes, rugs or upholstery.

To make the clay, simply mix together in a saucepan 1 cup of cornstarch, 2 cups of baking soda and 1¼ cups water to which a few drops of food coloring has been added. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly and continue to cook until mixture reaches a dough-like consistency. Remove from heat and when cool enough to handle, knead a little as you would dough and pack in a pliofilm bag. Add your Christmas gift wrappings and along with your gift tag a second tag giving the recipe for the clay since there's bound to be a request for more at a future date. Add a footnote to the recipe advising that the clay dries out hard as cement overnight, within half an hour or so if placed on a wire rack in a warm, turned-off oven; that it can be decorated with paints or felt-tip marker; and for the benefit of older modelers, that it can be shellacked for a professional, ceramic effect.

You'll do well to record the recipe, too, for batches of this clean, safe "play-clay" along with the "how-to-make" directions are ideal donations to church bazaars or other fund-raising sales, and a nice change of pace from the usual cakes and pot-holders. The clay can also provide quiet, safe amusement when you're hosting a birthday party for one of your small fry or working with a troop of Brownies.

As 'Something Borrowed' Talisman

WEARS CRYSTAL PENDANT

A crystal pendant on a silver chain, belonging to her mother, was "something borrowed" worn by Lois Myrtle Hamilton when she became the bride of Wayne Gordon Hannah recently.

Her floor-length gown of white organza was styled with a slim skirt enhanced with re-embroidered lace. The same lace highlighted the bateau neckline of the bodice, which also featured sleeves ending in lily points. A train extended from a tiny bridal bow at the back waist. A coronet of crystals held her hand-rolled veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Hamilton, 1741 Haldon Road, Saanichton, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Hannah, 1909 Hovey Road, Saanichton. Mr. Hamilton gave his daughter in marriage.

BY CANDLELIGHT

The bride's attendants were maid of honor, Miss Cynthia Caddell, bridesmatron, Mrs. P. Howe, and bridesmaid, Miss Daphne Grieve. They wore A-line dresses of emerald green velvet. The bodices featured scoop necklines and three quarter-length sleeves. Wedding-ring headpieces of the same velvet and tulle were in their hair. They carried bouquets of gold chrysanthemums. Jewelry was emerald green crystal necklaces and earrings, gifts of the bride.

At the reception following in the Legion Hall, Mills Road, the bride and groom cut a wedding cake made by the bride's mother. White chrysanthemums and holly flanked the cake. John Dunn proposed the toast to the bride. Master of ceremonies was V. Butler.

For travelling on honeymoon to Oregon, the new Mrs. Hannah chose a turquoise wool suit with fur cuffs, with brown accessories and a muskrat jacket. A gold rose corsage completed the ensemble.

When they return, the couple will live in Duncan.

Seasonal Tableau Meeting Highlight

"Winds of Christmas", read by Mrs. J. W. Nicols, entertained guests and members alike when they attended the Christmas meeting of Metropolitan United Church Women, held recently in Pendray Hll.

Assisting in the tableau were Mrs. H. J. Tucker and Mrs. W. Esau, messengers; and Miss Alice Potter, Mrs. E. Jackson and Mrs. E. R. Hall, shepherds.

Adding to the entertainment was folksinger, Mrs. W. Speare from Shady Creek United Church and Mrs. A. Iverson, who sang "The Gift", accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Acres.

Guests, senior citizens and church members, were led in singing carols by Mrs. R. E. Sharrocks. A Christmas message from former minister Rev. H. F. James and Mrs. James of Jamaica was read by Mrs. R. D. Bennett.

Devotional was given by members of the Coronation Unit and following the meeting, refreshments were served.

Several other prominent citizens and their wives were also invited.

Worn for Cronk-Cruickshank Vows

EMBROIDERED LACE ACCENTS GOWN

An exquisite full-length gown of white satin, styled on princess lines and accented by embroidered lace at the front, was worn by Carole Dickson Cruickshank when she exchanged vows with Sub-Lt. Cecil Dennis Emile Cronk in a candlelit ceremony at St. Andrew's Presbyterian Church. Edgings of the same lace bordered the floor-length train, which was held at the waist by a fabric rose. The shoulder-length veil of illusion tulle misted from a headpiece of white roses. Only jewelry was a single strand of pearls, gift of the groom.

Parents of the principals are Mr. and Mrs. W. D. Cruickshank, 3585 Savannah Avenue, Victoria; Mrs. Isabelle Cronk, Prince Albert, Sask., and the late Mr. Cecil Cronk. Mr. Cruickshank gave his daughter in marriage.

Dr. J. L. W. McLean officiated at the evening ceremony for which the altar was banked with chrysanthemums in shades of yellow, gold and rust. Mrs. T. Davies sang "The Wedding Prayer."

Full-length gowns of gold peau de soie, featuring empire waistlines, highlighted with a front bow, were the choice of maid of honor, Miss Joyce Modrall; bridesmaid, Miss Anne White, cousin of the bride, and bridesmatron, Mrs. C. Bogle. They wore roses of the same material in their hair and carried star bouquets of red and gold daisy chrysanthemums. For jewelry they had crystal necklaces and earrings, gifts of the bride.

Ushering guests were Sub-Lt. Richard Archer and Sub-Lt. Steve Arnold. Best man was Sub-Lt. Ronald Copley.

Mr. A. H. Cameron proposed the toast to the bride's happiness at the reception which followed in Holyrood House. A three-tier wedding cake centred the head table, flanked by yellow roses and candelabra. Dainty arrangements of gold chrysanthemums and candles decorated guests' tables.

Out-of-town guests included the groom's mother, Mrs. Cronk; Mr. and Mrs. E. Paquette, Mr. and Mrs. R. McIntosh, Mrs. W. Cronk, Mr. and Mrs. P. Paquette and Mr. and Mrs. L. Hopwood.

The Royal Jubilee Hospital Receives $4,282 Donation

A successful year of fund-raising was climaxed when the Junior Auxiliary to the Royal Jubilee Hospital presented hospital authorities with a cheque for $4,282 at the group's recent meeting. The money will help pay for the hospital's new electro encephalograph machine.

Mrs. N. W. McElrea presented the auxiliary with a cheque for $1,000, realized from sales at the group's Thrift Shop during the last few months.

Mrs. W. D. Dickinson, treasurer of the group's gift shop in the hospital, reported that the shop is open from 9:30 a.m. to 8 p.m., being completely staffed by volunteers with proceeds being earmarked for patient comforts and hospital equipment.

Convener Mrs. G. H. Carter reported that $4,500 had been realized from the November bazaar.

The group presented Miss Lois Nordal, nurse in charge of the children's ward at the hospital, with $50, the money to be used for holiday surprises for the young patients.

For Bursary Fund

An auction of home-baked articles was held when the Victoria Home Economics and Dietetic Association held its annual Christmas party in the Santa Clara Avenue home of Mrs. J. H. Godfrey. The proceeds have been earmarked for the group's bursary fund. Another highlight of the party was the demonstration of Christmas decoration making by Mrs. J. Wilkinson of the Island Florists.

Attend Wedding

Travelling from Kamloops to hear vows exchanged between Miss Lois Myrtle Hamilton and Mr. Wayne Gordon Hannah recently were Mr. and Mrs. B. Gurney. From Duncan were Mr. and Mrs. R. Dierckx, Mr. and Mrs. B. Wadsworth, Mr. and Mrs. B. C. Anand, and Mr. A. Robinson. Other guests included Mr. and Mrs. T. C. Trousdale, and Mr. and Mrs. A. Turner of North Surrey; Mr. and Mrs. R. Ford, and Mr. Brian Leggit of Port Alberni; Mr. and Mrs. B. McAlpine and Mr. R. Gall of New Westminster; Mr. A. Gall of Vancouver, and Mr. and Mrs. P. Crampton of Gibsons, B.C.

INFANT BAPTIZED

Baby's Grandparents Send Water From River Jordan

Water from the River Jordan was sent from Toronto by Mr. and Mrs. Edgar J. Stone, paternal grandparents of little Naom Elizabeth Stone who was baptized, Saturday afternoon, in St. Mark's Anglican Church, Salt Spring Island.

The infant is the daughter of Lt.-Cmdr. R. E. Stone, RCN, and Mrs. Stone, and was born in Norfolk, Va., where her father has been stationed for the last two years.

Godparents are Capt. W. T. Doyel, United States Navy, and Mrs. Doyel of Norfolk; Mrs. Charles Stone, Seattle, Wash., and Miss Daphne Corbett, Campbell River. P. E. Crofton was proxy for Capt. and Mrs. Doyel.

Following the ceremony, a tea was held in "Gailee", the Ganges home of maternal grandparents, Mr. and Mrs. Graham Shove. Donald Corbett, Campbell River, proposed a toast to the baby.

Travelling to Salt Spring Island for the event were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Stone and Ned of Seattle; Mr. and Mrs. Corbett, Frank and Daphne of Campbell River; Mr. and Mrs. Crofton, Kerry and Barry, Mrs. Dorothy Wrotnowski, Robert Morris, Ian Macintosh, all of Victoria; Mrs. Peter Bousfield, Shawnigan Lake, and Mr. and Mrs. Ormond Springfield and family of Duncan.

Of Personal Interest

LUNCHEON PARTY

His Honor the Lieutenant-Governor and Mrs. George R. Pearkes will be special guests at the 12th annual Chamber of Commerce Christmas party, to be held in the ballroom of the Empress Hotel on Friday. The party will take the form of a luncheon and approximately 400 guests are expected to attend. Prior to attending the luncheon, His Honor and Mrs. Pearkes will be among the 100 guests attending a sherry party, to be held in the hotel's Princess Charlotte and Prince Albert rooms and hosted by Mr. R. J. Bower, chamber president, and Mrs. Bower.

Squadron Gathering

The Second Escort Squadron of the Royal Canadian Navy's Pacific Coast Command took over the Oak Bay Marina's restaurant on Tuesday evening for the squadron's annual party. There were 132 officers and wives at the informal affair which featured dinner, dancing and a floor show by Bill Kenny of the Ink Spots. The menu offered steaks or lobster thermidor. Prior to the party, officers of HMCS Saskatchewan, HMCS St. Croix, HMCS Stettler, HMCS Beacon Hill and HMCS Antigonish and their wives gathered for cocktail parties in the wardrooms of their ships. Capt. William Kidd, squadron commander, and Mrs. Kidd gave a cocktail party in their Cavendish Avenue home for the ship's commanding officers and their wives. Officers of the remaining ship, HMCS Mackenzie, and their wives were guests at a cocktail party given in the Hewlett Place home of the commanding officer, Cmdr. Harry Wade, and Mrs. Wade.

Golden Wedding

Capt. J. A. Harris and Mrs. Harris of Bewdley Avenue were honored at a family dinner at the Imperial Inn when their five children, sons-in-law and daughters-in-law gathered to honor the couple on their golden wedding anniversary. Attending were Lt.-Col. Jack Harris and Mrs. Harris of Ottawa, Capt. James Harris and Mrs. Harris of Regina, Flt.-Lt. Peter Rawlyck and Mrs. Rawlyck (Vera) of Edmonton, Mr. and Mrs. Bert (Gladys) Herzog of Vermilion, Alta., and Mr. and Mrs. Jerry Harris. The honor couple was married in St. Peter's Church, Cricklewood, London, England, on Nov. 28, 1915, coming to Canada in 1919. They lived in Edmonton for 25 years and moved to Victoria in 1944. They have 20 grandchildren and two great-grandchildren.

WOMEN WILL 'WIGGLE'

VANCOUVER (CP)—Federal government plans to make housewives make Canada pension plan contributions on behalf of their help generated enough steam to blow the head off a pressure cooker Tuesday.

A survey conducted by the Province, Vancouver's morning newspaper, indicated women may attempt to avoid the rules.

Women interviewed said they will wiggle, cheat and even hire two cleaning women instead of one to avoid complying with regulations.

The regulations say that anyone hiring cleaning women, baby-sitters, gardeners and the like, must deduct 1.8 per cent of the employees' pay and contribute a like amount to the plan if the domestics earn more than $11.45 a week.

Mrs. Theresa Galloway, former president of the Provincial Council of Women, commented: "We'll wiggle out . . . it will be cheating . . . but the whole thing is silly."

DEAR ABBY . . .

Where's the Lesson?

By ABIGAIL VAN BUREN

DEAR ABBY: I just read the letter about the kids who stole goodies from the refrigerator and it reminded me of my own problem. We have ten kids between the ages of two and 13 and they are always helping themselves to goodies from the freezer, refrigerator and cupboards. No matter where I hide things, they always find them. These kids get plenty of treats. I pop popcorn and make candy every Sunday night and I bake twice a week, but they steal stuff anyway. They also rummage around in my drawers. I don't even have a pair of matching earrings any more. We solved the food-snitching problem, though. We keep everything locked up in the fruit cellar and I wear the key around my neck. We can't afford to feed ten kids three good meals a day and let them eat whatever they want all day.

MOM

DEAR MOM: You may save a lot of food by locking it up, but you're overlooking something far more valuable—the character of your children. They should be taught early that there is a mine and a thine, and they must either obey their parents or take the consequences. Children who are not disciplined by their parents will never learn to discipline themselves. With the privilege of having children goes the responsibility of training them.

DEAR ABBY: I have heard that is not proper for a widow to send Christmas cards or gifts the year of her husband's death. Is this true? What about answering friends from afar who haven't heard the sad news and send their Christmas cards addressed to "MR. AND MRS."? I hate to dampen their Christmas spirit with my unhappy news. Any help you can give me will be deeply appreciated.

RECENTLY WIDOWED

DEAR WIDOWED: Unless the grief is still too fresh for you to attempt to resume normal living, send Christmas greetings as usual. One must go on living. After the Christmas season has passed, write those friends who obviously were not aware of your husband's death and tell them.

DEAR ABBY: If this didn't actually happen to me, I'd never have believed it. I was laid off work for almost two months and needed a job desperately. I heard of a opening in my line of work (I am capable and knew all I needed was the chance, but I didn't have enough time put in at one place to land that job.) Well, I got a friend of mine to write false references, and I got the job. I am doing very well, and this is my fourth week there, but another problem has come up. This "friend" told me that I have to give her $5 a week, or she will write an anonymous letter to my boss revealing that my references were false. I know this is blackmail, but this job minus $5 a week is better than nothing. What should I do?

BLACKMAILED

DEAR BLACKMAILED: Tell your boss the truth and don't waste any time. If he fires you, he fires you. Then inform your "friend" that her little scheme won't work. And in the future, don't expect to find an honest partner for a crooked deal.

DEAR ABBY: I have never seen a problem like mine in your column. I am 24, and am engaged to be married to a man I've known about a year. We know each other quite well and have told each other about our pasts and things like that. But there is one thing he doesn't know about me. Six years ago I had my nose "bobbed." Large noses run in my family, and I had an enormously large nose. Now it's considerably reduced and is quite pretty, and only those who knew me B.O. (before operation) are aware that I've had one. Should I tell my fiance about my nose job? I don't think it would be fair to marry him and bear children who might inherit my real nose. Awaiting your reply, I am,

"NOSE JOB."

DEAR NOSE JOB: If he's the right kind of man, it's highly unlikely that you'll lose him by a nose.

CONFIDENTIAL TO "WANTS TO SERVE BUT HANDICAPPED": Your letter reveals a fine mind and a genuine determination to contribute to society. The true guardians of a country are not its soldiers, but its teachers. Consider a career in education.

Seasonal Symbol Highlights Dinner

An arrangement of evergreens, holly and apples, known as the "kissing bough," will be highlight of the seasonal decorations in Brown Hall of University School this evening when a special family Christmas dinner is held. Wife of the headmaster, Mrs. J. J. Timmis, made the traditional decoration for the formal dinner.

During the affair, a string trio will provide music and immediately following, the school boys will sing favorite carols and Christmas selections.

Seated at the head table will be the guest of honor, Archbishop Harold Sexton; Mr. and Mrs. Timmis, Mrs. A. S. Barker, Vancouver; Dr. and Mrs. Harry Hickman, Miss Winnifred Scott, headmistress of Norfolk House; Col. Rusell Ker, Mr. and Mrs. Logan Mayhew, and president of the old Boys' Association, E. E. Teagle, and Mrs. Teagle.

Fight the Wolf With Sheep's Wool

Keeping the wolf away from the door while wrapped in a sheep's wool jacket will be easy for one member of a destitute family in Korea. Along with the jacket which was donated to the Unitarian Service Committee by an Ontario woman, the USC Korean Social Team will provide articles of warm clothing and a daily portion of hot barley and milk. USC headquarters is at 56 Sparks Street, Ottawa 4.

TODAY'S RECIPE

HOT ROLLED SANDWICHES

Half cup fresh dates, 1 package (8 oz.) cream cheese, softened; ¼ cup butter or margarine, softened; ¼ cup minced parsley, ¼ cup fresh lemon juice, ½ teaspoon oregano, ¼ teaspoon salt, 14 to 16 slices white bread, 14 to 16 strips pickle, crisp bacon or cucumber.

Cut dates into small pieces. Blend cheese and butter until smooth; mix in dates, parsley, lemon juice, oregano and salt. Trim crusts from bread; spread with date-cheese mixture. Place pickle close to one edge of each slice; roll bread around it. Fasten with toothpicks.

Place rolled sandwiches in shallow pan and broil, turning often until lightly toasted. Remove toothpicks. Insert parsley sprigs in ends of rolls for garnish if you like.

Makes 14 to 16 sandwiches.

SEW SIMPLE WITH Eunice Farmer

Dear Eunice:

Do you have any suggestions as to what I might do for a pattern with kimono sleeves? They pull at the shoulders and also pull away at the neck. Could this be caused by my very square shoulders?

Mrs. C. U.

Dear Mrs. C. U.

Yes, this is the reason your dress is pulling away at the shoulders and neckline. You must change the pattern if you have square shoulders the same as you would change a pattern for regular set-in-sleeves.

Since you won't have a mark on your pattern for the shoulder, it is approximately 4 to 4½ inches from the neckline. Raise the height of the shoulder seam at this point about ½ inch. You will have a more squared look instead of the curve of the pattern. It is also important to raise the underarm ½ inch to give you more room.

Mrs. G. K. says: "In answer to Mrs. H. E. and anyone who is allergic to wool, try making your coats from a good quality Acrilan blanket. You can cut a slim-type coat from a double-sized blanket. These blankets come in such beautiful shades and plaids that would be suitable for most any occasion. The great part about them is the warmth without the excess weight."

BE SMART—

The hip-riding belt, studded with huge, glistening jewels, borrows its winning ways from designer St. Laurent, and, in peau de soie will add extra dash to your holiday at-home or evening clothes.

Joy Weber, left, and Ann Christy model the kangaroo coats which they bought while they were in Sydney, Australia, with the Ice Capades. Joy's shoes, bag and gloves are made of kangaroo suede.

Kangaroos Hit Spotlight With Skating Stars

By PAT DUFOUR

The kangaroo may be a pest in Australia but, if two attractive skaters in the Ice Capades show have anything to do with it, he'll soon end up as the darling of North America.

Here for the annual visit of the show which has its opening night at the Memorial Arena this evening, Joy Weber and Ann Christy are causing a stir as they walk around the city. The reason for their unusual share of attention is their coats which they bought when the Ice Capades visited Australia for three months this summer.

Joy's model is of sheared albino kangaroo fur while Ann wears a belted, sportive number that is made of the same fur, this time in its natural unclipped form.

In a show where the female members of the cast pride themselves on wearing clothes that are smart and distinctive, the kangaroo creations are "show stoppers."

Says Joy, "We all try to outdo each other in clothes, it's important to make a good impression when you arrive in a new city. The other girls love our coats and I'm sure that they'll be selling more when the show hits Sydney next year."

SHEEP KILLERS

She explains that kangaroos are hunted in Australia because of their destruction of sheep.

"They can be really dangerous. One flip of their tail or a blow from their paw can kill you. When the season is on, they hunt them in helicoptesr, jeeps and on horseback—anything goes!"

The two women skaters chose albino but both admit that the usual color (a greyish-brown) is also attractive.

Says Ann, "Two of the boys in the show, our wardrobe master, Kinney Moore, and a member of the ballet, Gary Magnuson, bought jackets and they're really smart."

You'd think that Australians would all sport kangaroo coats but this is not the case.

Joy reports, "The Australian rate of pay is much lower and few of them can afford to buy kangaroo coats. But, many of them go out, shoot their own animals and make their own clothes.

"One family I know had a son who did the hunting and the mother made all sorts of things from the fur—she covered the den sofa, made rugs, clothes and bedroom slippers."

Joy Weber is 21 and has been with the show for three years. As line captain she's responsible for the 24 women and 24 male skaters in the chorus. This year, she's been given additional responsibility. She teaches newcomers to the show their routines each morning.

As if this wasn't enough to keep her hopping on skates, she's also a soloist. Those seeing the show tonight will see Joy skating through her paces as the Japanese Princess. And, although she won't be wearing her kangaroo coat, her costume will be every bit as glamorous!

Ann is also a star. As Mimi, she's the little French girl in "When Paris Was Young." She also solos in "Bolero."

Joy admits that she had a certain amount of misgiving when she bought her coat until she found that kangaroos are such a menace.

"But nothing is more fun to watch than the wallaby. He's another type of kangaroo, smaller, only growing to four feet, compared to six or seven.

"I used to look forward to my Sundays off when I could join an Australian family on their weekly jaunt into the bush. There, we'd sit and watch the little fellows play. They'd slide down the rocks on their rear ends, front feet sticking out, looking like impish little boys. The slide over, they'd climb back and repeat the performance, over and over again."

In addition to the girl's coats, there are many others that are bound to raise a few envious eyebrows around town.

Says Joy, "Lots of the girls have mink, some have suits with huge collars, one has a beauty in sheared beaver and my room-mate has a darling of a coat, suede, gussied up with huge collar and cuffs of lynx."

But there's no coat with such an off-beat quality as those of Joy and Ann. Except, perhaps, the one worn by the perky skunk that's joined this year's cast.

In case you're worried, you can admire the skunk's coat in safety—he's de-odorized!

Simpson-Michael Wedding

BRIDE MAKES OWN GOWN

A floor-length gown of white brocade which she made herself was worn by Sandra Mae Michael recently when she became the bride of Ronald Robert Simpson in St. Alban's Anglican Church.

The gown was accented with a train of nylon, extending from the standup collar of the bodice. The bodice also featured cuffed three-quarter-length sleeves. Her three-tier scallop-edged veil misted to her shoulders from a headpiece of satin rosebuds. She carried a bouquet of chrysanthemums and gardenias in a cloverleaf shape.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. H. Michael, 1252 Pembroke Street, and the groom is the grandson of Mrs. R. W. Simpson, Edmonton, and the late Mr. Simpson.

Arrangements of long-stemmed carnations were at the altar of the church for the ceremony at which Rev. H. A. Mortimer officiated. The bride was given in marriage by her father.

Matching two-piece ensembles of turquoise lace over taffeta, with toning floral headpieces, edged with net, were worn by maid of honor Miss Gladys Michael and bridesmatron Mrs. D. Morris. Off-white chrysanthemums formed their bouquets.

Little flower girl Carolyn Michael was in a frock of candy pink lace over taffeta with matching headpiece. She carried a basket of off-white chrysanthemums.

David Kellogg was best man and guests were ushered to their pews by Garry Gurr.

Wedding bells and streamers decorated the church hall for the reception which followed. A three-tier wedding cake centred the head table. Arrangements of chrysanthemums and carnations completed table decorations.

A three-piece suit in tan and bone shades with accessories of tan and a corsage of white roses was worn by the new Mrs. Simpson for travelling on honeymoon.

Courses Fine . . . On Gov't Time

OTTAWA (CP) — Spokesmen for 120,000 federal civil servants were appearing before the royal commission on bilingualism and biculturalism today to express their views about the government's bilingual program.

Three civil service groups were submitting briefs generally favorable to an extension of bilingualism in their ranks, but expressing several qualifications.

The briefs say language courses for civil servants are fine provided they are on government time or financed completely by the government if not.

They warn that merit should continue to be the over-riding factor in hiring and promotions. They also agree that it is unrealistic to expect civil servants everywhere in Canada to become bilingual.

The briefs were made public last January but their formal presentation to the royal commission was delayed until today.

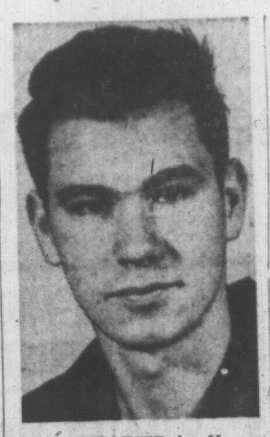

The groups appearing today are the Civil Service Federation of Canada, with 80,000 members, the 33,000-member Civil Service Association of Canada and the 7,000-member Professional Institute of the Public Service.

The federation recommends special allowances be paid to civil servants who are able and required to use both English and French in the normal course of their duties.

Compulsory teaching of both languages is urged for elementary and secondary schools across Canada.

The professional institute says a survey of its membership taken a year ago showed a large majority would be willing to take French lessons if they were provided free.

The Civil Service Commission, a government agency, operates several new language schools for volunteer civil servants in the Ottawa-Hull area.

STILL DETAINED by Havana police is Vancouver technician Ronald Ramsay, 24. He is alleged to have broken Cuban customs and currency regulations. He was boarding a plane for Mexico when a package containing U.S. currency and jewels was found in his luggage.

ANNUAL WAR

'Tis the Season To Battle 'Flu

OTTAWA (CP)—'Tis the season to be jolly. It's also the season for fevers, aches, stomach upsets and all the other symptoms of influenza.

While it may be small comfort to those who have come down with the recurring disease, health authorities say all indications point to no more flu than is normal at this time of year.

There certainly is no evidence available to the federal health department of a flu outbreak on the scale of the 1957 epidemic which affected thousands and disrupted schools and businesses.

But it may only be a matter of time before the versatile flu virus changes this bright picture. It seems to run in 10-year cycles.

If the flu bug holds true to form another variety should be ready to strike in 1967, when Canadians are marking the centennial of Confederation.

However, health authorities can't do anything until a new flu strain develops. And when it takes so long to produce a vaccine, which must be grown in fertilized eggs, that most of the population is exposed to the disease before they can take shots.

NATURE GUIDES HIM TO AUCKLAND

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters) —Dr. David Lewis, a New Zealander, sailed his catamaran Rehu Moana into harbor Tuesday night after an 18-month voyage from Britain with his wife, two daughters and an English schoolteacher friend.

Since leaving Tahiti, Lewis, 47, said he tested successfully the navigation methods of the old-time Polynesians by sailing with only nature's signs to guide him.

Hungarians Invited To Visit Homeland

OTTAWA (CP)—The Hungarian Embassy said Monday Canadians of Hungarian descent can return to the Communist country for a visit without fear of trouble.

Hungary is trying hard to develop a tourist industry and will welcome any Canadian visitor, First Secretary Istvan Varga said in an interview.

Since the embassy was established April 1, at least 5,000 Canadians had visited Hungary. Only three had run into trouble and Mr. Varga said it wasn't political trouble.

One was arrested for drunken driving and another in "a minor case" of smuggling.

The embassy was concerned about publicity given the third case—that of Tibor Torma of Toronto, arrested last month after an incident in a Hungarian cafe.

RIGHTWING WARNS

Mr. Varga said some "right wing Hungarian organizations and newspapers, especially in Toronto" have suggested the arrest signalled trouble for any Hungarian going back for a visit.

Mr. Torma left Hungary during the rebellion in 1956.

The embassy said this had nothing to do with the arrest. Mr. Varga said he believes Mr. Torma may be tried this week, probably on a charge of causing a disturbance.

IGNORE IT

"The Canadian public should not pay too much attention to two or three cases out of 5,000," he said. "Everyone is welcome in Hungary.

"We can assure you that if a visa is issued here, the only trouble you can get into is trouble made by yourself."

Hungary had given amnesty in 1963 to all those who left the country during the 1956-57 uprising. Even most of those jailed in Hungary had been freed.

The amnesty applied to the 30,000 Hungarians who had come to Canada. Only two to three per cent had been directly involved in the uprising anyway, Mr. Varga said.

He said "right wing elements" —usually Hungarians who came to Canada shortly after the Second World War—have consistently opposed better relations between the countries.

They had opposed establishment of diplomatic relations last year and now were trying to scare off Hungarians who would like to go back for a visit.

U.K. Plans Nose Count Of Frogs

LONDON (Reuters) — Wildlife officials, alarmed over Britain's declining frog population, have ordered a national frog census, it was disclosed Monday.

The census will be taken in conjunction with a scientific study of the effect of farm pesticides on Britain's wildlife. Hundreds of amateur naturalists will be recruited in the next five years to help compile a frog distribution map.

"It will be the first real survey ever made," said Dr. Frank Perring, a plant specialist assigned to the nature conservancy's experimental station at Abbots Ripton. He will collate the frog data.

He expressed the belief that the results would show a steady decrease in British frogs over the last 20 years. Perrin said modern agricultural methods had disturbed the places they liked to live, such as farm ponds and dikes.

"Some schoolboys have never seen a real frog," he added.

CENTENNIAL SQUARE SYMBOL OF NEW VIC TORIA

Downtown Became Brighter During the Wilson Years

By AB KENT

The "Wilson years" are nearly ended.

After four action-packed years, the double-term of Mayor Richard B. Wilson of Victoria comes to a close at the end of this month.

One way or another the Wilson years have touched every citizen in Greater Victoria: they brought the arts, theatre and recreation further into the public domain; fostered cultural and social exchange between French and English-speaking Canadians, and stimulated co-operation and understanding between local municipalities.

For eminently successful businsesman Wilson, who is 61, the mayoralty was a totally new experience and it gave him satisfaction.

Now he is anxious to resume the retirement he interrupted when persuaded to run for the city's highest office in December 196' the eve of Victoria's centenary.

At that time, as Mayor Wilson was about to make his inaugural address, retiring Mayor Percy Scurrah performed a final act as mayor.

Leadership

It was doubly symbolic: an indication of the new attention that would be focused on the mayor's office, and of the leadership that an enlightened council would give to community development.

"They have been a very busy four years," said Mayor Wilson in a moment of retrospect in his comfortable, uncluttered executive office overlooking Centennial Square.

"Everyone sets his own pace and I'm used to my gait."

That was all he wanted to say about his leadership.

Effect of the Wilson years has been felt in two main areas, each with dozens of individual accomplishments:

● Decisive leadership with streamlined administration at city hall. This includes reaffirmed confidence in the city manager system and setting of new aspirations and atmosphere in civic affairs.

● The making of Victoria a better place to live, more beautiful to residents and visitors alike, and to fix firmly the downtown core as the economic epicentre of the area.

The mayor agrees the results are there. He does not take credit for all of them.

He says the development climate, the times and opportunities have been in favor of Victoria progress during his two terms.

Key Factor

A key factor was creation by the provincial government in 1958 of B.C. Ferry Authority, providing up to hourly mainland vehicle, freight and passenger service.

"We were pretty isolated before that, almost dying on the vine," Mayor Wilson said.

"If there is any single thing you could put your finger on, the ferries might be it."

Improved air services and reduced fares, in which the mayor had a personal hand, also encouraged greater flow of people and freer economic exchange.

Downtown, a turning point in changes that are still taking place was the provision of off-street parking facilities. The three existing buildings have helped maintain property values by keeping business and buyers in the commercial core.

Parking Plan

City hall policy has encouraged private off-street parking development.

Hand in hand with this have been downtown and arterial traffic improvements such as

WILSON

The mayor brought surgery to bear on Fountain Circle, long stuc in the driver's craw, and now as Humber Green a smooth-working intersection governed by signal lights.

Extension of Rose street to the Saanich boundary created a speedy, badly-needed alternative access to the city; yellow curb increase traffic capacity, and widening of upper Fort Street within a few months will do more.

Paint-Up Drive

Add to these an accelerated downtown paintup campaign undertaken through co-operation of the real estate board, tree-planting, effect of the by-law to eliminate hanging signs gradually, creation of Centennial Square and retention of the old city hall, leadership in urban renewal, smoke abatement and other beautification.

The c has become a better place to live and work.

"There seems to be a new appreciation by the public in Victoria of planned improvement of the city. People like to see the city cleaner, more attractive, more interesting. It gives them a sense of pride in the city," Mayor Wilson said.

Solid proof of this is the fact that last year ratepayers passed a five-year capital budget program.

"This most helpful will," as the mayor calls it, gave the University of Victoria $2 million and the residue of more than $2 million to the people of Victoria.

Nice Things

City council has been able to do "some of the nice things we couldn't have done without the legacy," the mayor said, referring to Centennial Square projects and property acquisition for Bastion Square restoration.

There are plans drawn to use more of the money in redevelopin Royal Athletic Park.

The Wilson years may be remembered for Centennial Square and expanded, rebuilt city hall. They are geographical, and psychologically at city centre.

"I'm convinced city hall should be in the centre of the community," Mayor Wilson declares.

Natural Beauty

"The place seems to get rediscovered in waves," the mayor observed. "The natural beauty was always here of course. But people outside are always 'finding us' anew, thinking they are so original, seeing and appreciating the natural advantages we have in this very favored part of the world."

Victoria is riding the crest of its current wave of rediscovery, and a lot of the appreciation is through the mayor's own ambassadorial missions to the east, the U.S.A. and abroad, often at personal expense.

With the mayor leading, city council has progressed toward firmer ground with such diverse steps as provincial grants in lieu of taxes, joining in a regional parks board, creating planning and recreation departments, reorganizing the police department, creation of a central magis-

MAYOR WILSON
. . . 'I set my own pace'

. . . THE WILSON YEARS

trate's court and juvenile home, closing obsolete Mountain View Home, and Inner Harbor improvement in the yacht moorage.

Ottawa Briefs

There have been shipbuilding briefs to Ottawa, illumination of Beacon Hill Park, preparation of long-range traffic and land use plans, and high-rise developments in James Bay.

About the only major problem unsolved is public transit, and that has two years to run on the present basis.

The gait, as the mayor called it, has been the pace of a busy administrator who likes to do things with a minimum of fuss and with maximum effect, expecting his lieutenants to match him step for step.

Some people say Mayor Wilson was a one-man council, part of a machine, who cared too little for the opinions of others and who spent money as if it were sinful to save.

True, generous sums were spent during his administration, most of it from tax revenues. But Victoria's needs were so far wanting of fulfilment that a heavy hand seemed an absolute necessity.

No Politics

The accusation about organized influence is fantasy, although it is true again that many of the mayor's views coincide with the position of downtown business leaders.

"I've tried very hard to keep away from party politics," the mayor said. "I don't think it has a place at city hall."

The council should be politically neutral, judging each issue on its merits, he feels.

"I have never taken a swipe at the provincial government on a party basis," he said, although the criticisms have been many. "We've supported them and said nice things about them, too."

Mayor Wilson steps down with a feeling of accomplishment. He can see what he has done and that much of it will endure, a legacy which councils for years to come may never match.

Do Something

He did not want to be a powerful leader in the public eye—he became mayor reluctantly—but he loves his native city and saw that he could do something for it.

In his actions he has taken counsel from a wide consensus in the community and has always encouraged the aldermen to speak up, even though some discussions seemed interminable or bereft of weight

Does he aspire to political office? (His sympathies are known to be Liberal.)

"No," is his unequivocal answer. "I've been asked by all but one party at both the provincial and federal levels."

But he has yet to turn down the NDP in the unlikely event of being asked.

Mr. Wilson — as he will be Jan. 1 — has no aspirations in the public sphere.

He said suggestions that he is in line for a high post at provincial or federal level, such as lieutenant-governor or senator or chancellor of the University of Victoria, are "pure speculation."

Besides, he notes as a governor of the university, chancellors are elected, not appointed.

The knack for detail is characteristic of Dick Wilson, but thankfully for one in public office, it goes with a sense of humor:

May Cut Gaza Force

UNITED NATIONS (CP) — Canada's force in the Middle East would be cut by 131 men under a money-saving proposal aimed at reducing by 620 the total strength of the UN Emergency Force patrolling the Gaza Strip.

The reduction of the force, now totalling 4,579 from seven nations, was recommended in a survey team report which Secretary-General U Thant presented Tuesday to the General Assembly.

Ex-RCMP Chief Gets Scout Post

OTTAWA (CP)—L. H. Nicholson, once Canada's top Mountie, has been named international commissioner of the Boy Scouts of Canada, it was announced Tuesday.

He succeeds Earle T. Moore of Montreal who has held the office since October, 1953.

Soldierly Leonard Hansen Nicholson made RCMP history in 1959 when he resigned as commissioner of the force in a policy dispute with then Justice Minister Fulton.

At present he is head of the protection and investigation service of the Bank of Nova Scotia. He has been deputy chief Scout for Canada for the last six years.

ROSE THROUGH RANKS

A New Brunswick farm boy, he rose through the ranks of the RCMP to occupy its top post. He resigned at the age of 54 in protest over the federal government's refusal to reinforce the RCMP detachment in Newfoundland during the loggers' strike.

Born in King's County, New Brunswick, he joined the force in 1923, later serving with the New Brunswick and Nova Scotia provincial police forces before those provinces were policed by the RCMP under contract.

When the Nova Scotia force was absorbed into the RCMP in 1932, he headed criminal investigation there and from 1938 to 1942 held a similar post in Saskatchewan.

During the Second World War he held Provost Corps staff appointment in England, Italy and Northwest Europe, rising to the rank of colonel. He was awarded the MBE and was mentioned in dispatches.

He served as assistant commissioner of the RCMP from 1946 until he was appointed commissioner in 1951.

RUN-HIT ACCIDENT

PARIS (UPI) — Daniel Salvatore and M. Spectre suffered a broken nose and strained muscles in a collision in the suburbs Tuesday.

Police called to the scene searched in vain for their cars, however, as Spectre charged Salvatore with going too fast and Salvatore explained that he was blinded by the rain.

Branch 18 Disbanded; Flag Laid Away

The flag of the Tubercular Veterans' Branch No. 18 of the Royal Canadian Legion was ceremonially laid away in the chapel of the Veterans' Hospital Tuesday.

One of the few original members of Branch 18, E. V. Robley, 637 Avalon, attended the ceremony which was conducted by Padre Douglas Kendell of the Veterans' Hospital and Canon T. M. Hughes.

Branch 18 has been disbanded because so few of its members are still living. The widow of Fred Bankes had kept the flag in her home for a number of years.

Man Complains Of Too Much Water Pressure

A Saanich householder says he is getting more than twice the amount of normal water pressure at his new home.

Kennedy Smyth, 2601 Shieling Place, said in a letter to the public works committee meeting Tuesday night the pressure should be between 20 and 75 pounds but he is getting between 90 and 152 pounds.

The heavy pressure triggers the release valve on the hot water tank, he said, and runs off the hot water. There was a danger of explosion if the release valve stuck.

The municipal engineer said he found the pressure to be 140 pounds. It could be controlled with a special connection.

The committee referred the problem of who pays for the connection — Saanich or Mr. Smyth — to the municipal solicitor.

IN HOSPITAL after saving the lives of two children is 33-year-old Lance-Cpl. Gordon Chaukley. He carried the children from a burning house Tuesday in Toronto. He suffered from smoke inhalation. Three children, their parents and an uncle died in a blazing house next door.

OTTAWA (CP)—The federal labor department's new manpower mobility program providing loans and grants to help workers' move to distant jobs, will come into effect Dec. 28, it was announced today.

The program was announced last May and the department has since been working out the details of operation and training special staff.

Labor Minister MacEachen said in a statement that the mobility plan will help Canadian workers fulfil their individual working potential.

"It should also be of assistance in reducing those localized labor shortages which can be a serious bottleneck to our economic growth," he added.

Applications for moving assistance of up to $1,000 will be handled at local offices of the national employment service.

CONDITIONS FOR GRANTS

Outright grants, with no repayment strings, are available for four special categories:

1. Workers unemployed for at least four of the six months prior to application.

2. Those who have completed a provincially - approved training course or a program of vocational rehabilitation and re-establishment within at least three months of application.

3. Former employees of auto or auto parts plants who are on layoff because of plant changes attributed to the new Canada-U.S. auto agreement.

4. Key workers needed by employers who have received grants under the area development incentive act. (A "key worker" is defined as one whose work will create other job openings or prevent layoffs.)

QUALIFY FOR LOANS

Loans, repayable in 20 months at 5¾ per cent interest, will be made to any worker whose conditions:

1. There is little or no chance of a suitable job in his home region.

2. There is a shortage of workers in his line in the area to which he is moving.

3. There is a good chance of permanence in the new location.

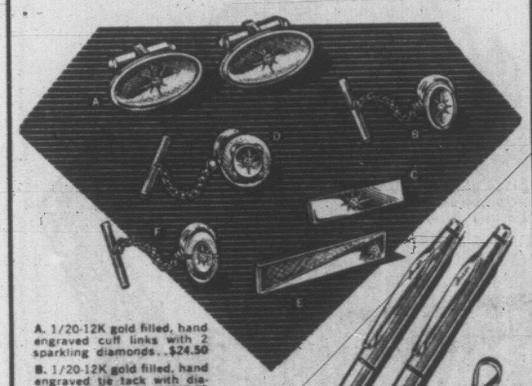

Both the grants and loans will be sufficient to cover actual costs of moving the worker, his family and their household goods. In addition, resettlement allowances are available up to a $1,000 amximum. These are based on $200 for the worker and his wife plus $100 for each dependent.

The mobility plan has been used at Sudbury because of the unusual number of unemployed persons moving to that mining city this year.

It also includes a retroactive provision for workers who already have moved on their initiative within the last three months.

Can Conditions Get Any Better?

By DON DINGWALL

DUNCAN—The 6,850 people employed in the area bounded by the Malahat, Lake Cowichan and Ladysmith can count on job security for another year.

Economic prospects in the district are rosy.

National Employment Service manager Robert Robinson says: "The only thing is, it can't be better than the past two years because we've had virtual full employment all the time."

But the district will continue to grow.

Capital projects already known to be in hand for 1966 total an impressive $32,000,000.

It will cost $22,000,000 and create about 100 new jobs.

Future capital programs which are firm prospects for 1966 are a $300,000 sawmill at Ladysmith; a provincial jail at Saltair; and a $1,009,000 school building program at Ladysmith.

For example, some 3,400 men were employed in area sawmills.

House building accounted mainly for the city of Duncan topping $1,000,000 in building permits issued for the first time in its 53-year history.

In 1965 BCFP added a new pulp mill at Crofton including a new bleach plant and pulp drier.

In October, 1963, Crofton employed 678 people.

The payroll in October this year was $27.

Industrial relations superintendent Jack Gallagher said: "We only go outside the local area if a certain skill isn't available."

Mr. Gallagher said company policy is to increase the liaison between themselves and the schools.

BCFP wanted more awareness among high school and university graduates of the career opportunities at Crofton.

The mill also uses between 50,000,000 and 60,000,000 gallons of water daily from the Cowichan River.

This compares to 9,000,000 gallons a day used by the city of Victoria.

The other major employer in the district is MacMillan, Bloedel and Powell River Ltd. at Chemainus.

The 100-year-old sawmill there has grown to an annual output of 200,000,000 board feet of lumber—enough to build a sidewalk four feet wide and two inches thick from Vancouver to Montreal.

Lumber exports from the ports of Chemainus and Crofton this year to the end of November totalled 282,958,760 board feet.

The 11-month total for 1964 was 235,319,566 board feet.

Chemainus mill has a payroll for over 700 employees of $2,000,000.

It pays the municipality of North Cowichan some $140,000 in taxes.

Crofton pays $400,000 in taxes—and between them they pay half the municipal taxes.

Local calls to the end of November were 2,173 compared to 2,021 for 11 months last year.

Figures released by the three local banks show retail business for this year to Nov 30 amounted to close to $30,000,000.

Victoria Firm Wins Sooke School Contract

Successful and lowest bidder was Luney Bros. and Hamilton of Victoria.

READY BY SEPTEMBER

The building is expected to be completed by September.

Other bidders were Patterson Construction, $337,862; E. J. Hunter and Sons, $353,226; Fowler and Sons, $337,164; G. H. Wheaton, $337,917, and C. J. Oliver of Vancouver, $349,150.

Youth Jailed After Fight In Dwelling

CAMPBELL RIVER—A youth who carried a street fight into a private home was sentenced in court here Tuesday to 12 months definite and 18 months indeterminate.

Lorne Duff, 17, was convicted of unlawfully entering a private dwelling and assault.

Another teen-ager will appear later charged with unlawfully entering a dwelling, RCMP said.

Duff received another six-month sentence for assault but the penalties will run concurrently.

'EVIL THING'

Magistrate Haig-Brown called Duff's conduct "an evil and vicious thing."

Court was told Duff and another youth were fighting on the street and then forced their way into the home of William Anger, Oct. 10.

They continued their brawl in the home and Mrs. Anger was kicked and boarder Brian Hanneson, 20, was assaulted by Duff.

FIGHTING WITH SON

They had been fighting with Mrs. Anger's son, Robert, 20, court was told.

Magistrate Haig-Brown told Duff "this bullying and intimidation carried through from end to end of this wretched affair was bad enough on streets and public places.

"But you had the impudence to carry it into a private dwelling place. This will not be tolerated."

CHEER FUND NEEDS HAPPINESS INJECTION

DUNCAN—Cowichan Christmas Cheer Fund is only halfway to its target.

And there are only nine days to go till hampers are packed for needy families.

10-ACRE SITE

Duncan Planning Centennial Park

DUNCAN—City consulting engineers are doing a cost study of developing 10 acres near Centennial Heights subdivision as a centennial park.

Mayor Jack Dobson said this morning: "We might find the idea too expensive."

The idea came from the city's advisory planning commission.

The land lies between Government Street, Boundary Road and the subdivision.

During the past three years the city has used winter works money to do drainage work on the site.

LARGER SCHEME

"The only thing that could defeat it now would be a larger scheme on a regional basis," he said.

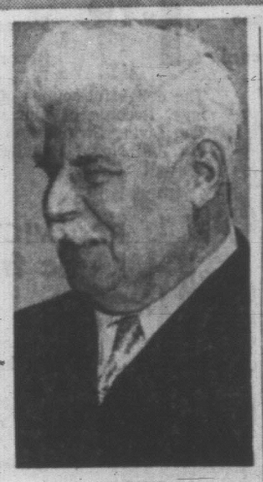

This is a reference to a possible recreation complex to be developed in the Duncan area jointly by the city, municipality and unorganized area.

The city's centennial grants from central government will be about $6,000.

Drainage of the proposed site has been estimated to cost $10,000.

If fully developed the area between Government Street and Boundary Road will boast a lawn bowling green, little league baseball diamond, tennis courts, softball diamond, fields for volleyball and basketball and a large play area.

A community hall on the site would have meeting rooms, an auditorium, indoor swimming pool, children's nursery and games room.

Mill Bay Shuns Regional Plan

The protest meeting was sponsored by Mill Bay Community League.

Said league executive member George Bonner: "Our views will be made known to the minister of municipal affairs.

"The meeting felt Mill Bay would be treated the same way in a regional district as when it was brought into Cowichan School District 65.

"At that time we were told our mill rate would not be more than five mills," he said.

"Today the school rate is 20 mills."

WEST COAST GENERAL

Major Expansion Set at Hospital

PORT ALBERNI — A $4 million extension and renovation scheme for West Coast General Hospital was unveiled here Tuesday.

The hospital was opened 13 years ago. It cost $1 million to build.

New plans for the building include construction of a 30-bed extended care unit.

Children's ward overcrowding has long been a controversial subject in this area.

"It has taken a long time to prepare the plans. There has been no procrastination on the project," said hospital administrator Harvey Taylor.

The plans have been submitted to the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service.

Creation of a regional hospital district to facilitate financing is now under discussion.

ITALIAN ORDERED DEPORTED

DUNCAN — Magistrate Lance Heard Tuesday ordered the deportation to Italy of Guiseppe Iannidinardo after sentencing him for breach of probation.

But he will have to spend 60 days in Oakalla Prison first.

Quebec Gets Snow

QUEBEC (CP)—Since Monday 11 inches of snow have fallen on the Quebec City area.

Road traffic has been hampered with poor visibility, a major handicap to drivers. No serious accidents have been reported.

ISLAND DIGEST

FIRST CRIME RECORDED AT GOLD RIVER

GOLD RIVER — This instant municipality has had a lot of "firsts" since it was recently created.

Now its first policeman, RCMP Constable William Rennenkamp, is looking into Gold River's first crime.

Someone broke into the commissary at Gold River Beach camp, the pulp mill site, and robbed the till of $200.

PRODUCING MARK SET BY HOLSTEIN

DUNCAN—A new Vancouver Island record for milk production has been set by G. A. (Clive) Van Jaarsveld.

His four-year-old Holstein Tall Trees Ideal Pride produced during one lactation period a total of 27,235 pounds of milk and 1,025 pounds of butterfat.

During November a total of 59 records were completed consisting of 43 Holstein, 12 Jerseys, three Guernseys and one cross-breed.

31 OUT OF 45

Thirty-one mature cows qualified out of 45, and seven two-year-olds out of 14.

Mr. Poelman's Holstein Akke produced 20,271 pounds of milk and 712 pounds of butterfat in 305 days.

Best two-year-old cow was Jo-Ann, a Holstein belonging to C. S. Fox & Son.

COVERED-WAGON TREK

'I'm Glad Trip is Over'

By DON McLEOD

HALIFAX (CP) — Two bearded men in cowboy clothes unhitched their covered wagon Tuesday, bedded down their horses and headed for a motel room to sleep.

Cecil Rivers of Calgary and Bill Stiff of Fort William, Ont., had just completed a 3,700-mile trip from Calgary that began April 5 in a Prairie schooner.

En route here, a dog making the trip produced eight pups. Rivers' original travelling companion was replaced at Fort William by Stiff.

RIVERS
. . . 3,700-mile trip

"I must say I'm glad to see this day arrive. . .although it's been an enjoyable trip," said Rivers, 34, who had been a guidance counsellor at a beauty college in Calgary.

Stiff, 36, was a transport truck driver in Fort William.

Rivers said he began the trip with $3.65. He said souvenirs he sold and the free board and lodgings from the public kept the cost to a minimum.

Rivers estimated he has taken 65 to 70 rolls of eight and 16-milimeter film and 35 milimeter slides, on the way.

The trip was completed about a month behind schedule, eight months and nine days after it started.

"There's no better way to see Canada. We've seen things even local residents didn't see," said Rivers.

Rivers said they "left Calgary in a rainstorm. . .and we ended our trip in a rainstorm." The two encountered snow almost every day during the first and last months of the trip, with the most serious storm in Quebec.

AFTER MORE than eight months on the road, a covered wagon is escorted past Halifax city limits by police cruiser. Cecil Rivers, a bearded 34-year-old Calgary resident, started the long haul in his hometown. He was joined in Fort William by Bill Stiff, 36, on the 3,700-mile trip. (CP Wirephoto.)

BIBI GOES WESTERN

Girl Wears Pants, Bra For American Version

By BOB THOMAS

HOLLYWOOD (AP) — It's a long distance from the explicit dramas of Sweden to an American western. Bibi Andersson has made the transition with what appears to be highly satisfactory results.

Bibi is the striking blonde who achieved fame as leading lady in Ingmar Bergman films, some of which have run afoul of American censors. Producer-director Ralph Nelson admired her work and cast her with James Garner and Sidney Poitier in Duel at Diablo, which was entirely on location near Kanab, Utah.

Westerns have progressed beyond the era when the cowboy star kissed only his horse.

"Four men try to tear my clothes off in one scene," reported Bibi. "But of course this is a western, and the hero rescues me before they can succeed."

I asked if a European version was filmed, in which the hero arrived late. No, she said, expressing interest in the practice of some American producers to franker or nuder versions for the overseas trade.

"We do the same thing in Sweden; we make American versions," she said. "For the version here, the girl wears pants and a bra."

BOTH WAYS

Such are the divergent cultures. Bibi Andersson seems capable of playing both sides of the ocean. Her English is flawless. She admitted enjoying the location, gruelling though it may have seemed.

"For the first eight weeks the sun shone," she said. "Since I am from Sweden, that's all I needed to keep me happy. Later it rained, and I was not so happy. But I managed to keep my spirits up."

HOT LIGHTS

Even on a rugged location, filming in the United States is easier than in Sweden, she said.

"In Sweden we have no stand-ins," she commented. "The actors have to stand under the hot lights until the scene is ready, and that is very tiring."

Christmas Religious?

TUEBINGEN (AP)—A public opinion poll indicates that 31 per cent of the men and 28 per cent of the women in West Germany no longer regard Christmas a religious holiday. The Wickert Public Opionion Institute says it conducted its survey after a similar poll in England showed that almost two-thirds of those queried did not regard Christmas as a religious observance.

Court Upholds Tax Against Reader's Digest

MONTREAL (CP)—The Quebec Court of Appeal has upheld the constitutionality of the 1956 excise tax on periodicals under which the Canadian Reader's Digest was assessed an estimated total of $835,000.

The federal statute, which remained in force for only 18 months, levied a tax of 20 per cent on the value of advertising matter in non-Canadian periodicals published in Canada and of which at least 25 per cent of the editorial material was the same as that of their non-Canadian counterparts.

The Reader's Digest Association (Canada) Ltd. and Selection du Reader's Digest (Canada Ltd. had sought to have the statute declared outside Parliament's powers and to receive a tax refund of $35,225 which they paid on the basis of advertising in their issues of February, 1957.

Mr. Justice R. W. Owen was the sole dissenter in the five - judge verdict announced Tuesday. He said that even if the tax statute were constitutional, the publications were not subject to the tax because they "did not fall within the letter of the taxing statute."

SUBJECT TO ACT

The other members of the appeal court—Chief Justice Lucien Tremblay and justices G. Miller Hyde, Edouard Rinfret and Andre Taschereau — held that the act was clearly within the powers of Parliament and that Reader's Digest was subject to it.

The Digest had contended that the act trespassed on the exclusive powers of provincial legislatures to deal with matters of property and civil rights.

In the judgment, Mr. Justice Hyde rejected the suggestion that the Canadian Digest is a provincial enterprise. "Its publications are for nation-wide circulation and the advertisements therein are of the national type," he said.

Mr. Justice Hyde said the Digest had not shown that the tax measure was prohibitive. "There is nothing to indicate any attempt by Parliament to control or restrict its publication."

U.S. Aids Yugoslavia

BELGRADE (AP) — The United States announced here Tuesday new credit grants of $57,000,000 to help the Yugoslav economy. American Ambassador C. Burke Elbrick made the announcement to the Yugoslav government and expressed U.S. understanding of the aims of Yugoslavia's drastic economy reform program.

Strike Shuts Mine

GEORGETOWN (AP)—British Guiana's labor department officials held talks today with officials of the Canadian-owned Demerara Bauxite Co. and the mine workers' union in an attempt to end the strike which Tuesday closed down the entire bauxite operations at Mackenzie, 65 miles from here.

QUEEN SALOTE
. . . a legend

Tonga Queen Is Dead

AUCKLAND, N.Z. (Reuters)—Queen Salote of Tonga died here today. She was 65.

The queen arrived in Auckland early last month for what was said to be an annual medical checkup. She was accompanied by her second son, Prince Tuipelehake, and his wife, Princess Meleniate.

Her elder son, Prince Tungi, the premier of Tonga, was expected to reach here Thursday.

He is the new monarch and will reign as King Tupou. His brother, Prince Tuipelehake, will succeed him as prime minister.

When she arrived in Auckland, the towering, 280-pound queen was lowered from the plane by a forklift truck. She was admitted to a private hospital earlier this week.

TREATED FOR CANCER

The Tonga government's agetn in Auckland, H. F. Reynolds, said the queen's original illness was diabetes. A later condition in a leg which was diagnosed as a type of cancer came to light and she wsa flown to Auckland for treatment.

Last Sunday she was admitted to the hospital because of chest complications and pleurisy, he said.

Six-foot three-inch Queen Salote Tu pou became almost a legned in the Tongan or Friendly Islands after she succeeded her father on the throne in 1918.

Her dynasty goes back at least 10 centuries. Her father, King George II of Tonga, signed a treaty of friendship and protection with Britain. This was replaced by a new treaty in 1958.

Queen Salote was largely unknown to the outside world until she attended Queen Elizabeth's coronation in London June 2, 1953. Huge crowds cheered the beaming queen as she drove through the rain with the top of her coach down so all the people could see her.

Tonga, in the southern Pacific some 300 miles east of Fiji, has an area of 269 square miles and a population of about 67,000.

1965 FILM OSCARS

Wide Open Race For No. 1 Actor

By BOB THOMAS

Since not all films contending for an Academy Award have been shown yet—Doctor Zhivago is still in the cutting rooms—an accurate analysis of the hopefuls cannot be made. But a survey of probables indicates it will be man's year.

At least four actors are being pushed for double performances: Sidney Poitier for A Patch of Blue and The Slender Thread; James Stewart for Shenandoah and The Flight of the Phoenix; Oskar Werner for Ship of Fools and The Spy Who Came in from the Cold; and Lee Marvin for Ship of Fools and Cat Ballou.

Laurence Olivier's Othello doubtless will be a strong contender, as will Omar Sharif's Doctor Zhivago.

OTHERS IN RUNNING

For best actress, such past winners as Julie Andrews, The Sound of Music), Simone Signoret (Ship of Fools), Vivien Leigh (Ship of Fools) and Anne Bancroft (The Slender Thread) are among the most promising.

The race for best picture shows no overwhelming winner like last year's My Fair Lady. MGM has high hopes for its costly Doctor Zhivago.

Canadian Held

CORPUS CHRISTI, Tex. (AP) —A man described as a Canadian was held by federal authorities Tuesday under charges of "possessing and concealing" $200,000 or more in counterfeit U.S. bills. Arrested Monday night at his apartment here was Bruce G. Reid, 27.

ISRAEL BANS BOND MOVIE

JERUSALEM (AP) — The James Bond movie Goldfinger has been banned in Israel — after two months of good business — because one of its players was a Nazi, the Israeli government announced Wednesday. Local newspapers had charged German actor Gert Frobe, who plays the villainous title role, belonged to the Nazi party.

Services will be held in McCall Bros. FLORAL CHAPEL, Johnson and Vancouver Sts., on Saturday, Dec. 18, at 3:15 p.m., Rev. W. Van Druten officiating. Followed by cremation. (Flowers gratefully declined).

8 CARDS OF THANKS

I wish to extend my sincerest appreciation for all expressions of sympathy, cards, and flowers, received, during the sudden passing of my dear son, James Campbell Smith. Special thanks to Mr. and Mrs. Cliff and Mr. and Mrs. Gordon Horwood for their great comfort. Also to pallbearers, of Horwood Garage. For consoling words of Rev. E. C. Wright, and Thomson and Irving Funeral Chapel. Our deepest thanks—Florence R. Smith. 960 Bank St.

Andy Stephen Looks at TV

There are days when the news from television networks is as tough to swallow as dried white turkey meat the third day out.

Stephen

A gem crossed the desk the other day and nothing will do until it is shared equally among the constituents. It is about an actor who turned down $1,000,000 to take a lead role in NBC-TV's Laredo.

Laredo? It's one of them thar' westerns.

The actor's name is William Smith. Smith? He's one of them thar' Texas Rangers.

Now we're all even.

The publicists said this fellow Smith got an "offer to play 'Tarzan' in a new TV series about the jungle superman."

Under terms of the deal, Smith was to be paid $200,000 a year. Everyone he checked assured him such a tried and tested series would be a cinch to run at least five years; in other words, a million dollars worth.

But strong-willed motivation stepped in and Smith turned the gravy down.

He wasn't interested in working in a loincloth for five years, money or no money. He'd druther, and it is supposed he has his druthers, work in a strangely unknown western, sharing billing with four other guys who would probably have jumped at the chance to cavort with Cheetah.

It didn't seem to do Johnny Weismueller any harm. Or Buster Crabbe, Bruce Bennett or Lex Barker, for that matter.

The "Tarzan" series has gravy train written all over it.

TIDBITS: CBS-TV has approved three pilot comedy projects, two of them involving comics who have had their own shows in the past. Phil Silvers will star in "The Help," while Sid Caesar will headline "The Mouse That Roared." The third will topline Ann Sheridan in a western spoof called "Pistols 'n' Petticoats" . . . Telecasting of Canadian travel films in the U.S. increased by 45 per cent in the past year.

Universal-TV is now shooting the first of what could become an established pattern for producing studios—a two-part TV show, each 90 minutes long, which eventually could be blended as a feature-length movie for motion picture houses. It will be a double-segment of "The Virginian" series called "The Road West," with Barry Sullivan as the star. It will be shot in color.

City Officer Defence Counsel In Murder Trial

ZWEIBRUCKEN, Germany—An Esquimalt man Monday opens his case for the defence of LAC Edward Zeismann, 27, of Emerson, Man., charged by Canadian military courts with the September slaying of his wife and two young daughters.

Lt.-Cmdr. Roland Barnes of 1107 Bewdley is a naval officer with 12 years' experience with the Judge Advocate General's branch.

He joined the navy shortly after graduating with a law degree from the University of British Columbia.

LAC Zeismann was quoted by military police as saying he killed his wife when she told him of intimacy with another man.

He said he then killed his daughters, aged 3 and 5, because he "couldn't let them live with no mother and a murderer for a father."

A mandatory plea of not guilty was entered, and last Monday the prosecution rested its case.

HOME GARDEN

Laughter And Fun With Manure

Much needed fun and laughter can be put into gift giving when the recipient is an ardent gardener.

Hilda

What might easily be termed an embarrassment of riches is contained in a load of barnyard or stable manure, yet I know of many gardeners who have proudly boasted of such a gift.

Make sure your recipient has a suitable place for dumping, then you'll be certain of compliments on your choice of a gift that will keep on giving all through the year in added garden fertility.

STOUT PAPER

The bale comes in stout waterproof paper. You may decorate it with a spray of evergreen and a huge foil bow. It will be clean to handle in your best clothes, and is sure to get laughs mingled with the genuine appreciation.

Down the scale in size are the useful lightweight, two-wheeled garden carts for the folks who are unable to push a wheelbarrow.

These are particularly useful on hard paths, but useless on soft soil either wet or dry.

Sturdy, small-sized digging forks and spades get a warm reception from the gardener who is apt to tire easily by just carrying his tools to the spot where he thought of working if he wasn't tired out by the effort of getting there.

WHO KNOWS?

And who knows? The growing-up youngsters might contribute some of their enormous energy to the job if the tools were not giant sized.

Garden plants are perhaps the most obvious choice as gifts, but gift certificates for these would be more sure of appreciation unless you know of a specific plant coveted.

The most colossal gift received joyously by an avid gardener a few years ago was a brand new brick chimney for the greenhouse.

It was grey brick, so she attached an enormous red foil bow to show the giver, and the world, her appreciation.

UN Approves Pact

UNITED NATIONS (CP)—The United Nations General Assembly's social and humanitarian committee Tuesday approved a proposed international pact aimed at banning racial discrimination. The vote was 87-to-0, assuring ratification by the assembly itself. The proposed convention will be binding upon all countries which adhere to it, effective when it is accepted by 27 nations.

PETITION PLAN ON INSURANCE STILL ALIVE

Hospital orderly Thomas Moran, 4155 Barber, said today he hasn't dropped plans for a petition protesting the recent announcement of car insurance premium increases.

He said several persons have telephoned him saying they are disappointed the petition plan was dropped.

"It has not been dropped," he said. "We hope to have everything ready by January."

Mr. Moran said it took more time than expected to organize the protest.

. . . CENTENARY

City manager Dennis Young commented:

"These add very substantially to what we originally planned. The question is, what are we prepared to celebrate?"

PAY HALF COST

It is presumed by the centennial committee that the province will pick up half the cost of these events, although there is no commitment in writing.

Reeve Cox observed that the Oak Bay share of the total expenses, including the joint stadium project for University of Victoria would be $68,000 under the first proposed celebration plan.

OPEN FLOODGATES

Cutting down on grants and easing off 1966 events would bring the Oak Bay share down to about $43,500 including nearly $37,000 for the stadium.

Ald. Michael Griffin, centennial celebrations chairman, said it was feared "the moment $10 is given away, the floodgates will be opened and we'll be inundated."

For this reason the committee wanted to know just what it would have to give.

Lab Wins High Honors In Dog Trials

The dog, named Raven, won the T. M. Jones Cup with 198.5 points out of a possible 200. The dog also took the highest in novice "B" ribbon.

Highest in open "A" was won by Sam, owned by Mrs. B. M. Jeffries of Victoria (183.5 points), and highest in utility was won by Jodes, owned by Mrs. A. G. Stewart of Victoria (193.5).

Highest visitor with 186 points was a Corgi—Siam—owned by Mrs. Leslie Webber of Victoria.

Municipal Clerk.

CAMPBELL

BY OSC DIRECTOR

'Unusual Interest' In Windfall

TORONTO (CP)—John Kimber, chairman of the Ontario Securities Commission, testified today he thought John Campbell showed unusual interest in the Windafll affair in July, 1964.

He was giving evidence at a preliminary hearing of two charges of a breach of trust by a public official against Campbell, former director of the Ontario Securities Commission.

Earlier evidence disclosed that Campbell had attemhted to prevent the Toronto Stock Exchange from suspending trading in Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. in July, 1964. At that time, Windfall had risen sharply in price on rumors that the company had found ore near Timmins, Ont.

Magistrate Joseph Addison asked Mr. Kimber: "In relation to Mr. Campbell's almost frantic activities relating to not having Windfall delisted or suspended, would they be unusual or abnormally?"

HAS NO JURISDICTION

"The securities legislation in Ontario does not contain any provision for OSC jurisdiction over the exchange," Mr. Kimber replied.

Magistrate Addison asked: "Did you think there was anything unusual in this interest shown by Mr. Campbell?"

"Yes, I did feel it was unusual that he had become involved in a situation which was not his responsibility . . . I think the actions taken . . . were not usual. I can't recall any case where the commission had become so involved in such a situation," Mr. Kimber said.

Mr. Kimber testified Tuesday that Campbell planned to resign as director after the Windfall excitement died down.

Evidence given at the royal commission inquiry earlier this year into the affairs of Windfall Oils and Mines Ltd. showed that Mr. Campbell dealt in Windfall shares while he was commission director.

The shares rose to $5.60 from 56 cents and sagged again to 80 cents in 17 hectic trading days on the Toronto Stock Exchange in July, 1964.

The rise was caused by rumors that Windfall had pulled a rich drill core from its Timmins-area property. When the rumors proved false the stock plunged more than $3 overnight.

SUSPENDED IN AUGUST

Mr. Campbell was suspended by Attorney - General Arthur Wishart in August, 1964, and resigned a month later.

Mr. Kimber said Mr. Campbell told him of his plan to resign earlier in August.

"I told Mr. Campbell I had been informed that Mrs. MacMillan had given him 5,000 shares of Windfall," he said.

"I asked him if this was true and he said it was true and that it had been on his mind and a matter of concern to him.

"He said he planned to resign when he felt the excitement over Windfall had died down, and that it would be appropriate to resign on the anniversary of his appointment."

LOANED HIM STOCK

Mrs. MacMillan testified that she gave Mr. Campbell 5,000 Windfall shares as a loan to her short position in the stock.

She said she gave him the share certificates on the understanding they would be returned in a few days.

She said she got them back about a month later, on Aug. 6 or 14.

At the time of the loan the shares were worth between $3 and $4 on the exchange. When they were returned they were worth less than $1 each.

"Did you, between July 12 and Aug. 6 or 14, ask the accused for the return of the stock?" asked special prosecutor Rod Cormack.

"Yes, I did, several times, because I realized what a serious mistake it was," Mrs. MacMillan said.

"He said he would get them from Bunty (Mrs. Campbell) and return them to me."

The hearing continues.

Capt. Blamed In Disaster

ATHENS (Reuters) — An inquiry into the loss of the cruise ship Lakonia, which burned and sank in the Atlantic two years ago with the loss of 125 lives, has blamed the captain and two officers for gross negligence.

A report issued Tuesday night by the Greek Maritime Accident Council placed lesser blame on five other crew members.

It said there were serious omissions in fighting the fire and in abandoning the vessel.

Fire broke out in the barber shop of the 20,648-ton liner Dec. 22, 1963, as it sailed in calm seas 180 miles north of Madeira. Most of the 648 passengers were British tourists. The liner sank three days later.

The inquiry blamed the master, Capt. Matthew Zarbis, Staff Capt. Domitris Valmas, and the safety officer, Chief Mate Spyridon Angelopoulos, for gross negligence in the way the fire was tackled and the operation of abandoning ship.

The spread of the fire was attributed partly to "the bad organization and training of the members of the fire-fighting squads, who fought with sacrifice, but without any concrete plan or co-ordination of efforts by the competent safety officers of the vessel."

Lifeboats Needed Fixing

MIAMI (AP) — The crew member in charge of maintaining the lifeboats aboard the cruise ship Yarmouth Castle testified Tuesday that his efforts to repair them were rebuffed by his superiors.

The cruise liner sank off the Bahamas Nov. 13 with a loss of 90 lives, including those of two Canadians.

The maintenance man, Jamaican Robert Newman, said he told the chief mate that some boats should be repaired. The chief mate, Newman testified, discussed the matter with the captain and then remarked:

Newman also testified that some lifeboats could not be launched and parts to make them operable arrived too late to install before the liner sank.

Newman said he made three written requests before receiving the parts.

LONDON BIRD-WATCHERS ALERTED

Goldie Flies the Coop Again

LONDON (Reuters)—Goldie, the golden eagle, which intrigued Londoners with its antics for 12 days after escaping from a zoo in February, is on the lam again.

As Goldie's keeper was leaving the cage today, the male bird flew to freedom in an escape which was almost a carbon copy of his first break-out.

Moments after his flight today, the eagle was stretching his six-foot wingspan in nearby Regent's Park, one of his favorite haunts and the scene of the final act of his first breakout when he was lured into the hands of his keepers with a tempting rabbit breakfast.

Zoo officials appealed to London's bird-watching public today to let Goldie alone so that he might be lured back by his keeper.

HE GIVES AWAY GRAND PRIZES

Is there something you want to know? Do you want to win a set of valuable books or other instructive prizes? Then ask Andy.

Andy will answer questions submitted by child readers and those who submit the questions he selects to answer will receive worthwhile prizes.

The youngster who asks the first question answered each day receives a 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia and of the second question a Hammond Atlas or Globe.

Andy sends a complete, 20-volume set of the World Book Encyclopedia to Brian Wolterman, age 7, of Battle Creek, Iowa, for his question:

What is a sea robin?

The red-breasted robin is at home in the garden. You would never expect the little fellow to go to sea or to be a sailor. Well, our feathery friend is not a sailor, and he does not go to sea. The so-called sea robin is not related to him. He is not even a bird.

The sea robin is a scaly fellow with fins. He has toothy jaws and gills for breathing oxygen from water. In fact, he is a fish — not a bird. He is an ocean fish who spends his time on the floor of the sea. Some people say that he walks on the sandy sea floor, but we know for sure that he makes a singing noise.

This very unusual fish lives in the Atlantic Ocean along with several cousins very much like himself. He may be two feet or even three feet long. His large head is covered with a bony helmet. His body may be scaly or covered with more bony plates of armor. Chances are, our sea robin is daubed with patches of bright red, yellow or vivid blue.

His fins are more noticeable than his colors. The side fins that are where his arms should be are very long and spiky. They curve downward and end in pointed fingers. He uses these fins to feel his way over the sandy floor of the sea. If you look down on him through the water, the sea robin seems to be walking.

He is really grubbing for his food. Sometimes he finds a fat worm or a small fish. Sometimes he catches a clam before it has a chance to shut its shell. The sea robin's favorite food is tiny crabs, sea snails and water fleas.

Almost all fishes have air pockets inside their scaly bodies. Air, of course, is lighter than water, and a balloon full of air floats to the surface. It may be light enough to lift a small weight to the surface. The air bladder of a fish helps him stay up near the top of the water. When he wants to swim at a lower level, he lets some of the gas out of his air pocket.

Eggs Left Floating

The sea robin has another use for his air bladder. He squeezes it to make noises. He can chirp and twirp, tackle and crackle. And some people claim that these noises sound like the singing of a bird. This is why he is called a sea robin, even though he has fins and scales instead of feathers.

Mrs. Sea Robin lays her eggs early in the summer. Thousands of the little yellow eggs are left floating in the water. Some of them hatch and grow up to be large sea robins and spend the rest of their lives on the ocean floor. Summer is their busy, egg-laying season, and when the sea robins sing their loudest. People on the shore can hear their underwater cackles and crackles from Canada to South America.

Andy sends a 15-inch World Book Globe to Linda Ward, age 11, of Houston, Texas, for her question:

What is magnitude?

The word magnitude means great or large in size, but it has a very special meaning to astronomers. In the science of the heavens, magnitude is the measure of a star's brightness. Since the stars tend to fool our eyes, each one has two magnitudes, its apparent magnitude and its real magnitude.

Its apparent magnitude is the brightness it appears to have. Its real magnitude is its true magnitude, as measured by astronomical instruments along with a lot of detailed astronomical figures. The magnitude numbers seem to be backward, for a star of sixth magnitude is dimmer than a star of first magnitude. On the scale of magnitude, each step grows by two and a half. A star of first magnitude is two and a half times brighter than a star of second-magnitude.

Whaling Discussed

TOKYO (Reuters)—A four-nation conference to discuss control of whaling operations in the northern Pacific will open in Honolulu Feb. 7, it was announced Tuesday. Canada, the United States, Japan and the Soviet Union will participate in the 10-day conference, the government fisheries agencies said.

Combining Alcohol With Barbiturates

By DR. WALTER ALVAREZ

People recently have been reading about the death of a woman who took sleeping medicine on top of some alcoholic drinks. Many are now much worried for fear that if they take a highball or a cocktail or two before supper, and later take a barbiturate, they can kill themselves.

Alvarez

This is foolish. Several times I have experimented, taking a glass of sherry, and with it a barbiturate, and so far as I could see, all the combination did was to bring sleep a bit more quickly; also the sleep was a bit deeper. This, of course, is an impression, so I cannot be sure.

What I think may have happened in cases in which persons died was that around bedtime they were accustomed to taking perhaps four drinks at a time, took them and as a result, became a bit woozy—so woozy that when they reached out to the night table to take a barbiturate, they got hold of half a dozen capsules, and without realizing what they were doing, swallowed them all. This amount could be lethal.

Whirlpoolish Mutters One Over Illiteracy Report

By GERARD McNEIL

OTTAWA (CP) — The conference on poverty was told last week that more than 1,000,000 Canadians are illiterate.

Some delegates may have felt that way themselves as they slogged through sociological jargon in various studies.

Some papers were sprinkled with Latin terms such as "ad hoc" and "per se." Strange words like "scatteration" added to the confusion.

"Whirlpoolish," muttered an Anglican minister.

An Ontario delegate confessed that he understood little of what was being said. Reporters were barred from the meetings but did get hold of a few of the papers. The language left the mind reeling.

One sentence in a paper was 69 words long.

It read:

"This scattering effect of tenants in housing projects should promote also a further social stimulus in that with some families more ambitious than might be the general level of the tenants in a building, the families with both a higher standard of individual behavior and higher income (though these two characteristics do not automatically follow) should provide a leadership base which will have an "up-lift" effect on all residents.

Another went this way:

"There will be a considerable de-emphasis of the project form of development while recognizing that, depending on the size of the community, optimum dispersal of units may be substantially less than total scatteration."

GUESS AT MEANING

Reporters guessed this means low-rental housing will be spread around rather than centred in big apartment blocks.

"Blessed are the poor," said one aimed at wiping them out.

Another, from Prince Edward Island, said the poor should "ask not what your country can do for you but what you can do for your country."

Federal briefs were relatively readable, except for lapses like "downward bias." This refers to a line on a graph but it could be taken to mean "lowdown prejudice" by readers unfamiliar with officialese.

The conference ended with a reporter suggesting that if a Paul Martin award—the external affairs minister is renowned for his ability to confuse—were available, it should go to Tom Kent.

Mr. Kent, special adviser to Prime Minister Pearson, is director of a special planning secretariat on poverty.

The next step in the assault on poverty will take place when it takes place, he indicated.

FATHER OF RUNAWAYS GUILTY OF ASSAULT

MONTREAL (CP)—Vince Balent, 45, father of four runaway children who have established a new home for themselves in Vancouver, pleaded guilty Tuesday to grievously assaulting his wife.

Judge Roland Langlois postponed sentence.

Balent was arrested on a warrant sworn by his wife and was arraigned Saturday. The beating occurred last week.

Mrs. Balent was in court to hear her husband plead guilty. One side of her face was badly bruised.

Their children, Maria, 17, Milica, 14, Andre, 13, and Draga, 9, ran away from home at the end of August and went to Vancouver with money they had saved.

Expansion Requested For Arcade

Victoria city council will be asked Thursday to consider an addition to Centennial Square shopping arcade to help attract lessees.

Members of Centennial Square committee discussed a proposal to increase space, perhaps by adding a second storey, on the basis of a bid from a Canada-wide agency to locate in the square.

The inquirer was not publicly identified.

Aldermen were told by land commissioner Alfred Joyce that the prospective tenant is interested in the largest of the seven premises located along the north side of the square.

INADEQUATE

But the total floor space is short of what the agency requires and the suggestion was made that certain office space could be provided as a second floor.

Council will be asked to consider whether an architect should be engaged to prepare sketches.

Only two of the shops are rented now, but there are other inquiries besides the one dealt with today.

Civil Servants Must Wait For Pension Data

B.C. civil servants likely won't know until the coming legislative session how the Canada Pension Plan will affect them.

The new federal contributory plan goes into effect Jan. 1 but no decision has been made yet by the cabinet how it will be integrated with the existing superannuation plan for civil servants.

"We are still in the process of making representations to the government but I cannot reveal their content," A. R. Kemp, Vancouver, an official of the B.C. Government Employees' Association told the Times.

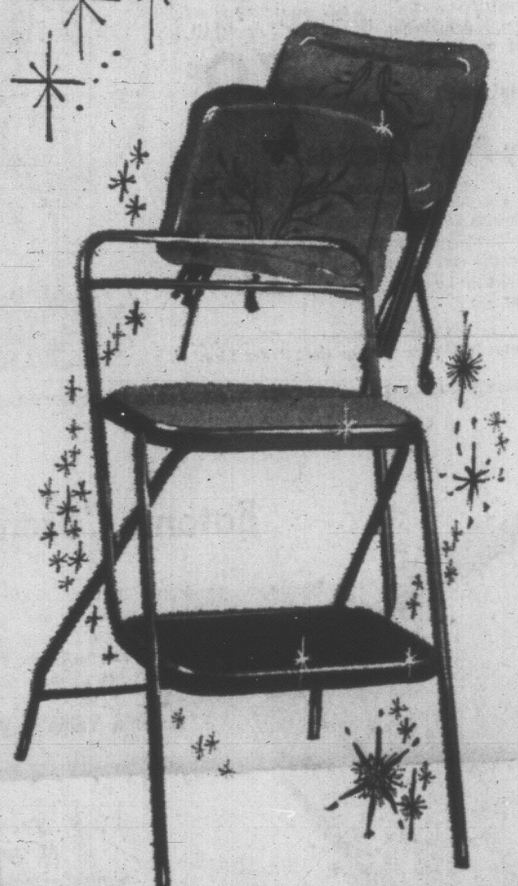

He added it was not considered vital that a decision be reached before New Year.

Whatever change is made will have to be approved by the coming session of the legislature as an amendment to the Superannuation Act and it is considered likely that details won't be revealed until this is done.

The change likely will apply to all civic and hospital employees in the province as well because their superannuation plans are administered by the provincial government.

MOMENTOUS GEMINI RENDEZVOUS COMPLETE SUCCESS

—AP Wirephoto

BLASTOFF of Gemini 6 atop of a roaring Titan 2 rocket was filmed today from helicopter hovering over Cape Kennedy. Launch went off perfectly, enabling Gemini 6 to complete rendezvous with Gemini 7 over Pacific.

Six Feet Separates Two Craft

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Gemini 6 astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford met Gemini 7 in space today and closed to within 6 and 10 feet of it at the end of a 100,000-mile chase from liftoff. They flew nose to nose and watched each other.

The rendezvous was to last about five hours.

It was an historic triumph for the United State as radar "locked" in and the two 18-foot capsules came almost together at a speed of five miles per second.

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell aboard Gemini 7 stayed on course and Gemini 6 met them unerringly 185 miles above the Philippines. Rendezvous was 120 feet. Then the distance narrowed to 10 feet—less than an automobile length apart.

"We're flying nose to nose," came the report from Gemini 6.

The astronauts could see each other.

"Are you able to see in window of 6 and vice versa?" asked ground control.

"Roger, yes," Gemini 7 replied.

The rendezvous occurred at 2:27 p.m. EST. (11:27 p.m. PST), just 5 hours and 50 minutes after Gemini 6 blasted off the launch pad at 8:37 a.m. EST. They missed their timetable by an extra minute.

Just before they reached 120 feet, Stafford aboard Gemini 6 made ground contact by radio.

"In the calmest voice we've ever heard," mission control said, he reported "they are 120 feet apart and sitting."

The men manning the mission control consoles in the manned spacecraft centre at Houston broke out American flags at the moment word came in of the meeting.

Narrowing the gap with short rocket blasts and coming up fast on the inside, Gemini 6 made voice contact with record-setting Gemini 7 astronauts Borman and Lovell, who were egging them on to a nose-to-nose meeting.

"Have visual contact," Gemini 6 reported at 12:23 p.m., EST.

'Locked' With Radar Signals

Shortly afternoon, the two spacecraft, speeding at five miles a second, had "locked" onto each other with probing radar signals.

Six minutes after liftoff, Gemini 6 was in orbit and the word from all ground check points was: "Good."

The loop-the-loop pursuit kept Gemini 6 gaining on Gemini 7, entering its 12th day aloft.

Gemini 7 entered its 164th orbit and Gemini 6 started its 3rd orbit at approximately 11:48 a.m. E.S.T.

With "burns" of its manoeuvring rockets, Gemini 6 shifted its orbit toward the 185-mile loop being made by Gemini 7. A final "burn" at 12:25 p.m. EST made Gemini 6's orbit circular, like the orbit of Gemini, but inside it.

If everything goes as planned, Schirra and Stafford will return to earth at 10:06 a.m. (EST) Thursday. Otherwise, they will stay up a second day.

Borman and Lovell are to continue on their record-shattering flight until Saturday, dashing back to earth at 9 a.m.

It was an on-the-button blastoff today just as Gemini 7 space champions Borman and Lovell flashed over Florida on the 162nd orbit of their record-smashing 14-day voyage.

They were 270 miles downrange at the moment Gemini 6 blasted off, and 1,200 miles ahead when Schirra and Stafford soared into orbit on their third try after two heart-breaking failures.

Second Flight for Schirra

It was the second leap into space for the 42-year-old Schirra, and he had the most difficult job of any astronaut—flying his spaceship through a series of orbital changes and manoeuvres that would put him and rookie Stafford right in front of Borman and Lovell over the Pacific at 2:26 p.m. (EST).

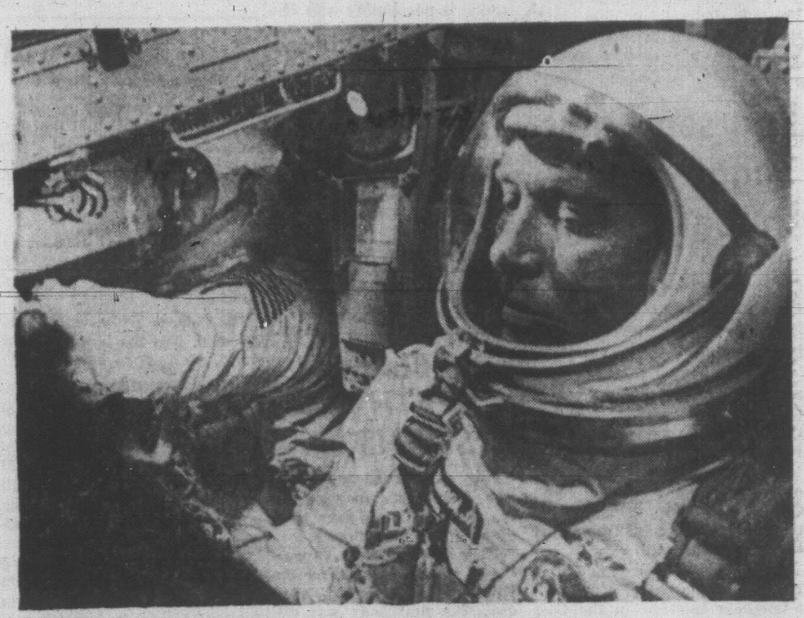

He had five and a half hours and four orbits to do it, and 100,000 miles to travel.

At liftoff, Gemini 7 was in a nearly circular orbit 185 miles above the earth. Gemini 6 shot into an orbit of roughly 100 by 166 miles.

It was like a racetrack—with Borman and Lovell streaking on the outside at 17,500 miles an hour, and Schirra and Stafford flashing on the inside at the same speed and closing in on every turn.

STOCKPILE IN TWO YEARS

Major N-Threat by China In 5 Years: McNamara

Times News Services

PARIS — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said today China may have a small stockpile of nuclear weapons in two years and hopes to have a ballistic missile to deliver them.

Reuters also quoted an informed source as saying that McNamara disclosed that the Chinese Communists now have a ballistic missile submarine that may be armed with missiles by 1967-68.

McNamara told ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the European members of the alliance should plan now to meet a Chinese threat to their own security within five years.

He said the Chinese were determined to become a major nuclear power. China exploded its first nuclear device in October, 1964.

By 1976, he predicted, the Chinese probably would not only have developed but also deployed intercontinental ballistic missiles. Such missiles presumably could reach targets all the way from San Francisco to Berlin and cities in between.

McNamara reported the Chinese have set their sights on building up a major nuclear force within the next two years.

LIKELY PLAN TESTS

He predicted the Chinese probably will produce enough fissionable material to maintain a test program and build up a small stockpile of efficient weapons.

McNamara said Peking is attempting to develop a medium-range ballistic missile which may be ready by 1967.

McNamara spoke on the second day of a NATO ministerial meeting. He spoke behind closed doors. His statements were relayed by an American spokesman.

McNamara said it was estimated that the Chinese probably could deploy several missile launchers by 1968-69 and there could be several dozen of them by 1976.

He was reported to have said it seemed likely that China already had started an intercontinental ballistic missiles program.

The initial deployment could

Only Two Announce Break With Britain

LONDON (AP)—The African nations' self-imposed deadline for a diplomatic break with Britain over Rhodesia passed quietly today with only a handful heeding it.

The first two to announce a break were the leftist government of Guinea and President Julius Nyerere's Tanzania, which has serious domestic political problems with leftist elements.

Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, said in London that he did not believe his country would break with Britain. Instead, he threw the weight of black Africa's most populous nation behind his proposal for a Commonwealth conference on Rhodesia.

Zambia, in a delicate political situation on Rhodesia's northern border, also has decided not to break with Britain. On the contrary, it is sending a mission to London to discuss the security of the Kariba dam which it shares with Rhodesia.

The appeal by the 36-nation Organization of African Unity was made after a meeting of its foreign ministers in Addis Ababa two weeks ago. They set a Dec. 15 deadline for Britain to bring down the white-minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith in Rhodesia. Otherwe, they warned, they would break with Britain.

STAY IN COMMONWEALTH

But the nine African members of the British Commonwealth were in general most careful to say that any break with London would not mean an automatic departure from the British Commonwealth membership which brings them considerable benefits in trade and aid.

Foreign Minister Felix Onama of Uganda had issued a threat of withdrawal at Addis Ababa. A Ugandan government official, commenting on this on the eve of the deadline, told a reporter: "I don't think you need take that very seriously."

At the same time, Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda accepted an invitation to attend the Commonwealth conference

Nyere also will attend, Balewa told reporters at London airport before leaving for home after talks about the proposed conference with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

"We, as members of the Commonwealth could advise Britain," the Nigerian leader said. "We could produce a plan by which a solution could be found."

Britain has been lukewarm to the idea of a Commonwealth meeting.

CAN SAVE FACE

But now the Commonwealth conference provides the possibility of a face-saving way out for the African governments which —apparently having second thoughts about breaking with Britain.

Several government spokesmen have also pointed out another diplomatic nicety that provides another escape hatch—the OAU appeal was a recommen-

Forestry Minister Defends His Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Forestry Minister Sauve replied today to charges of election irregularities in his Iles-de-la-Madeleine riding with a 32-page document in which he said his objections to two men being released from prison to vote involved only "the interest of peace and order."

"Any suggestion that the calls were made for any other purpose is false," he said.

Mr. Sauve, who returned from Rome Sunday night, issued the bulky statement to reporters at a press conference called to deal with a series of allegations made about the Nov. 8 general election. The minister's document covered each allegation individually.

The charges of irregularities arose when Judge Joseph Duguay of Grindstone, Que., told reporters that Mr. Sauve telephoned him on election day to protest the release of two men earlier charged with threatening a Liberal—from their jail cells to vote.

Mr. Sauve said he telephoned the judge at the suggestion of lawyer Pierre Pinard, "one of my legal advisers during the election campaign."

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Peace and Love Shine Through at Sun Ae

It's also the name of a children's home for Korean orphans, run by the Unitarian Service Committee.

The home has earned its name. The atmosphere within its walls is one of peace and harmony.

For many of the young Koreans who live at Sun Ae, it is the first taste of kindness and real love that they have ever known.

Many of them were found by USC workers wandering in the streets, cold, half-starved and homeless.

Others were turned in to the home by their parents, reluctant to lose their children but knowing this was the only way to assure them a decent future.

But the heartbreak of parting from them is often overcome by the terrifying vision of what their future will be otherwise.

For without USC help there would be thousands more Koreans today destitute, starving and without hope for the future.

Your contributions to the Times-sponsored Children of Asia fund help give meaning to the lives of less fortunate people in Korea, India and Hong Kong.

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques should be made payable to the Children of Asia fund.

VICTORIA, B.C., WEDNESDAY, DECEMBER 15, 1965—PAGE 25

Arthur Mayse

Last week in this corner, I suggested that courtesy between drivers would result in fewer mashed fenders. Today, always remembering to keep our tempers firmly in check, suppose we consider the pedestrian.

We'd better, in fact, because on these busy pre-Christmas days and evenings, he's all over the place. In a couple of hours, I'll be a pedestrian myself, scurrying about downtown with worried scowl and illegible shopping list.

So may you be, too . . . and I hope we all make it back safe to our cars or bases. If we don't, the chances are that we've placed ourselves in a traffic predicament from which not even St. Christopher could rescue us.

For the pedestrian, a category which includes anyone on the streets who isn't wheelborne, causes or contributes to most of the mishaps in which he's involved.

A traffic safety expert I know once defined him in a cynical moment as "an accident looking for a place to happen." And all too frequently, he or she finds that place.

But I'm not talking about children here. Right now I'm squinting down the foolkiller's bony finger at Grandma, a well-ripened matron sound in mind, limb and wind, who has just finished mailing out a batch of parcels at the main post office.

"Well, did he?" replies Grandma indulgently, her thoughts already zeroed in on a store counter several blocks distant, "Isn't that nice?"

At Broad, she plows into the crosswalk without so much as a glance in either direction, while more brakes squeal, and a driver hollers through his rolled down window.

"My, my," mutters Grandma, "Victoria is so much noisier than when I was a girl. Why, I remember . . ."

Since our culture tends to make pedestrian pranging an expensive error, the driver who condemned the old lady to eat her Christmas dinner in traction can only hope his insurance will cover the loser's end of a damage suit.

The law does a pretty good job of protecting the pedestrian against the heedless driver, in spite of occasional squawks to the contrary. It is quite unable, however, to guard him from his own rashness, heedlessness and stupidity.

For a 120-pound woman or 165-pound man to dare a briskly moving two tons or thereabouts of rubber, glass and metal is stupid, arrogant, and frequently suicidal. Yet it is done, deliberately, every day.

These casual saunters across the traffic lanes may, I suppose, indicate complete faith in a driver's ability to stop on the proverbial dime. The crabby adult with a scunner against the world shares this form of Russian roulette with the adolscent of a certain stamp.

But . . . hold it . . . here comes Grandpa, a good old man who, although he wouldn't dream of tempting Providence, happens to be wearing dark hat, topcoat, suit, socks and shoes.

He starts to cross a dim-lit suburban street on a rainy night, his mind occupied with his memories. He doesn't see the car, and until the headlight glare reveals the dazed white face, he is about as invisible to the driver as a man can make himself.

A flashlight would have saved him, or a white handkerchief knotted around his arm.

Winter Layoffs Hit High Level In Construction

By ROGER STONEBANKS
Times Labor Reporter

The worst winter unemployment in several years is hitting construction industry unions.

Several hundred men in Greater Victoria are without work, much more than normal for this time of year.

20% IDLE

Nearly 20 per cent of the 750 union carpenters are not working, said John Schibli, president of Local 1598.

This is the highest since February, 1961, he said. The union had expected between 80 and 90 men to be without work, but this morning it was 135.

TWO FACTORS

He attributed the unemployment to two factors:

- The need for an additional $1.7 million to complete school building projects has resulted in delays in the work starting;
- Some people held off new work during the federal election last month because the Conservatives promised to eliminate the 11 per cent tax on building materials.

Mr. Schibli said although carpenters earn $3.49 an hour, carpenters throughout B.C. work only an average nine months in a year, based on experience in the last few years.

This can be shown from the contributions to the health and welfare plan, into which employers pay 10 cents per hour for each hour of employment.

The Construction and General Labourers Union reports 50 of its 300 Greater Victoria members out of work—"the worst for a number of years," said business agent John Gallow.

JOBS FINISHING

"Quite a few jobs are finishing," he added.

The plumbers union has 42 men without work, more than half of them from the shipyards where "there is not too much mechanical work," said business agent Tom Wheatley.

The Machinists, Engine Fitters and Helpers Union has 30 shipyard members out of work—about 15 per cent of the union's membership.

Spokesmen for the Brotherhood of Painters and the International Brotherhood of Electrical Workers were not available this morning.

City Newsman Killed In Beacon Hill Crash

ONE MAN DIED and two other persons were injured when they were thrown out of this car in accident in Beacon Hill Park just before midnight Tuesday. Door was ripped off before car came to a stop. (Times Photo.)

Reporters Injured; Car Hits Tree, Rock

Dead is Vernon Ellis Lacey, 23, of Moose Jaw, Sask., who for the past year was employed by Canadian Press in Victoria.

Injured were Miss Candide Temple, 20, of 2585 Selwyn, and Robert Donahue, 22, of 24 Garden Park Court, both reporters with the Victoria Daily Times.

Two other reporters in the back seat of the car, Glen Allen, 23, of 2533 Quadra, and R. G. Thody, 24, of 360 Douglas, were uninjured.

Police said the accident occurred when the car, driven by Mr. Donahue, turned off Dallas Road into Lover's Lane in Beacon Hill Park.

ACROSS LANE

The car then swerved across the lane and glanced off a tree. It continued on and hit an 800-pound boulder, knocking it 26 feet into the bush.

The car came to a stop when it crashed into another boulder. Police said the three persons in the front seat (the deceased and the two-injured) were apparently thrown out at this point.

They were found on the ground on the right side of the car. The right-hand front passenger door was torn off the car and found some distance away. Police said it is not clear when the door was ripped off.

An off-duty city police sergeant on his way home spotted the accident and called immediately for ambulances. Two members of the Royal Canadian Army Medical Corps, who were passing through the park, rendered first aid on the spot.

Mr. Lacey was pronounced dead at 12:35 a.m. today at St. Joseph's Hospital. He suffered extensive injuries to his body and limbs.

SHOCK, BRUISES

The two back-seat passengers were thrown to the floor by the impact. They suffered shock and bruises but were otherwise uninjured.

Police said the accident might have been a lot worse except that the Donahue vehicle was a heavy European model that stood up well to the crash.

Mr. Lacey joined Canadian Press in November, 1964. He previously worked for the Prince George Citizen, Moose Jaw Times-Herald and Port Arthur News-Chronicle.

He was raised in Kindersley, Sask., and is survived by his mother and stepfather in Moose Jaw. The body is being returned to Kindersley for burial.

He's Walking On Ice In the Sun

Weather for the birds?

Not exactly, and with all this sunshine, who can complain?

She hangs pieces of fat in the trees of her garden and appeals to other householders to do the same.

"I hang pieces of fat in the branches of our trees and it disappears very quickly. Most butchers are glad to give it away.

Temperatures overnight will dip to a feather-freezing 22 degrees and Thursday's forecast high is 42. Winds will be light.

WALLACE DENIES B.C. OVERSHADOWING NATIONAL CENTENARY

1966 Party 'Springboard' for '67

Provincial centennial co-ordinator L. J. Wallace today denied suggestions the 1966 provincial centennial will overshadow the national celebrations in 1967.

He was replying to criticism raised Tuesday by Greater Victoria intermunicipal committee that the B.C. centennial was being given more emphasis in planning.

"They're absolutely wrong," Mr. Wallace said.

"We regard 1966 as a springboard into the 1967 Confederation centennial celebration.

"Both will be large years but 1967 will be bigger naturally because it is a national celebration and that has been the attitude of our committee all along."

Mr. Wallace said no other municipal group had made such a charge "because most people see from the program we have prepared that the provincial centennial events will lead us right into the national celebration with a full head of steam."

The 1966 celebrations will mark the union of the colonies of Vancouver Island and British Columbia.

"If the province wants to celebrate 1966, that's just fine with me," said Oak Bay Reeve Allan Cox at the intermunicipal meeting.

He felt the 1967 centennial has far more significance and that efforts should be directed that way.

"It looks like every time I open my mouth I'm shooting at the provincial government," he said.

MORE EMPHASIS

"But greater emphasis has been placed on 1966 than when it started. Now, everything, including the (reading of) proclamation puts the emphasis on 1966."

He referred to suggested events such as baseball and golf tournaments for receipts of local grants.

"I really think of these things as tourist promotions. I don't see why the municipalities should be underwriting something of particular benefit to them."

40c PER CAPITA

To cover the local share of celebration expenses, the committee recommended councils earmark 40 cents per capita over the two years and that emphasis be placed by Greater Victoria centennial committee on events in 1967.

This would not exclude 1966 celebrations of a particularly high quality, the committee felt.

Per capita donations will be based on 1963 census figures, which are used by the provincial government in calculating its contributions toward centennial funds. The province will match the 40 cents per capita.

Earlier, Reeve Cox had said he felt council would have no argument over putting up $1 per capita to cover celebrations.

'TOO MUCH'

"We want to celebrate these two years. We don't want to suffer such a crushing financial blow that we'll never forget the centennial."

The suggested $100,000 was to provide for grants to organizations planning special centennial events.

MANY EVENTS

Provisional arrangements have been made, for example, to have Canadian junior men's basketball finals, Feb. 28-March 6, 1966, at a cost of $3,100; Canadian Little League championships, spring 1966, $2,500; Dominion Drama Festival, May 1966, $4,000; National Association of Left-handed Golfers, July 1966, $3,500; International-Centennial Bonspiel, March 1967, $3,500; Oak Bay Secondary

'MERRY CHRISTMAS'

Vigorous Session Ahead

Premier W. A. C. Bennett today wished every British Columbian a Merry Christmas and promised a busy new year for every member of the legislature.

The premier delivered his usual Christmas message expressing gratitude for a good year and looking forward to more happiness and prosperity for citizens.

The premier said he had no thoughts of election on his mind at present but the coming session would determine whether there is a provincial election in 1966.

POLLS TO DECIDE?

Opposition Leader Robert Strachan laughed at the reported statements and said it "will be the public opinion polls, not the session, that determine when the next election will be."

Mr. Strachan said the polls show Mr. Bennett's prestige is declining and this is an indication that there will be an election next year.

He also indicated he expected a long and hard session.

Former Manager Guilty of Theft

Peter Kozak of Prince George was found guilty Tuesday of the theft of $1,109 from A&W Drive-In while he was manager of the company's Douglas Street store earlier this year.

Magistrate J. A. Byers remanded Kozak to Jan. 6 for sentence.

Magistrate Byers said in his judgment that no one else in the store could have committed the theft without the connivance of the manager. Kozak was convicted mainly on evidence by another employee that he withheld vouchers on instructions from Kozak.

BASEMENTS FLOODED

Tremors Blamed For Water Break

Water, water everywhere and not a drop in the faucet in dozens of homes in the Belmont-Begbie district late Tuesday night.

City engineer James Garnett today blamed earthquake vibrations for initiating a 12-inch water main break that sent a geyser cascading into Belmont Avenue, over gutters, boulevards, lawns, driveways and into basements.

Workmen stemmed the flood about an hour after the break was first reported at 11 p.m., restoring service to all but about four homes by mid-morning.

Full service was expected to be provided later today.

PUMPED DRY

The engineer said only a half-dozen homes had flooded basements, and the fire department assisted in pumping them dry.

There was confusion at first about which main had burst, Mr. Garnett said.

This was because the five-point intersection of Belmont, Begbie and Grant Streets contains a 20-inch and a 12-inch water main, the former serving the high Rockland area.

UNDER PAVEMENT

The rupture occurred at the northeast corner of the intersection, but the water carried on underneath the pavement and did not come to the surface until it undermined about 25 feet of Belmont, breaking through just where the 20-inch main is laid.

Waterworks men assumed the 20-inch main had gone and immediately set about shutting it off.

Mr. Garnett said this is a lengthy process involving 200 turns on a geared valve. Then it had to be turned on again when it was deduced the 12-inch main was the broken one.

The engineer said there would be 70-80 pounds per square in pressure in the main at that time of day.

The fractured pipe was bedded in solid rock and was found to have a three to four-foot break about seven inches wide.

"There is every indication of an earthquake factor," he said.

Earth shocks, not necessarily strong enough to be generally felt, could crack the cast iron pipe, Mr. Garnett said.

Ask The Times

Q. How many polling stations were open to the public at the Nov. 8 federal election in Victoria riding?—R.S.

A. In Victoria riding, which includes the city of Victoria, Oak Bay, Saanich panhandle and Esquimalt municipality there were 279, says returning officer Ray Bryant.

Q. When did Ayub Khan become president of Pakistan?—J.C.W.

A. In 1958.

View Royal Meeting Divided On Benefits of Town Status

Town status would ensure proper planning and improved services for the unorganized district of View Royal, ratepayers were told at a lively public meeting at Strawberry Vale Tuesday.

It was called to discuss the pros and cons of View Royal becoming a town. A plebiscite will be held Saturday.

The meetnig was chaired by Garnett Bulmer, president of the View Royal Ratepayers' Association which supports the town proposal. About 45 residents attended.

LOSE CONTROL

R. M. McLeod, a director of the association, warned that unless residents ran their own civic affairs they will have little or no control over residential zoning in the district.

"If we want planning and improved services, we must shoulder our responsibilities," he said.

Ratepayers appeared equally divided on incorporation.

Both sides were armed with copies of the Municipal Act, newspaper clippings, pamphlets and letters from government officials, to debate the question.

They accused the association of misleading residents by implying unless they voted for the town proposal the B.C. government would force incorporation.

"I didn't know until Saturday that View Royal could remain as it is," said one ratepayer. "I have attended all the public meetings on this issue and was given the impression that we must incorporate or else."

Mr. McLeod denied the association has claimed incorporation is being forced on the district.

"We concede that View Royal can remain a district," he added. "But we say circumstances will eventually force us to incorporate."

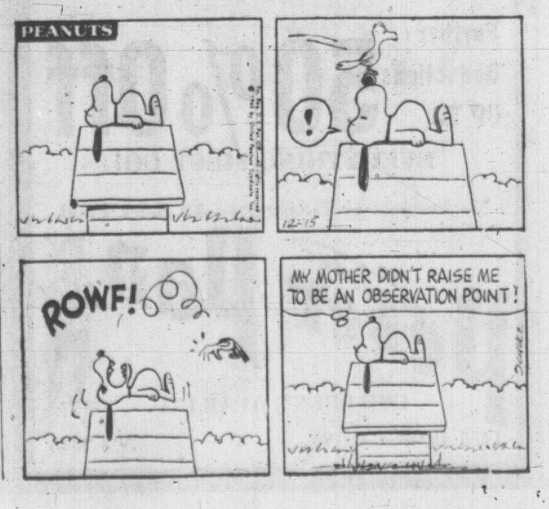

One resident pointed out that View Royal would not have the money to equip a public works department.

"What would happen if we had a snowfall," he said. "We just wouldn't have enough revenue to pay for snow removal."

CONTRACTED

Mr. Bulmer said the work would be contracted out.

Old Transportation New Fitness Method

By Penny Saver

A sport rapidly gaining popularity is cycling. It has always been popular with the younger set, but today, more and more adults are beginning to realize what fun a bicycle can be. Cycling is a very healthy activity, which keeps the legs trim, and keeps you feeling fit.

Because of this popularity, there are many luxury items and gadgets on the market to make your cycling more enjoyable. Safety gadgets are a "must," these days, with the increase in cyclists and drivers.

The latest safety device is an import from France. It is a light that can be strapped on the leg or arm, so that night-cyclists can be seen by drivers. Made of sturdy plastic, it is operated by two batteries. It consists of two lights, a red one which should be placed at the back so that cars advancing from the rear know that you are there, and a white light, so that you are seen by oncoming cars.

Night-walkers would find these very helpful when crossing intersections. Selling for $2.75 complete with batteries, these would make a very wise gift for a trooper or bicycle fiend.

Speedometers, specially made for bikes, sell in this store at $4.95 for a plastic model, or $5.95 for one with a sheet-metal casing. The gauge records speeds up to 60 miles per hour. (In a case such as mine, this is definitely wishful thinking!) Mileage up to 9,999 miles can also be recorded.

One very useful gadget is an elasticized strap, with hooks at each end. This holds books or parcels on the back carrier of the bike, without having to be tied on. These sell for 45 cents each.

The cyclist with a flare for music will go for another item which sells for 98 cents. It's a metal transistor radio carrier, which screws onto the handle bar. A spring holds almost any size of transistor in place. These can be hooked onto the window of a car or outboard motor boat too.

WHY GROW OLD?

By JOSEPHINE LOWMAN

Think About Breathing; Are You Doing It Right?

Most folks take their breathing for granted much as they do sunrise and sunset. Since we do not have to think about it and it continues day after day without any effort on our part, we may do a poor job of it and fail to recognize its importance. Our breathing continues when we are asleep and even when we are unconscious. The WAY we breathe can have a happy influence on our health and appearance.

Lowman

Because of poor posture and shallow breathing many humans are oxygen-poor. Most people use only a small portion of their lungs in their regular breathing, and receive far too little oxygen for best health and most beauty. Deep breathing exercises have been used with success in the treatment of insomnia. Tense and nervous persons also benefit by these.

Of course breath control and deep breathing have always been an important part of Yoga. The things the Hindus learned about posture and breathing and relaxation are the result of centuries of experimentation and self-discipline. The Yogas believe that deep breathing can give an actual glow to the body. They also think that youth emits a greater glow than age and that deep breathing plays an important part in beauty.

Many Yoga exercises require years of practice, but others can be used by the woman and man who are amateurs. Deep breathing can have almost magical effects on the body.

Try these. All nature is rhythmic and so is this exercise. Inhale deeply for five counts. Retain the air in your lungs for five counts and exhale for five counts. Give equal time to each and be sure that your spine is straight and your chest elevated throughout. At first you may have to inhale, hold and exhale for three counts only. Later you may work up to eight or 10 counts. When doing this exercise try to clear your mind of all thoughts and close your eyes. You will find it refreshing.

Some of the simpler Hindu postures will give you a wonderful sense of relaxation, right from the first. The following one is called "The Dragon." Kneel on both knees. Place your hands flat on your thighs, one hand on each thigh. Straighten your spine and hold your head up.

If you would like to have my deep breathing exercises send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for "The Fountain of Youth." Address Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Presentations

Mr. G. L. Landon, who is retiring after 40 years with the provincial department of agriculture, and Mrs. Landon were honored when the department held its Christmas party at the Uplands Golf Club. Master of ceremonies, Mr. W. H. Pope presented Mr. Landon with a typewriter and gift of money. Mrs. Marjorie Kidd presented Mrs. Landon with a handbag. Mr. Pope also read telegrams and letters from Mr. Landon's associates in Canada and the United States. Deputy minister, Mr. A. H. Turner was chairman, introducing Hon. Frank Richter, Mr. S. G. Preston, Prince George, and Mr. Charles Walls, manager of the British Columbia Federation of Agriculture, who all made short speeches. A buffet supper was served, followed by an evening of dancing.

Make now, play later! Be a smart Mom and whip up a batch of this versatile clay. You'll be rewarded with smiles from youngsters, enthused over your latest "cooking."

FOR 'MOM-APPROVED' TOY THAT'S CLEAN, SAFE

Santa's Helper Can Use Kitchen

There's no need to brave the bedlam of your local toy store to get a last-minute Christmas gift for Janie's little friend up the street or some unexpected young guest. Just step into your nice quiet kitchen and cook up a batch of "play-clay." Children of all ages love to model and this particular clay will be "mother-approved" for the two ingredients are baking soda and cornstarch . . . both foods . . . which means it's safe even in the hands of those in the taste-everything stage. Since both products are also recommended bath additives for sensitive skin it's gentle to small tender hands. And it won't spot or stain clothes, rugs or upholstery.

To make the clay, simply mix together in a saucepan 1 cup of cornstarch, 2 cups of baking soda and 1¼ cups water to which a few drops of food coloring has been added. Bring to a boil, stirring constantly and continue to cook until mixture reaches a dough-like consistency. Remove from heat and when cool enough to handle, knead a little as you would dough and pack in a pliofilm bag. Add your Christmas gift wrappings and along with your gift tag a second tag giving the recipe for the clay since there's bound to be a request for more at a future date. Add a footnote to the recipe advising that the clay dries out hard as cement overnight, within half an hour or so if placed on a wire rack in a warm, turned-off oven; that it can be decorated with paints or felt-tip marker; and for the benefit of older modelers, that it can be shellacked for a professional, ceramic effect.

You'll do well to record the recipe, too, for batches of this clean, safe "play-clay" along with the "how-to-make" directions are ideal donations to church bazaars or other fund-raising sales, and a nice change of pace from the usual cakes and pot-holders. The clay can also provide quiet, safe amusement when you're hosting a birthday party for one of your small fry or working with a troop of Brownies.

As 'Something Borrowed' Talisman

WEARS CRYSTAL PENDANT

A crystal pendant on a silver chain, belonging to her mother, was "something borrowed" worn by Lois Myrtle Hamilton when she became the bride of Wayne Gordon Hannah recently.

Her floor-length gown of white organza was styled with a slim skirt enhanced with re-embroidered lace. The same lace highlighted the bateau neckline of the bodice, which also featured sleeves ending in lily points. A train extended from a tiny bridal bow at the back waist. A coronet of crystals held her hand-rolled veil of silk illusion. She carried a cascade bouquet of red roses and stephanotis.

The bride is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. P. O. Hamilton, 1741 Haldon Road, Saanichton, and the groom's parents are Mr. and Mrs. G. Hannah, 1909 Hovey Road, Saanichton. Mr. Hamilton gave his daughter in marriage.

BY CANDLELIGHT

The bride's attendants were maid of honor, Miss Cynthia Caddell, bridesmatron, Mrs. P. Howe, and bridesmaid, Miss Daphne Grieve. They wore A-line dresses of emerald green velvet. The bodices featured scoop necklines and three quarter-length sleeves. Wedding-ring headpieces of the same velvet and tulle were in their hair. They carried bouquets of gold chrysanthemums. Jewelry was emerald green crystal necklaces and earrings, gifts of the bride.

At the reception following in the Legion Hall, Mills Road, the bride and groom cut a wedding cake made by the bride's mother. White chrysanthemums and holly flanked the cake. John Dunn proposed the toast to the bride. Master of ceremonies was V. Butler.

For travelling on honeymoon to Oregon, the new Mrs. Hannah chose a turquoise wool suit with fur cuffs, with brown accessories and a muskrat jacket. A gold rose corsage completed the ensemble.

When they return, the couple will live in Duncan.

Seasonal Tableau Meeting Highlight

"Winds of Christmas", read by Mrs. J. W. Nicols, entertained guests and members alike when they attended the Christmas meeting of Metropolitan United Church Women, held recently in Pendray Hll.

Assisting in the tableau were Mrs. H. J. Tucker and Mrs. W. Esau, messengers; and Miss Alice Potter, Mrs. E. Jackson and Mrs. E. R. Hall, shepherds.

Adding to the entertainment was folksinger, Mrs. W. Speare from Shady Creek United Church and Mrs. A. Iverson, who sang "The Gift", accompanied by Mrs. A. E. Acres.

Guests, senior citizens and church members, were led in singing carols by Mrs. R. E. Sharrocks. A Christmas message from former minister Rev. H. F. James and Mrs. James of Jamaica was read by Mrs. R. D. Bennett.

Devotional was given by members of the Coronation Unit and following the meeting, refreshments were served.

2,000 Killed By Typhoon

KARACHI (Reuters) -- More than 2,000 persons are believed to have been killed in a cyclone which battered the East Pakistan coastal area today, it was reported unofficially from Dacca, the East Pakistan capital.

Safeguarding Of Dam Sought

LUSAKA, Zambia (Reuters) —Zambia said Tuesday night it will send high-ranking ministers to Washington and Moscow to discuss safeguarding the Kariba Dam it shares with Rhodesia.

Asks for Report

OTTAWA (CP)—A Liberal MP asked his government today to make public the confidential law society report on Mr. Justice Leo Landreville of the Supreme Court of Ontario.

Ralph Cowan, the member for York-Humber, filed a notice of motion with the clerk of the Commons asking for the production of the document.

Sauve Defends Action

OTTAWA (CP) — Forestry Minister Sauve replied today to charges of election irregularities in his Iles-de-la-Madeleine riding with a 32-page document in which he said his objections to two men being released from prison to vote involved only "the interest of peace and order."

"Any suggestion that the calls were made for any other purpose is false," he said.

Mr. Sauve, who returned from Rome Sunday night, issued the bulky statement to reporters at a press conference called to deal with a series of allegations made about the Nov. 8 general election. The minister's document covered each allegation individually.

The charges of irregularities arose when Judge Joseph Duguay of Grindstone, Que., told reporters that Mr. Sauve telephoned him on election day to protest the release of two men earlier charged with threatening a Liberal—from their jail cells to vote.

Mr. Sauve said he telephoned the judge at the suggestion of lawyer Pierre Pinard, "one of my legal advisers during the election campaign."

ARGUE CASES

The minister's statement said "we were under the impression" that Conservative candidate Dr. Marc Arsenault or Maxime Langlois, "a lawyer who was campaigning in the Magdalen Islands on behalf of the Conservative candidate," had already been in touch with Judge Duguay seeking the release of the two accused.

Later in the day, said the statement, Mr. Pinard and Mr. Langlois phoned the judge to argue their respective cases.

"I telephoned Judge Duguay to support the arguments put forward by Mr. Pinard, to the effect that there was still a danger that incidents might occur and that I was surprised that these accused should be allowed to vote."

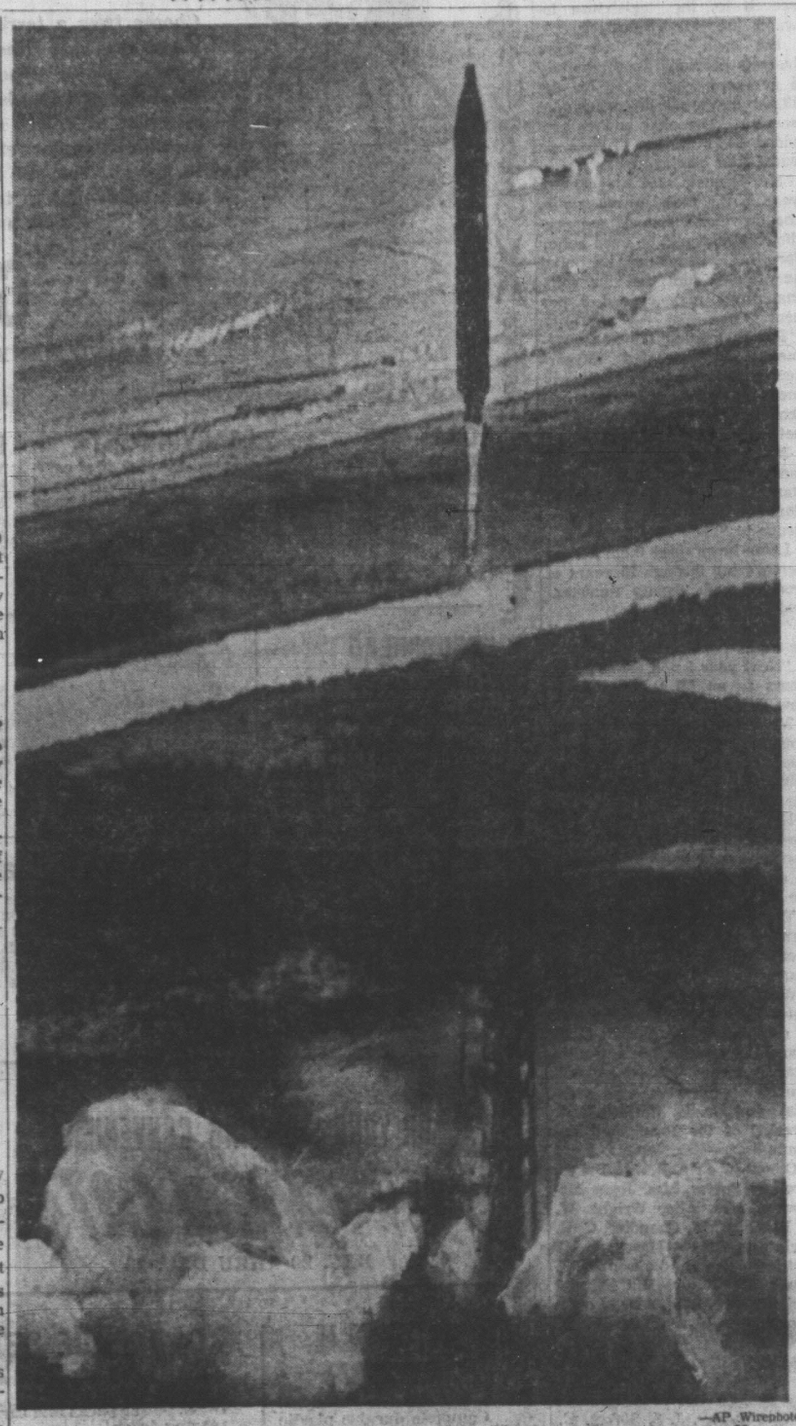

The accused, Willie Lebel and Lucien Bourgeois, were taken to the polling station under police escort and then returned to their cells.

BLASTOFF of Gemini 6 atop of a roaring Titan 2 rocket was filmed today from helicopter hovering over Cape Kennedy. Launch went off perfectly, enabling Gemini 6 to complete rendezvous with Gemini 7 over Pacific.

Gemini 6 and 7 Orbit Together

Momentous Rendezvous Success

CAPE KENNEDY (UPI)—Gemini 6 astronauts Walter Schirra and Thomas Stafford met Gemini 7 in space today and closed to within 6 feet of it at the end of a 100,000-mile chase from liftoff. They flew nose to nose and watched each other.

The rendezvous was to last about five hours.

It was an historic triumph for the United States as radar "locked" in and the two 18-foot capsules came almost together at a speed of five miles per second.

Astronauts Frank Borman and James Lovell aboard Gemini 7 stayed on course and Gemini 6 met them unerringly 185 miles above the Philippines. Rendezvous was 120 feet. Then the distance narrowed to 10 feet—less than an automobile length apart.

"We're flying nose to nose," came the report from Gemini 6.

The astronauts could see each other.

"Are you able to see in window of 6 and vice versa?" asked ground control.

"Roger, yes," Gemini 7 replied.

The rendezvous occurred at 2:27 p.m. EST, (11:27 p.m. PST), just 5 hours and 50 minutes after Gemini 6 blasted off the launch pad at 8:37 a.m. EST. They missed their timetable by an extra minute.

Just before they reached 120 feet, Stafford aboard Gemini 6 made ground contact by radio.

"In the calmest voice we've ever heard," mission control said, he reported "they are 120 feet apart and sitting."

The men manning the mission control consoles in the manned spacecraft centre at Houston broke out American flags at the moment word came in of the meeting.

Narrowing the gap with short rocket blasts and coming up fast on the inside, Gemini 6 made voice contact with record-setting Gemini 7 astronauts Borman and Lovell, who were egging them on to a nose-to-nose meeting.

"Have visual contact," Gemini 6 reported at 12:23 p.m., EST.

'Locked' With Radar Signals

Shortly afternoon, the two spacecraft, speeding at five miles a second, had "locked" onto each other with probing radar signals.

Six minutes after liftoff, Gemini 6 was in orbit and the word from all ground check points was: "Good."

The loop-the-loop pursuit kept Gemini 6 gaining on Gemini 7, entering its 12th day aloft.

First efforts at radio contact among the four astronauts failed. But they quickly zeroed in.

Gemini 7 entered its 164th orbit and Gemini 6 started its 3rd orbit at approximately 11:48 a.m. EST.

With "burns" of its manoeuvring rockets, Gemini 6 shifted its orbit toward the 185-mile loop being made by Gemini 7. A final "burn" at 12:25 p.m. EST made Gemini 6's orbit circular, like the orbit of Gemini, but inside it.

If everything goes as planned, Schirra and Stafford will return to earth at 10:06 a.m. EST Thursday. Otherwise, they will stay up a second day.

Borman and Lovell are to continue on their record-shattering flight until Saturday, dashing back to earth at 9 a.m.

It was an on-the-button blastoff today just as Gemini 7 space champions Borman and Lovell flashed over Florida on the 162nd orbit of their record-smashing 14-day voyage.

They were 270 miles downrange at the moment Gemini 6 blasted off, and 1,200 miles ahead when Schirra and Stafford soared into orbit on their third try after two heart-breaking failures.

Second Flight for Schirra

It was the second leap into space for the 42-year-old Schirra, and he had the most difficult job of any astronaut—flying his spaceship through a series of orbital changes and manoeuvres that would put him and rookie Stafford right in front of Bor-

OVER RHODESIA

Two Announce Break With U.K.

LONDON (AP)—The African nations' self - imposed deadline for a diplomatic break with Britain over Rhodesia passed quietly today with only a handful heeding it.

The first two to announce a break were the leftist government of Guinea and President Julius Nyerere's Tanzania, which has serious domestic political problems with leftist elements.

Sir Abubakar Tafawa Balewa, prime minister of Nigeria, said in London that he did not believe his country would break with Britain. Instead, he threw the weight of black Africa's most populous nation behind his proposal for a Commonwealth conference on Rhodesia.

Zambia, in a delicate political situation on Rhodesia's northern border, also has decided not to break with Britain. On the contrary, it is sending a mission to London to discuss the security of the Kariba dam which it shares with Rhodesia.

The appeal by the 36-nation Organization of African Unity was made after a meeting of its foreign ministers in Addis Ababa two weeks ago. They set a Dec. 15 deadline for Britain to bring down the white-minority government of Prime Minister Ian Smith in Rhodesia. Otherwise, they warned, they would break with Britain.

STAY IN COMMONWEALTH

But the nine African members of the British Commonwealth were in general most careful to say that any break with London would not mean an automatic departure from the British Commonwealth membership which brings them considerable benefits in trade and aid.

Foreign Minister Felix Onama of Uganda had issued a threat of withdrawal at Addis Ababa. A Ugandan government official commenting on this on the eve of the deadline, told a reporter: "I don't think you need take that very seriously."

At the same time, Prime Minister Milton Obote of Uganda accepted an invitation to attend the Commonwealth conference.

Nyere also will attend, Balewa told reporters at London airport before leaving for home after talks about the proposed conference with British Prime Minister Harold Wilson.

"We, as members of the Commonwealth could advise Britain," the Nigerian leader said. "We could produce a plan by which a solution could be found."

Britain has been lukewarm to the idea of a Commonwealth meeting.

CAN SAVE FACE

But now the Commonwealth conference provides the possibility of a face-saving way out for the African governments which —apparently are having second thoughts about breaking with Britain.

Several government spokesmen have also pointed out another diplomatic nicety that provides another escape hatch—the OAU appeal was a recommen-

STOCKPILE IN TWO YEARS

Major N-Threat by China In 5 Years: McNamara

Times News Services

PARIS — Defence Secretary Robert McNamara said today China may have a small stockpile of nuclear weapons in two years and hopes to have a ballistic missile to deliver them.

Reuters also quoted an informed source as saying that McNamara disclosed that the Chinese Communists now have a ballistic missile submarine that may be armed with missiles by 1967-68.

McNamara told ministers of the North Atlantic Treaty Organization that the European members of the alliance should plan now to meet a Chinese threat to their own security within five years.

He said the Chinese were determined to become a major nuclear power. China exploded its first nuclear device in October, 1964.

By 1976, he predicted, the Chinese probably would not only have developed but also deployed intercontinental ballistic missiles. Such missiles presumably could reach targets all the way from San Francisco to Berlin and cities in between.

McNamara reported the Chinese have set their sights on building up a major nuclear force within the next two years.

He predicted the Chinese probably will produce enough fissionable material to maintain a test program and build up a small stockpile of efficient weapons.

McNamara said Peking is attempting to develop a medium-range ballistic missile which may be ready by 1967.

McNamara spoke on the second day of a NATO ministerial meeting. He spoke behind closed doors. His statements were relayed by an American spokesman.

McNamara said it was estimated that the Chinese probably could deploy several missile launchers by 1968-69 and there could be several dozen of them by 1976.

He was reported to have said it seemed likely that China already had started an intercontinental ballistic missiles program.

CHILDREN OF ASIA FUND

Peace and Love Shine Through at Sun Ae

It's also the name of a children's home for Korean orphans, run by the Unitarian Service Committee.

The home has earned its name. The atmosphere within its walls is one of peace and harmony.

For many of the young Koreans who live at Sun Ae, it is the first taste of kindness and real love that they have ever known.

Many of them were found by USC workers wandering in the streets, cold, half-starved and homeless.

Others were turned in to the home by their parents, reluctant to lose their children but knowing this was the only way to assure them a decent future.

But the heartbreak of parting from them is often overcome by the terrifying vision of what their future will be otherwise.

For without USC help there would be thousands more Koreans today destitute, starving and without hope for the future.

Your contributions to the Times - sponsored Children of Asia fund help give meaning to the lives of less fortunate people in Korea, India and Hong Kong.

Donations may be sent care of this newspaper, and cheques should be made payable to the Children of Asia fund.

Contributions are also being accepted at the main branch of the Bank of Montreal, Douglas and Yates.

Ballet to Tour

WINNIPEG (CP)—The Royal Winnipeg Ballet announced Tuesday that it will perform in Caracas next March as part of celebrations marking the 400th anniversary of the Venezuelan capital. The company was invited by the Venezuelan government. Possibility of a week's performance in Lima, Peru, also is under discussion.

BOYS BLAMED IN DEATH OF SWANS

Body of a second tame swan was found this morning on the shore of Swan Lake by a group of Saanich citizens.

They said the birds "apparently" were shot by three unidentified teen-agers Saturday. The first body was discovered Tuesday afternoon.

Saanich parks superintendent A. R. Richman, who organized the search, said both birds were very tame and would let humans approach quite close.

One died last year and the other two were last seen alive Saturday when three boys went boating in Swan Lake. They were reported to be carrying .22 calibre rifles.

He had five and a half hours and four orbits to do it, and 100,000 miles to travel.

At liftoff, Gemini 7 was in a nearly circular orbit 185 miles above the earth. Gemini 6 shot into an orbit of roughly 100 by 166 miles.

It was like a racetrack—with Borman and Lovell streaking on the outside at 17,500 miles an hour, and Schirra and Stafford flashing on the inside at the same speed and closing in on every turn.

One hour and 34 minutes after launch, Schirra fired his maneouvring rockets for less than a second, and brought his own orbit higher. "Looks good," said mission control at Houston —"that's the first major milestone."

At 12:25 p.m. EST, Schirra "burned" the thrusters again and shot himself and Stafford into a circular orbit 15 miles below that of Gemini 7.

By this time Schirra and Stafford reported they could see their sistership above them. They also had radar contact.

'It's Going Right By the Book'

Flight director Christopher C. Kraft, head of the technicians and experts in the mission control building who had the fantastically complex task of handling two manned missions, said: "The manoeuvres are going well. It's going right by the book. Everything is right on schedule."

It was a tight, intricate schedule, and it had to be to get four human beings in space for the first time in history.

"It will be getting crowded up here," Gemini 7 command pilot Borman had radioed down to the ground as he and his cabinmate awaited Gemini 6's liftoff.

At Cape Kennedy, Schirra and Stafford went through the traditional pre-flight ritual for the third time—the first on Oct. 25, when their Agena target vehicle vanished, and the second last Sunday, when the mighty Titan's engines shut down 1.2 seconds after ignition because a plug carrying electronic information dropped out.

The countdown of the Titan and the Gemini spaceship was flawless. The only "hold" was a planned one that lasted 25 minutes at launch-time minus three minutes.

The blastoff had been set for 8:37 a.m. to enable the rendezvous to take place on the fourth orbit of Gemini 6. Each 100 second delay in liftoff would have postponed the rendezvous one orbit.

Right on the button, the Titan's engines burst into life. There was an agonizing three-second wait while they built up power—the point where Sunday's failure occurred—then there was a shout of "Liftoff"

Schirra was one happy astronaut. "The clock has started—that's real fine," he said.

A minute later there was this exchange:

"You're right down the line, Gemini 6."

"Very good."

be as early as 1975, he said.

It was estimated that the supply of fissionable material would be adequate to support not only a ballistic missile program but also provide for delivery by aircraft.

McNamara also gave the NATO chiefs a detailed rundown on the conventional power of China.

PLANES OBSOLETE

He said its air force was considerable, although its striking power was reduced through obsolescence and vulnerability. It had more than 1,500 MiGs, all of which could be used for defensive and close ground support roles.

McNamara also reassured the NATO allies the U.S. will not lower its military guard in Europe, despite its commitment in South Viet Nam.

The United States did not plan to redeploy major combat units from Europe to Southeast Asia, he said.

AWAIT WORD FROM WILSON

Wilson Off for U.S.

LONDON (CP) — Prime Minister Wilson left for the United States today to talk with President Johnson and to address the UN General Assembly. South Viet Nam and Rhodesia are expected to be his chief topics.

Officials said today that Britain would not cut off aid to Commonwealth members which broke relations, although they pointed out it would pose practical difficulties.

Although Guinea's announcement of a break with Britain was made by Conakry radio Tuesday night, the British foreign office in London had received no official notice of it by mid-day today.

At the Tanzanian high commission a spokesman said High Commissioner C. P. Ngaiza was not in his office. Under questioning, he said Ngaiza was "laid up" with a minor illness.

LOCAL SHIP MOVEMENTS

NAVY

HMC Ships Yukon and Sussexvale will return from a California cruise at noon Friday.

DEPARTMENT OF TRANSPORT

Camsell was due in at 2 p.m. today; Racer is in port; Estevan is in refit; Sir James Douglas is proceeding north on west coast of the Island; Stonetown is due here Thursday at 8 a.m.; Ready is in Sandheads patrol area, and St. Catharines is on weather station Papa.

Radio Listing Banned

SALISBURY (Reuters) — The Rhodesia Herald, Salisbury's only daily newspaper, announced Tuesday it is no longer allowed to print the daily schedule of the world service radio program of the British Broadcasting Corporation. It said the order preventing it from publishing details of BBC programs had been issued by the censorship authorities.

Wage Hike for CS

FIVE IN ROW FOR BENNETT

Premier Bennett made it five in a row Tuesday when he told an annual awards dinner for long-service government employees that his next budget will include wage increases for civil servants.

It will be the fourth consecutive general boost for all classifications—from janitors to deputy ministers. In 1961 he announced raises for many but not all civil servants.

As usual, Mr. Bennett did not reveal the size of the average increase and it won't be known until he delivers his budget speech to the legislature towards the end of February.

But each of the last three budgets provided approximately 5 per cent wage hikes for the 18,500 employees in government service. The 1965 budget provided $3.75 million to give an extra $207 per capita.

Mr. Bennett said the current year is the most prosperous in the province's history and predicted 1966 would be even better for B.C., including its civil servants—a hint that the coming raises may exceed 5 per cent.

Before making the announcement, he presented 25-year-service certificates to 44 government employees at the luncheon tendered by the provincial cabinet in the Empress Hotel

Mr. Bennett had a quip for most of the recipients, for instance, telling Liquor Control Board chief inspector W. A. Bruce to "keep them sober."

Later he praised them all for persevering through 25 years of working with deputy ministers and cabinet members.

"I don't know how you did it," he said.

"Next year I will celebrate 25 years as an MLA and I know how difficult it is."

Mr. Bennett said he had seen nothing but co-operation and good work by the civil service during the past 13½ years since his administration began.

He said he travelled all through Canada and many other countries and had no hesitation in declaring the B.C. civil service "the best anywhere."

Among those receiving certificates were A. H. Hall, registrar of companies; Mr. Bruce; C. R. Margison, assistant deputy minister of labor; Willard Ireland, provincial librarian and archivist, and Dr. G. Clifford Carl, director of the Provincial Museum.

Others were R. M. Baker, Frances Porter, Mrs. Joyce McGowan, Mrs. Alice Wright, W. A. Bruce, R. M. Chandler, C. B. McIntosh, Robert Mason, G. C. Petticrew, Anne Adamson, M. J. Davis, W. R. D. Hill, Muriel Wright, R. B. Fields, Joan French, A. G. Jordan, W. A. West.

A. H. Bamford, I. T. Cameron, D. M. Carey, H. C. Casillo, Phyllis Christian, G. A. Kenney, W. C. Pendray, J. S. Stokes, E. G. Whiting, B. H. Bennett, J. A. Lonsbury, N. M. F. Pope.

LOCAL BRIEFS

The first rehearsal for the Queen Alexandra Solarium Junior League's Spring Vaudeville Show will be held Thursday, Jan. 6, at 8 p.m., in the Jubilee Hall, Fraser Street.

Talented people who wish to contribute their time for the variety and chorus program can contact Mrs. Barbara Harrison at 382-5978 for further information.

The show will be presented March 14 to 19 at McPherson Playhouse.

There will be no letter delivery nor wicket service. Street letter box collections will be made in the evening only. The box lobby will be open from 8 a.m. to 6 p.m.

Inspection of facilities and operation of juvenile detention homes will be conducted by the chief provincial probation officer under a provincial cabinet order approved Tuesday.

A spokesman in the attorney-general's department said the new procedure is aimed primarily at ensuring proper standards in the private detention homes now proliferating in smaller B.C. communities.

WEATHER SYNOPSIS

With the exception of several Vancouver Island and north coastal locations temperatures throughout B.C. dropped below the freezing point Tuesday night. Vancouver airport recorded a chilly 26 degrees while Kimberley was the coldest spot in the province with a 1-below reading. Sunny weather returned to most coastal areas today as a large area of high pressure is expected to build eastward from the Pacific. However, the interior remained generally cloudy. Rain and strong southeasterly winds will spread to the north coast on Thursday morning in advance of the latest in a series of Pacific disturbances. Little change in the weather pattern is anticipated elsewhere in the province.
